Democrats Ask Truman For Red Quiz Commission

Limited Application Of Post's Suggestion Offered by Tydings And Party Colleagues

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

President Truman has been urged by Democratic Senators investigating the communism-in-Government charges of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy to appoint a non-partisan commission to devote full time to the job.

The request was made orally to the President by Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), chairman of a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee investigating the McCarthy charges, with the concurrence of other Democratic members of his group.

Senator Tydings last night declined to comment on the report. The proposal, said to have been made with the full knowledge of the Senate Administration leadership, was laid before Mr. Truman about a week ago and a decision may be reached within the next few days.

Although full details of the proposal are lacking, the plan does not contemplate that the Tydings committee fold up its inquiry but simply that the nonpartisan commission of distinguished Americans take an over-all look at the charges and make a report.

The proposal thus contemplates limited application of the course recommended last Monday by The Washington Post in its editorial, "The Road Back to America."

The Post suggested Mr. Truman appoint an unpartisan civilian commission on national security to make a trustworthy report to the American people not only on the "fifth-column menace" but on all other aspects of national security.

Asked for comment on the broader inquiry proposed by The Post Mr. Truman told a press-radio conference Thursday he saw no reason for a supergovernment in the United States. He said he was trying to run the Government under the Constitution, and would continue to try to do that.

In another editorial, "Supergovernment?" The Post said yesterday:

"There is undoubtedly room for difference of opinion as to the proper scope of a Commission on National Security—even as to the wisdom of establishing such a commission at this time. But to say that such a commission would constitute a sort of supergovernment not contemplated by the Constitution is tantamount to saying that the President may not in a period of crisis seek the advice and assistance of his fellow Americans."

The White House reaction to the more limited Tydings proposal could not be learned last night. Mr. Truman heretofore has taken the position that the present loyalty review board headed by Seth

Pannell Brothers Guilty of Running Still Near Capitol

The Pannell brothers were convicted in District Court yesterday of operating a 600-gallon still in a barn five blocks from the Capitol.

Melvin W. Pannell, 31, 128 Brown ct. sw., was convicted of four counts of illegal manufacture of whisky and his brother Roland, of the same address, was convicted of three counts.

The brothers were tried without a jury by Judge Alexander Holtzoff.

Police and a Treasury agent raided the still in a barn loft in the rear of 120 G st. sw., on March 1, and destroyed 20 barrels of mash.

Security Commission Plan Arouses Continuing Comment

The proposal of The Washington Post for a "Commission on National Security" evoked continuing Nation-wide comment yesterday.

Leaders in the fields of business, education and religion agreed that a commission made up of distinguished Americans, above partisan politics, could do much to clear the air by making a survey of the "fifth-column menace" and other aspects of national security.

Senator Tydings (D., Md.), it was disclosed, has suggested to President Truman that he appoint a group of such Americans to look into charges of communism in the Government. The Maryland lawmaker is chairman of a subcommittee that has been investigating charges made by Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.).

The Post's proposal, advanced in an editorial, "The Road Back to America," will be the topic discussed on the American Forum of the Air this evening.

The program, with Theodore Granik as moderator, will be televised over Station WNBW at 7 p. m. in the NBC television studio in the Wardman Park Hotel. Tickets are available at NBC.

Participating in the discussion will be United States Senators Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.), Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.), and George W. Malone (R., Nev.), and Philip L. Graham, publisher of The Post. Graham will lead the panel discussion.

The program will be rebroadcast over Radio Station WRC at 1:30 p. m. Sunday.

West Berlin Germans Stone Red Police on Eve of Rally

Berlin, May 26 (U.P.)—West Berlin Germans stoned Communist police tonight in the heart of Berlin while British troops stood ready for action in event of a major clash.

The stoning was the first violence incident to the massing of Communist "Free German Youth" for a monster weekend Whitsuntide "peace" rally.

West Berliners and East Berliners started shouting insults at each other from opposite sides of the Potsdamer Platz, Berlin's "Times Square" and traditional riot center.

Suddenly the West Berliners seized stones from a nearby rubble heap and started stoning the East Berlin police, armed with pistols, who were standing a few yards away on their side of the city border line. West German police quickly dispersed the stoners, and the Communist police kept persons on their side from replying to the pelting.

Earlier 100 Communist youths had shouted insults at British soldiers while Russian troops and German Communist police looked on.

British troops backed by armored cars set up defense positions in Potsdamer Platz before the stoning, ready to fight off any invasion of Western Berlin by the Communist youth.

Four armored cars, four scout cars and 100 infantrymen moved into Potsdamer Platz where the American, British and Russian sectors intersect.

Amerasia Case Called Weak By Prosecutor

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The Justice Department prosecutor of the notorious 1945 Amerasia magazine case yesterday told a Senate subcommittee his version of why the prosecution was unsuccessful.

His principal reasons were:

1. The haul of papers seized by the FBI in the Amerasia office and in the homes of some of the defendants were "disappointing."

2. The FBI investigators, before the arrests, had illegally entered and searched the apartment of one of the defendants. He discovered this and his attorney moved to suppress the seized evidence. The Justice Department feared this motion would prevail and no case could be made.

3. Some of the documents seized had been officially and duly declassified; others were relatively innocuous or in common circulation among newspaper writers.

The witness who gave this story to the Tydings subcommittee, investigating charges brought by Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), was Robert M. Hitchcock. The Justice Department brought him in as a special prosecutor after the Amerasia arrests were made.

He testified in closed sessions, but Subcommittee Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) ordered copies of his statement made public. His testimony under questioning was kept secret although the matter of making it public later is said to be under consideration. That questioning, subcommittee staff members said, brought out considerable additional information.

Besides Hitchcock, the subcommittee questioned James McInerney, head of the Justice Department Criminal Division, and its acting head at the time of the Amerasia case.

On Monday the subcommittee proposes to question Assistant FBI Director Louis B. Nichols and the Assistant to the Director D. Milton Ladd, who was principal FBI officer on the case.

The Tydings subcommittee is looking into the five-year-old Amerasia story on the insistence of McCarthy and other members of Congress who have implied there

Whooping Cranes Hatch First Baby Born in Captivity

Austwell, Tex., May 25 (AP).—Excited bird watchers today reported the birth of the first whooping crane ever hatched in captivity.

The newcomer, named Rusty because of his reddish brown plumage, was born on the Arkansas National Game Refuge.

He becomes whooping crane No. 38. Only 37 other birds of the nearly extinct species are known. Once these graceful birds, 4½ feet tall, wintered in great flocks along the Texas-Louisiana coast.

This is why Julian A. Howard, manager of the refuge, and representatives of the Audubon Society became so excited when Jo and Crip began nesting more than a month ago.

Jo, the female, and Crip took turns on the nest. Yesterday, the excitement in the watchers' post came nearly to the saturation point when it was noted that Jo had kicked Crip off the nest and had taken over permanently.

This morning Bob Allen of the National Audubon Society confirmed the big event. He got a look at the baby through a spotting scope at 1000 yards and said it was 6 to 7 inches tall and very active.

Russia Reported Occupying 5 Miles of Iranian Territory

Tehran, Iran, May 26 (AP).—The newspaper Teherane Mossavar said today that Russian troops have occupied a five-mile strip of Iranian territory in the northeastern border area.

The newspaper said the Soviets have refused to withdraw despite a protest by the Iranian Foreign Ministry.

The alleged Soviet infiltration was described as near the town of Sarkhas, easternmost the town the border province of Khorosan. The province forms a bulge into the Soviet Turkomen Republic at that point, which has been the scene of frequent border disputes.

Date of the reported Russian move was not named by the paper. It said Soviet forces still were there despite the government's protest to the Soviet Embassy in Tehran demanding they get out.

Authoritative sources here said Acting Iranian Foreign Minister Dr. Ali Chioli Ardalan held a "most important" conference yesterday with United States Ambassador John Cooper Wiley. American Embassy sources termed the subject of the talk "extremely secret."

U. S. Curbs Romanians' Travel Here

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The State Department added something new and strange to the map of the Washington area yesterday.

It drew a line around the Capital, 35 miles from the District boundaries, and solemnly announced that Communist Romania's diplomats here could not cross the line without special permission.

The order was a reprisal against restrictions that have kept American diplomats virtually cooped up in Bucharest, the Romanian capital, for more than a year.

To go beyond the 35-mile limit for any purpose, the seven men and women of the Romanian mission here must fill out a form in five copies, state the exact reason for their trip, and get the approval of the State Department's chief of protocol.

Effects of Restrictions

Without such permission, they can, for example, swim on the western shore of Chesapeake Bay, from Sparrows Point to Kenwood Beach, but not on the eastern shore except for a little stretch south of Matapeake.

They can visit downtown Baltimore, but not the northeast corner of the city, which is out of bounds. They can go to Frederick but not to Fredericksburg; they can have a summer picnic at Middleburg, Va., but not at Warrenton; they can visit Mount Vernon, if their Communist principles will let them, but not Monticello.

And if they are caught violating the ban and crossing the line without permission, they run the risk of being shipped home as "persona non grata"—unacceptable here.

The State Department was vague about how it proposed to enforce the order, which was said on good authority to be without precedent in time of peace. Diplomatic researchers could find only one comparable instance: a 50-mile travel limit slapped on Soviet diplomats from June 7 to July 23, 1941, when Russia was a friendly partner of Nazi Germany and had put severe restriction on American diplomats in the Soviet Union.

Lifted After Attack

At that time the Soviet Embassy staff here and consular staffs in other cities were told they must not go more than fifty miles beyond their posts. But the ban was lifted as soon as Russia was attacked and invaded.

Acting Secretary of State James E. Webb declined to tell his press conference yesterday how he would enforce the order, although he did say it would not be to the Romanians' advantage to violate it.

Another State Department official said his department would have to depend on "information on whether these people are out of bounds." He said there was no law under which the order could be enforced.

Courtesies to foreign envoys, and the reverse, are a matter of international custom and usage rather than law. In 1790, however, one of the earliest acts of Congress sternly prohibited suits against foreign ministers or their servants, and this law is still in the United States Code.

An FBI official said yesterday that his agency did not "police" such orders. "Obviousy," he said, "if we had any information concerning a violation we would, of course, forward it to the State Departmnet."

The superintendents of State police in both Maryland and Virginia said yesterday they had not yet learned officially of the State Department order, but assumed they would be informed. In both States the practice is to tele-

U. S. Industrial Output Nears 1948 Record

By The Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board reported last night industrial production rose in April to the highest point in 13 months, and has continued to climb this month.

April output was listed on the board's index at 189 percent of (that is, 89 percent above) the 1935-39 average, two points above the March figure and 10 points over April, 1949.

The board added that this month "apparently" will produce another two-point rise to 191—which would be close to the all-time peak of 195 recorded in October and November 1948, at the height of the boom.

"The rise since March has reflected mainly large gains in the iron and steel, automobile and machinery industries," the board said. "Output of other durable goods and of most nondurable goods has continued at advanced levels. Minerals (mining) production, reduced somewhat in April, has apparently recovered in May.'"

Service Agency Plans Cut in Aid

By N. S. Haseltine

Drastic plans to cut off hospital payments for some patients and to deny Community Chest Fund support to others needing care were disclosed here last night by the Hospital Service Agency.

The proposals, said to be necessary to stretch Community Chest hospitalization money to the year's end, would:

1. Stop further payment, as of May 16, on all HSA-certified patients whose hospital stay at that date equaled or exceeded 30 consecutive days. Sixteen patients come under that category, it was said.

2. Withhold HSA certification from and after May 17 from those applicants who are (a) potential liability cases; (b) subscribers to hospital insurance plans; (c) District charges admitted to hospitals not under contract with the District, and (d) nonresidents of the District, or Alexandria City and

Child Finally Admitted To Arlington Hospital

By Dorothea Andrews and Judith Spivak
Post Reporter

A Washington veterans organization yesterday stepped into the gap left by public and private charity to send a 9-week-old cancer victim to Arlington Hospital for treatment.

The child, Barbara Elizabeth Gambrell, was taken by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Gambrell, 1008 Birch st., Falls Church, to Children's Hospital at about 8:45 Thursday night. Earlier, the Gambrells had gone to their own physician, Dr. Chester Brady.

Mrs. Gambrell said Dr. Brady told them, "I just can't touch that tongue. The child is in such pain. Take it to the hospital."

At the hospital, the Gambrells talked with Dr. Elmer O. Bean, a resident physician. Mrs. Gambrell said he told them "it was the rules" that the child could not

Boy, Girl Outlast Judges To Gain Tie in Spelling Bee

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

The bashful young man from College Park, Ga., and the nervous young miss from East Cleveland, Ohio, exhausted the judges, the fat dictionaries and all the word lists of the National Spelling Bee yesterday afternoon.

So by a declared draw—everybody was "effete" after the longest, toughest and most "jargonic" bee in history—the winners of $500 first prizes were Colquitt Dean, 14, and Diana Reynard, 12. Both also got trips to New York.

It was the first time since the bees started 23 years ago that the contest ended in a draw. It was the first time that even one list was exhausted—and the kids beat three.

Contestants have fainted before, but yesterday was the first time a judge declared herself dangerously near hysterics.

It was the first time the press photographers of Washington have failed — absolutely and despite their "meticulosity"—to get a picture of a victory kiss.

Diana and Colquitt wouldn't have any of that.

"Come on, kiss!" the camera boys yelled.

"Must we—oh, must we—oh jeepers," said Diana, who was in last year's contest, too.

"Unh, unh," said Colquitt.

"Let's just hold hands across each other's laps," said Diana.

"It's ok," a photographer said. "Just a picture."

Said Colquitt: "Maybe you know that, and maybe I know that, and maybe we know that, but the folks in my home town won't know that."

Diana agreed: "Yeah, they'll

Two Confess 'False Nose' Robberies

Robbery Squad detectives last night arrested two men who they said confessed to four recent holdups—including two "false nose" jobs—that netted more than $4500.

Held on three charges of armed robbery, four charges of stolen cars and one charge of detention for Maryland authorities were William Paul Plumley, 26, listed as living at 409 48th ave., Capitol Heights, Md., and Harris Lovett, 27, of the Dixie Hotel at 738 12th st. nw. and Randall Cliffs, Md.

The men were arrested yesterday afternoon and questioned for several hours before they confessed "orally," police said, to the following holdups:

Naylor Theater, 2834 Alabama ave. se., on April 29, when Douglas W. Mellott, manager was reportedly robbed of $1042.

District Line Liquors at 405 61st st. ne., owned by Julius Kirson, on April 7, when $300 was reportedly taken.

Power to Free St. Elizabeths Inmates on Writ Backed by U.S.

The United States Attorney's office yesterday urged the United States Court of Appeals to rule that District Court judges may release St. Elizabeths Hospital inmates by habeas corpus writs.

In a turnabout, the prosecutors agreed with the defense attorneys that the Appeals Court should reverse a decision it handed down five years ago.

That decision held that judges who believe an inmate to have recovered his sanity cannot release him. Instead, the judge must refer the case for a reexamination by the Commission on Mental Health and then perhaps empanel a jury to decide the sanity question.

Nine judges, the full bench of the Appeals Court, heard two related cases on the subject yesterday, and were caught by surprise when the United States Attorneys stated their position.

However, the prosecutors urged the court not to allow persons adjudged insane to bring repeated identical habeas corpus actions after the writs have been refused by the courts.

Should the Appeals Court sanction the repeated hearings, it will

Crime Probe By Kefauver Committee On at Miami

Secret Session Hears Woman Hotel Owner And Accountants; Hunt, Halley Attend

Miami, Fla., May 26 (AP). Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.) started his Nationwide investigation into crime today at a secret hearing in the Miami Federal Building.

A series of witnesses was ushered through closed and guarded doors into the hearing room where Kefauver sat with Senator Lester Hunt (D., Wyo.).

With the two Senators was Rudolph Halley, recently named as head counsel for the five-man Senate committee charged with investigating gambling, political bribery and "the national crime syndicate."

The Senators arrived by plane shortly after noon.

The Miami Herald said the first witness called was Mrs. Olive Wofford, owner of the Wofford Hotel, Miami Beach.

Gang Figures Are Cited

Mrs. Wofford has figured in court actions to break the lease on her hotel, charging that such gangland figures as Anthony Carfano, alias "Little Augie Pisano," had taken control from the original lessees, the newspaper said.

Mrs. Wofford spent 45 minutes behind the doors at which a United States deputy marshal was constantly stationed.

At least 11 other witnesses were summoned, apparently by subpena, the paper said, adding that several were identified as accountants.

Among the witnesses were Joe Brown, chief of the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau office in Miami and four of his agents, the paper said.

There was no immediate indication as to how long the hearings would continue.

The secret session adjourned at 6 p. m. (EST) and will resume at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Bill Would Halt Data At State Boundaries

A bill to ban interstate transmission of horse and dog race gambling information before a race has begun was unanimously approved yesterday by the Senate Commerce Committee.

The bill defines gambling information as data on "bets or wagers, the scratches, jockey changes, weights, probable winners, betting odds or changes in the betting odds."

No newspaper could publish or any radio station broadcast any such information before a race started. An exception would be papers publishing such information about races in States where racing is legal. The bill contains no ban on interstate shipment of papers printing such information.

The measure was worked out by the Commerce subcommittee, headed by Senator McFarland (D., Ariz.), which recently conducted hearings on two antigambling proposals submitted by the Justice

CIO Union Wins Vote In General Electric

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The CIO's International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) yesterday won the right to represent a majority of the employes at General Electric, in an election conducted by the National Labor Relations Board.

Figures flowing into NLRB regional headquarters at Baltimore indicated the IUE had won a close, bitterly fought victory over its left-wing rival, United Electrical Workers (UE).

The anti-Communist IUE appears to have carried 49 bargaining units representing 54,000 General Electric employes; the left-wing UE 40 units with around 37,000 members.

10 Large Units in IUE

Ten of the 12 voting units with more than 1000 employes cast their lot with the right-wing IUE. However, of the big three units, UE captured Schenectady and Erie, N. Y., with Lynn, Mass.—home local of UE President Albert Fitzgerald—going over to the IUE.

Although the large body of production and maintenance workers at GE's Schenectady works followed the UE, a small unit of 300 employes engaged in atomic energy work voted affiliation with IUE. The Atomic Energy Commission has banned the leftish UE from maintaining contracts in the atomic energy field.

A scattering of 10 small units—2300 workers in all—affiliated themselves with the International Association of Machinists, AFL Teamsters, Federation of Technicians and Engineers, AFL Electrical Workers, AFL Patternmakers and AFL Auto Workers. At Bloomfield, Ill., the office and clerical workers of GE voted to be represented by the Boilermakers Union.

8 Units Want No Union

Eight units, with 550 workers, voted against joining any union. Results were inconclusive in 16 units with 2500 workers, so that run-off elections will be necessary.

James J. Matles, UE organizing director and one of its top leaders, indicated in Pittsburgh that the UE will contest the general election vote in a number of plants, particularly at Lynn, Mass.

Matles charged the NLRB favored the IUE in Lynn by lumping salaried workers and production-maintenance men together in one unit, that there was company intimidation against UE, and that the Government threw its weight on the side of IUE when Labor Secretary Maurice Tobin urged the employes to vote IUE.

Regains Dominance

Coupled with earlier victories at General Motors and Westinghouse, the CIO apears to have regained its former dominance in the mass production electrical and radio equipment industry.

IUE won control of 26,000 electrical workers at General Motors. James Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO and head of IUE, was in Detroit yesterday negotiating a contract with General Motors.

Last month, IUE and UE each won 20 of Westinghouse's plants, but IUE carried 28,000 employes, twice as many as UE. Run-off elections are to be held in four Westinghouse plants, including the 13,000-employe works at East Pittsburgh. IUE has also won elections and the right to represent employes of the Radio Corp. of America, Emerson Radio, Philco, Exide and other companies.

Altogether, IUE claims to represons admissible under the present trical-radio industry, or two-thirds of the membership of the left-wing UE at the time UE was ousted from the CIO in November.

Graham Is Target

Four Seeking Senate Seat In N. C. Today

Raleigh, N. C., May 26 (AP).—North Carolina Democrats tomorrow will choose a Senator from among a former university president, a corporation lawyer, a one-time isolationist Senator and a hog breeder.

Nomination in the primary is equivalent to election.

Senator Frank P. Graham, for 19 years president of the University of North Carolina, is opposed by Willis Smith, Raleigh lawyer, former Senator Robert R. Reynolds of Asheville, and Olla Ray Boyd, livestock raiser of Pinetown.

The campaign has produced heated debate on the race question, socialism and communism. Senator Graham occasionally has disagreed with the Truman Administration.

Smith, husky former president of the American Bar Association, leaned to the conservative side and condemned several "Fair Deal" proposals.

If no candidate receives a majority, the top two will decide the nomination in a runoff primary June 24.

Graham was appointed to the Senate 14 months ago by Gov. Kerr Scott. The race tomorrow is for the four years remaining in the term to which former Gov. J. M. Broughton was elected in 1948. Senator Broughton died shortly after taking office.

Observers agreed that the real race was between Graham and Smith. Reynolds from whom a colorful campaign had been expected, waged a quiet drive for votes.

Graham, who became nationally known as the liberal president of the university, campaigned as a supporter of President Truman.

He made important reservations in pledging that support. He stated repeatedly his opposition to a compulsory FEPC, "socialized medicine," and the Brannan Farm Plan.

Smith injected the race question by asserting that Graham as a member of President Truman's committee on civil rights had favored a compulsory FEPC. Smith forces contended also that regardless of Graham's stand on FEPC, he favored an end to segregation.

The Communist issue was raised when Smith charged that Graham had belonged to many ultra-liberal organizations, some of which later turned up on the Government's subversive list.

Graham retorted that this "is a falsehood that has been repeated over and over again about me."

Ferguson Says He'll Beat Taft; Sees Truman

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Joseph T. Ferguson, Democratic nominee for the Senate in Ohio, stood in the White House lobby yesterday and predicted that he would defeat Senator Robert A. Taft by more than 250,000 votes in November.

Just the same, he asked President Truman to visit Ohio and give him a hand.

Candidate Ferguson, a chipper little man who stands 5 feet, 4, whose middle name is Terrence, and who at 58 has eight children and three grandchildren, called at the White House with William M. (Bill) Boyle, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

They had a lengthy talk with President Truman, and on the way out Ferguson took on the reporters.

"I assured him (the President) that I would defeat Taft by better than a quarter million votes," Ferguson said. "That seemed to please him very much."

Hopes for Truman Visit

He said that he was going to win even if Mr. Truman didn't go into Ohio. But he said he had hopes that the Chief Executive would make the trip.

What did Ferguson think of the argument that the voters might "resent" the participation of Mr. Truman in a State election.

"I think the people like to see public officials, from the President on down," he replied. "I'd be very gratified if the President came into Ohio to help me out."

Asked what the issues would be in Ohio, he replied:

"Taft's bad record, for one thing."

He pointed to the Senator's authorship of the Taft-Hartley labor law, and said that he himself was against the law. He said also that Taft was opposed to the President's civil rights program, while he himself was for it.

Recalls Past Issues

Looking backward, Ferguson said that he was in favor of soldiers voting in World War II, whereas Taft was on the other side. He said that Taft also was against giving soldiers franking privileges.

Ferguson, who has long served as State auditor, conceded that Senator Taft had the edge on him when it came to campaign funds.

"Money is one thing I'm lacking," he said, grinning. "Taft has plenty of that, but I have all the confidence in the world that the people of Ohio won't sell their votes."

He said that he was going to wage an aggressive campaign that would take him down the highways and the byways and into the side streets.

"I know this is the year Taft is going to be beaten," he said.

Miller Will Resign Immigration Post For Legion Work

Watson B. Miller, commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, will resign next week to become Washington consultant to George N. Craig, national commander of the American Legion.

Director of the Legion's rehabilitation commission before entering Government service in 1941, Miller told President Truman of his plans to resign at a White House conference yesterday. Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, in whose department trhe Immigration and Naturalization Service functions, accompanied Miller to the White House.

Commissioner Miller, who is in the middle of the controversy over the Department of Justice effort to deport Mrs. Ellen Knauff, German-born G. I. bride, as a security risk, has been chief of the Immigration and Naturalization Service since 1947. Prior to that he was assistant administrator, the latter from 1945 to 1947.

Senate Labor Group Votes To Allow Maritime Hiring Halls

The Senate Labor Committee yesterday approved, 8 to 3, a bill to legalize maritime union hiring halls.

The decision, reached at a closed hearing, was announced by Chairman Elbert Thomas (D., Utah). He said Republican Senators Taft (Ohio), Donnell (Mo.) and Alexander Smith (N. J.) opposed the bill.

The measure now goes on the Senate calendar but there is little prospect that Congress will act finally on the bill this session.

Its effect would be to modify the anticlosed shop provision of the Taft-Hartley labor law. Under the hiring hall system, maritime unions supply crews to shipowners. Would-be crew members register with the unions.

The National Labor Relations Board claims nonunion seamen could be discriminated against in this manner. The board ruled specifically that the hiring halls are illegal on the Great Lakes. The Supreme Court earlier this year refused to review the Great Lakes decision, meaning that it stands.

A similar bill is pending before the House Labor Committee.

Under a closed shop contract only union members can be hired.

phone the State Department whenever a diplomat is involved in a traffic violation or other offense.

The Romanians involved in the ban are Mihai Magheru, the Minister, and his wife; Ion Nitescu, the third secretary; Ion Georgescu, a clerk, and his wife; and a Romanian chauffeur and maid. The official address of the Romanian Legation here is 1601 23d st. nw.

Acting Secretary Webb indicated yesterday that the conduct of diplomatic business would soon become impossible in both Romania and Czechoslovakia, and a break in relations might be unavoidable, in view of the restrictions placed on American officials there.

He read a note just delivered in Bucharest, protesting angrily against the Romanian actions, and informing the Romanian government of the American countermeasures.

Since April of last year American diplomats have kept within Bucharest and its immediate vicinity. They have been allowed to travel along only one road as far as the mountain resort of Sinaia, in the Carpathians, and then only with permission.

They have asked repeatedly to visit the Black Sea port of Constanta, where supplies for the legation are landed, but permission has been refused every time.

In addition, the Americans in Bucharest have been subjected to minor official persecutions about their housing, their automobile licenses and the necessities of everyday living. These "harassments," as the State Department calls them, include incessant visits by housing inspectors, official questioning about housing privileges, and official searches of furniture and household goods.

Output Nears 1948 Record

April and May—with the schedule at 102 percent of theoretical capacity in the week ending May 28—gave a powerful boost to overall production.

So did the auto assemblies. They increased 10 percent in April, then moved up about 20 percent further to a new peak rate in mid-May following settlement of the Chrysler strike.

Sustained high demand for household appliances and a general strengthening of demand for producers' equipment were among other factors in the upswing in production.

Coal output, however, already has declined considerably from the high levels reached shortly after the United Mine Workers returned to the pits in early March, the board observed.

Scanning business conditions over the Nation, the board also said:

"Construction activity showed further gains in April and May. Prices of many industrial materials and of livestock and other farm products have advanced since mid-April. Sales of durable consumer goods have continued at exceptionally high levels. Common stock prices have risen further."

Striker, Slapping Customer, May Be Fired, NLRB Rules

The National Labor Relations Board ruled yesterday that it is lawful for an employer to discharge a striker who gets rough, tough, or downright nasty.

Generally speaking, the board said, it is lawful under the Taft-Hartley Act, for a company to dismiss striking employes who engage in acts of violence, threats of force against non-strikers, and destruction of plant property.

Specifically, the board cited the following actions by strikers as justifying dismissal.

Destroying plant padlocks, slapping supervisors in the face, slapping customers in the face, threatening a nonstriker with bodily harm while waving a club in his face, throwing stones and a thermos bottle at a carload of non-strikers, tearing the dress sleeve of a female non-striker, slashing tires of company trucks.

The ruling was made in a case involving the Puerto Rico Container Corp. and a Puerto Rican union. The union had charged the company with an unfair labor practice for firing 18 of the strikers.

The board did find that the company dismissed six other strikers illegally. These were ordered reinstated to their jobs, three of them with back pay.

The five members, splitting three to two, also found that the company had violated the Taft-Hartley Act by deducting from the last pay check of the strikers all of the amounts due on loans made to them, while permitting non-strikers to continue the regular partial payments on the loans they owed the company.

Construction Strike Spreads at Oak Ridge

Oak Ridge, Tenn., May 26 (U.P.).—Some 1500 more AFL construction workers quit tonight, bringing to 4500 the number of wildcat strikers and feezing the time-table for vital atomic expansion here.

Virtually all new work ground to a halt because of the unauthorized but still mushrooming strike. An Atomic Energy Commission spokesman said 'nobody knows what will be done now."

An international official of the laborers union which started the walkout said, however, that the wildcatters were "cutting their own throats." He said that if necessary the union will bring in replacements to man the jobs.

E. L. Norton Is Appointed to Reserve Board

President Truman yesterday nominated Edward Lee Norton of Birmingham, Ala., to be a member of the Federal Reserve Board.

Norton is an investment banker and radio station owner.

The nomination is for a 14-year term.

Federal Reserve Board aides said Norton, when approved by the Senate, will take the board post now held by Ernest G. Draper who wants to retire. Draper's term expired January 31 but he has remained on the board pending the selection of a successor.

There is a vacancy on the board at present due to the death of Lawrence Clayton. However, the unexpired portion of Clayton's term runs only until January 31, 1952.

President Truman also nominated Nelson Lee Smith of New Hampshire for reappointment as a member of the Federal Power Commission for a term expiring June 22, 1955.

The nomination of Smith for a new term came after the designation Wednesday of former Gov. Mon Wallgren of Washington to replace Smith as chairman of the commission. The President also nominated:

Paul R. Rowen of Massachusetts for reappointment as a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission for the term expiring June 5, 1955.

George E. Sterling of Maine for reappointment as a member of Federal Communications Commission for a term of seven years from July 1, 1950.

Dale E. Doty of Pasadena, Calif., was nominated by the President to be Assistant Secretary of the Interior. Doty is now special assistant to Secretary Chapman.

The White House also announced that Mr. Truman had approved Chapman's promotion of Vernon D. Northrop to be administrative assistant to Chapman. Northrop, 45-year-old native of Scranton, Pa., has been in charge of the department's office of administrative management.

The post which Doty fills was created in the department under a reorganization plan approved by Congress. It pays $15,000 a year. His appointment must be confirmed by the Senate.

Northrop will get $14,000 a year. His appointment does not require Senate approval.

Judy Coplon Gets 30-Day Brooklyn Marriage License

New York, May 26 (NYHT).—Judith Coplon, awaiting hearing on appeals from espionage convictions in Washington and New York, appeared at Borough Hall, Brooklyn, today with her fiance, Albert H. Socolov, a Brooklyn lawyer, and obtained a marriage license.

Miss Coplon gave her age as 29 and said she was unemployed. Socolov, who is also 29, has been engaged to Miss Coplon for nearly a month. He is associated with a law firm that conducted her defense in the New York trial.

Russia Is Challenged On German Vote

Bonn, Germany, May 26 (AP).—The three Western Allies made new demands on Russia today for all-German unity through free general elections and guarantees of individual freedoms.

Letters from the American, British and French High Commissioners to the Soviet command proposed that a freely elected nationwide government should lead immediately to negotiation of a four-power German peace settlement.

The Western demand came significantly as thousands of Communist youth jammed into Berlin for the Whitsuntide demonstration intended to climax the current Russian "peace" campaign Sunday.

The letters and a statement the three Western Foreign Ministers drafted at their recent London meeting obviously were aimed to counter the Soviet propaganda theme that only Russia is sincerely committed to German unification.

Western observers believed the Russians were certain to reject or ignore the Allied proposals. They call for:

1. A freely elected all-German government.

2. Individual freedom of movement, freedom from arbitrary arrest and detention, freedom of association and assembly, freedom of speech, press and radio throughout all Germany.

3. Freedom of action for all democratic political parties.

4. Independence of courts.

5. Prohibition of political secret police and police formations that are military in character.

6. Permission for an all-German government to establish a single currency (in place of the existing East and West currencies), unified custom, and a four-power agreement that war reparations will not be taken from current German production.

7. Surrender in accordance with German legislation of any industrial enterprise acquired by or on behalf of a foreign power after May 8, 1945 (the end of the European war), unless the acquisition had four-power approval and is subject to German law.

8. Revival of joint four-power supervision through a commission that would permit the German government to function effectively.

Western government and occupation officials have repeatedly charged none of the proposed freedoms exists in Soviet East Germany.

Queen Mother Mary Marks 83d Birthday

London, May 26 (NYHT). — Queen Mary observed her eighty-third birthday today, and hundreds of London residents gathered outside Marlborough House to greet her with shouted birthday congratulations.

Telegrams and letters from royalty and commoners in England and throughout the world were carted into the home of the Queen Mother. A birthday lunch was given in her honor at Buckingham Palace by her son, King George VI. There were 30 guests, including members of the Royal Family and close friends.

As her car drove through the gates of Marlborough House enroute to the Palace; hundreds of onlookers broke into cheers. She wore a powder blue dress and clasped a rolled parasol in her hand. Sitting erectly in the rear seat, she smiled and waved as the cheers continued throughout her slow journey up the Mall.

As the luncheon started, guns in Hyde Park boomed out a salute. It was echoed far away by the salvo of warships in Malta Harbor. Flags flew from many government and private buildings in her honor.

Czech Reds Plan Party Purge

Prague, Czechoslovakia, May 26 (U.P.).—The Slovak Communist Party will be purged during the issue of new membership cards, it was announced today, to get rid of "undesirables" and "enemies."

Stefan Bastovansky, secretary-general of the party said at a Slovak Party Congress that "unworthy members who were not unmasked and removed in earlier check-ups" would lose their membership cards.

Germans Ban Film

Wiesbaden, Germany, May 26 (AP).—Warner Brother's "Colorado Territory" today became the first American movie to be banned in West Germany.

The German film control board prohibited showing of the film, which it called "an example of gangster films which glorify anti-social elements."

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

. . . SPECIAL PRECAUTIONS—Curious German youngsters watch British armored cars and troops who occupy a strategic post near Berlin's Potsdamer Platz, traditionally riotous juncture of Russian, British and American sectors. Special precautions have been taken as 200,000 youths jammed the city's Russian sector for a Red rally, with an additional 300,000 reported en route

Reds Refuse To Discuss Austrian Pact

London, May 26 (U.P.)—Russia served notice on the Western Powers today it will block the Austrian treaty until they reply to a recent demand for withdrawal of Anglo-American troops from Trieste.

But United States, British and French Foreign Ministers' deputies decided to meet here again July 10 even if the Russians refuse to show up—and to press for resumption of the three-year-old treaty talks.

Soviet Deputy Georgi Zarubin intimated he would boycott the meeting unless the Soviet protest note on Trieste has been answered by July 10. He refused to agree to the July 10 meeting date.

Zarubin renewed Soviet charges that the British and Americans had a naval base in Trieste in violation of the Italian peace treaty.

He did not indicate whether the Soviets would make resumption of Austrian talks dependent on a "favorable" reply to the note or would be satisfied with any reply.

The three western representatives rejected Zarubin's charges that the Western Powers "have violated their obligations in Trieste," and renounced the Soviet attempt to link the Austrian treaty with the Trieste issue.

Berliners Stone Eastern Police

ing militarized "alert units," lined the Soviet side.

The scout cars kept vigil between East and West Berlin in the center of town.

British troops were officially in a "state of readiness." United States and French troops, of the total Allied garrison of 8000, remained in their normal quarters. But—newly trained in riot action—they were ready to support the 12,000 West German police in any emergency.

West Allied authorities continued officially hopeful that there would be no serious disorder.

But Soviet sector radios, rally speakers and all other organs of propaganda incited the delegates to hatred of the Western Allies in an incessant stream of broadcasts, newspaper articles and official statements.

The first result came when 100 of the youths screamed insults at British soldiers from the Soviet side of the city borderline while Russian sentries and German Communist police looked on approvingly.

Celler Asks More Speed On DP Bill

Chairman Emanuel Celler of the House Judiciary Committee yesterday pressed for more speed in completing congressional action on the controversial displaced persons bill.

The DP program will die on June 30 unless a compromise is adopted by then.

The New York Democrat heads the House conferees who have been working with conferees from the Senate to adjust differences in DP bills passed by the two chambers. He said the joint committee should complete the task by Wednesday and he hopes to get House approval of the compromise by the end of next week.

The conferees agreed tentatively Thursday to increase the DP quota to 340,000. The House bill set a 339,000 maximum, while the Senate bill would raise the figure to 359,000. The conferees also agreed to admit 54,000 "expellees" who fled from eastern Europe.

About 150,000 of the 205,000 persons admissable under the present law already have arrived in this country. Of these, 10,000 are "expellees."

Celler pointed to 115 Shanghai refugees who arrived in the United States Wednesday only to be sent on to Europe and beyond, as an example for the need in getting the bill through quickly.

If the DP bill were now law, Celler said, the refugees who met immigration requirements would be permitted to remain in this country.

Wherry Suggests Truman and Stalin Clarify Positions

Omaha, Neb., May 26 (AP).—Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) proposed tonight that President Truman and Premier Stalin exchange diplomatic notes to clarify the American and Russian position in the cold war.

Wherry, the Senate GOP floor leader, said such an exchange would let the world judge which country was right.

"We should pursue every honorable course for ending the cold war," he said.

Wherry said the United States should resist the seating of Communist China delegates in the United Nations, should not recognize the new China regime and should continue to support U. N. agencies from which the Soviets have withdrawn.

"In the Pacific we should put an end to drift and vacillation, fumbling and bungling," Wherry declared.

Loyalty Issue

Draper Libel Case Put in Jury's Hands

Hartford, Conn., May 26 (AP).—A Federal jury was sent to bed tonight without reaching a verdict in a $200,000 libel suit against a Connecticut housewife who called two entertainers pro-Communists.

The jury debate was recessed until 9 a. m. (EST) Saturday after nearly seven hours of futile deliberations.

The defendant, Mrs. Hester R. McCullough, was sued by Larry Adler and Paul Draper.

Some 3200 pages of testimony was taken during the 20-day trial.

Federal Judge J. Joseph Smith gave the case to the eight women and four men jurors at 12:30 p. m. EST) after a luncheon recess, the panel began its deliberation at 1:45 p. m. (EST).

Draper, a dancer, and Adler, a harmonica player, are suing Mrs. McCullough for $100,000 apiece. They charge she hurt their reputations and caused them to lose engagements by falsely accusing them of pro-Communist activities.

Mrs. McCullough, 34, wife of John T. McCullough, an assistant picture editor on Time magazine, made the statements in a published letter opposing a Draper-Adler concert in her home town of Greenwich, Conn., in January, 1949.

Judge Smith told the jury in his charge:

"In the present climate of this country there can be no question that to charge a man with being a Communist or pro-Communist or traitor does hold him up to ridicule and contempt."

Smith said the jurors must determine for themselves whether any of the organizations Draper and Adler admittedly supported were Communist or Communist-front groups.

The fact that such organizations have been cited as subversive in official Government listings, the judge said, is not to be taken as proof.

"You cannot give any weight to these accusations, no matter how much respect you have for the official or authority who made them," Smith said.

He told the jurors their verdict could take four possible forms:

1—For Mrs. McCullough, meaning that she would owe the entertainers no damages.

2—For Draper and Adler together.

3—For Draper alone, meaning that he would be entitled to damages while Adler wouldn't.

4—For Adler alone, meaning that he would be entitled to damages while Draper wouldn't.

Smith also told the jurors they must decide how much damages, if any, each plaintiff should get.

Lie Says U. N. Crisis on China Perils Success

Lake Success, May 26 (AP).—Trygve Lie said today the China crisis in the United Nations must be settled by July, and a start made this year to end the cold war.

At the same time he asserted the boycotting Russians still have confidence in the U. N. and want it to work.

If the China crisis is not settled this summer, Lie said, the September General Assembly of 59 nations will meet in confusion "and I do not know what will happen."

The U. N. secretary general, speaking to reporters here for the first time since his 90-minute talk with Prime Minister Stalin, declined to reveal whether Stalin made any new proposals for ending the Soviet bloc's walkout against 29 U. N. organizations over the issue of Chinese representation. But he did say he carried no message from President Truman to Stalin and brought no Stalin message to Mr. Truman.

The Russians have demanded the U. N. kick out the Nationalist Chinese and give the place to the Communists of the Pieping regime. The Russians so far have been voted down in their ouster moves. Lie said today that if there is any reality behind all the work that has been undertaken to get the issue settled it must be ended in June or at least not later than July.

Lie said again, as he did in Moscow, that Stalin's health is excellent. He said Stalin's eye is sharp and he still loves to smoke his pipe. He said the Russian man in the street is wearing ties now, has better shoes, and that Moscow has done much building since his last visit in 1946.

Italian Ship Sinks After Collision in English Channel

London, May 26 (U.P.).—An Italian ship sank after colliding with another vessel in the fog-shrouded English Channel early today, the Coast Guard reported.

Casualties, if any, were not yet known. Thirty-seven crewmen from the Italian ship, identified as the Carlo Esparto, were picked up by a lifeboat.

The second ship, believed to be British, was damaged badly. A pilot boat reported her down at the head. Visibility was poor.

The collision occurred about three miles southeast of Dungeness Point, about 20 miles east of Hastings on the South English coast.

U. S. Oil Deal Ends British 'Gas' Ration

London, May 26 (AP).—Britain wiped out gasoline rationing today through a deal ending a long boiling dispute between American oil companies and the British government.

Derationing, effective tomorrow, was made possible because the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and California Texas Oil Co. agreed to supply oil and take British sterling instead of dollars in payment, the government said. The provision was that Britain would abandon rationing.

The Labor Government has been under pressure from Winston Churchill's Conservatives and motoring groups to do away with rationing.

The battle between American oil interests and Britain began when Britain slashed its dollar oil imports by one-third at the start of the year. The measure cut deeply into American oil company business here. The purpose was to save hard currency for dollar-starved Britain.

Spokesman for American oil companies here immediately charged the move was the "thin edge of a wedge to squeeze us out of the sterling market."

Oil sources said it was not yet clear whether the agreement also would settle the global aspect of competition between American and British oil firms.

17 Die as Guards Foil Outbreak in Philippine Prison

Manila, Philippines, May 26 (U.P.) Convicts armed with 50-caliber machine guns made a mass break for freedom today from New Bilibid State Penitenary but the revolt was put down in three hours of fighting that left 17 dead.

Some prisoners were killed as they shot their way through the prison walls after killing a guard; others were burned to death when tracer bullets set fire to two buildings within the prison compound 20 miles south of Manila.

Authorities said none escaped and the situation was under control. Fifteen prisoners, one guard and one civilian were killed. Four prisoners and two guards were injured seriously.

President Quirino said the revolt was led by Huks. A wounded prisoner said the leader of the jailbreak had promised 20 other convicts a nearby Huk band would aid them.

Constabulary, troops and Manila police raced to the prison as guards called for help. Three Manila fire trucks helped fight the flames.

Six convicts first attacked the prison armory, stabbing a guard to death. They seized machine guns which they fired into the armory's concrete wall, tearing a 3-foot hole through which they fled. Guards opened fire, killing all six.

British to End Jap Occupation

Tokyo, May 26 (AP). — British Commonwealth occupation troops—all of them Australians—will withdraw from Japan, but it will be at least six months before all are gone, Australian authorities announced today.

United States troops will remain as the only occupation force.

The Australians, including Army, Navy and Air Force units, total about 2500.

Decision to withdraw was announced by Prime Minister Robert Menzies with American agreement.

Scientists Warn British Isles Doomed in World Atom War

London, May 26 (NYHT).—The British Association of Scientific Workers, in a pamphlet issued today, declared that effectvie defense of this island against atom bombs was impossible and that Britain, more than the United States or Russia, would suffer from atomic warfare.

In one section of the pamphlet, which is titled "Atomic Attack," Prof. Patrick M. S. Blacket of Manchester University, a Nobel Prize winner in physics, indicated that economic reasons alone ruled out any hope of adequate protection.

"The cost of the necessary passive defense measures, dispersal, underground factories, shelters, etc., is widely outside the economic possibilities of this economically hard-pressed country," he wrote.

The scientists concluded:

"The only way out of this impasse is to ensure that the Third World War does not in fact take place. Such a war would have fatal results, perhaps most of all for Great Britain."

Pepco Stock Subscriptions Exceed 95%

By S. Oliver Goodman

Stockholders of Potomac Electric Power Co. subscribed to 95.2 per cent of a new offering of 710,700 common shares at $14.50 a share, a company spokesman reported yesterday.

The remaining 33,853 shares were offered to the public at $15.12½ a share by an underwriting group and sold rapidly.

In the memory of local brokers the 95.2 per cent response of Pepco stockholders was the largest subscription rate in utilty history on such a large offering. It exceeded last year's subscription rate of 94.6 percent on an offering of 592,250 shares.

R. Roy Dunn, Pepco vice president and treasurer, said last night that proceeds of the stock offering totaled $10,305,150, minus $248,745 for underwriting fees and expenses. This sum and other company funds will be used for Pepco's 1950 construction program, estimated to total about 17 million dollars.

Proceeds of a 30-million-dollar bond offering earlier this month went mainly to refinance a 20-million-dollar bond issue at a lower interest rate and to repay two bank loans.

RAIL INCOMES: Southern Railway Co. reported April net income of $1,183,292, compared with $846,883 in same 1949 period. Single Injury Cause Of Cancer Doubted

A Washington surgeon yesterday strongly discounted the possibility that cancer can be caused or its malignancy be speeded by any single injury.

At the same time, said Dr. John H. Lyons, clinical professor of surgery at George Washington University, it's a difficult stand for doctors to take in court compensation cases, where the disease is blamed on single injuries.

He spoke at a closing scientific session of the two-day, forty-ninth annual meeting of the Association of Surgeons of the Southern Railway System at Hotel Statler.

Reviewing medical literature since the turn of the century, Dr. Lyons declared that "the great preponderance of accumulated evidence today" is against the belief cancer can be either caused or its spread speeded by a single blow.

Older writers, particularly those before 1929, did not question that a single injury could cause cancer, and attributed many of their cases to single injuries. In 1929, however, a great number of cases were painstakingly reinvestigated, and none was found traceable to single injury, he told the assembled surgeons.

Among points that would rule out the single injury cause, he said, is the fact that wars, with their numbers of injuries, bring no rising incidense in cancer. Nor is there any evidence that surgery, itself an injury, increases the number of cases, he said.

Some 500 surgeons affiliated with the railway system attended the sesstons which yesterday morning included special demonstrations at Walter Reed General Hospital.

Lawyer Jailed For Swindling His Client

Veteran Attorney Albert F. Graham, 48, was sentenced to serve 6 to 18 months in jail yesterday for swindling a client out of $2000.

District Court Judge Jennings Bailey denied Graham's petition for bond, and remanded the lawyer to jail, saying:

"I see no excuse for the offense. If you want bond you will have to apply to the Court of Appeals." Judge Bailey also overruled a motion for a new trial for Graham.

William W. Harley, 31, 4908 Benning rd. se., was found guilty by a District Court jury yesterday of second degree murder and immediately sentenced by Judge Alexander Holtzoff to serve from 15 years to life in prison.

Harley was indicted for the first degree murder of Richard Thomas Jackson, a 28-year-old laborer, who lived at 4920 Benning rd. se. Jackson was shot during an argument with Harley about moving a kitchen table.

In other sentences yesterday, Bryant O. Pearce, 34, 5119 S st. se., was given one to three years on charges of larceny and false pretenses. Pearce posed as a Central Intelligence Agency official to purloin $561 in cameras and film from Somers Camera Exchange, 714 14th st. nw.

Pearce also got one to three years, the sentences to run concurrently, for larceny after trust of more than $400 in an automobile deal with a Silver Spring man.

Three employes of the municipally owned Kenilworth dump were given suspended sentences of from 30 to 90 days, and placed on probation for two years, by Judge Holtzoff after pleading guilty to operating a numbers lottery at the dump.

They are Cordell Gresham, 6103 Jay st., Fairmont Heights, Md.; John F. Butler, 46, 1649 Gales st. ne., and Herbert H. Lewis, 51, 620 7th st. sw.

Similar charges against a fourth dump employe, James Mayo, 52, 1510 E st. se., were dismissed.

Judge Holtzoff also sentenced Oliver Henson, jr., 33, 426 1st st. sw., to serve from 16 months to four years. He was convicted of breaking into a building at 734 7th st. nw. and taking $175 worth of clothes.

Mother and Child in Appeal be admitted because the Gambrells are not District residents. Mrs. Gambrell said Dr. Bean also said the hospital couldn't take the child without funds to back it up.

Dr. Bean called the American Legion, where he asked Percy Weinberg, director of welfare for AL if the legion would assume costs for the child. Weinberg said he was told that the child could not be accepted at Children's because the Gambrells are not District residents and because there are no Hospital Service Agency funds to pay for hospital costs.

Weinberg said the Legion agreed to pay for the care of the child "at least for the night." Later he said, he learned that Children's Hospital made arrangements to place the child in Arlington Hospital, geographically nearer to the Gambrells' Falls Church home. Arlington Hospital officials said the child would have been accepted in any case.

The child was admitted at Arlington Hospital a few minutes before midnight Thursday and has been diagnosed as in critical condition with hydroma of the throat.

James H. Lemon, president of the board at Children's Hospital, yesterday stated positively that the child would have been admitted there if no other placement had been found for it. He said the hospital now has 14 children in its care for whom no payments are forthcoming. The Gambrell child, he said, "would just have been the fifteenth."

Lemon said the hospital policy, ever since it has been in existence, has been never to turn away a sick child.

"It is easy," he said, "to see how emotion can get into these things when you don't know what the facts are."

Yesterday Mrs. Gambrell said that in addition to calling the American Legion, Dr. Bean also contacted the local VFW. She said she understood the VFW offered to assume hospital costs when the AL stops, and that another local organization might later enter the cost picture.

Mrs. Gambrell said the child who has a two-year-old sister, had a growth from the time she was born on March 21. She said she did not know the growth was cancerous until an operation was performed on May 2 at Sibley Hospital. She said the cancer has spread from the tongue and neck up into the cheek and down into the chest.

She said Sibley Hospital offered no hope that the child might live for any length of time.

Gambrell, who is 24, works for the A. S. Johnson Co. here as a refrigerator mechanic. Mrs. Gambrell said he makes between $30 and $40 weekly, on an hourly wage basis. So far as assuming obligation for the child's illness goes, Mrs. Gambrell said, "We just don't have it to pay."

Service Agency Plans Aid Cut

Arlington and Fairfax Counties, Va., or Prince Georges County Md.

HSA officials said the cut-offs and restrictions are necessary to conform to a Community Chest mandate that its hospitalizaion fund be rationed monthly to last through the year. Hospital administrators have been pressing for a policy of spending the fund as the needs arise, even though this exhausts the fund by September.

The May 16 date is when HSA officials notified the hospitals its month's fund allotment was either spent or committed. No patients were cut off by that order, though hospitals were advised that there would be no recertifications or new certifications until the end of May.

HSA officials said last night the latest proposals were discussed Thursday with hospital leaders. Hospital representatives, they said, objected most strenuously to the 30-day limit on patients already hospitalized. Only medical opinion should determine the length of stay once a patient is certified, representatives of the hospitals told HSA officials.

Limitations on future certifications, generally, were not strongly opposed by the hospitals, HSA officials said. Hospital representatives did ask, however, that eligible atients admitted directly to the hospitals as emergency cases be given priority in HSA certification.

Willard C. Smith, HSA administrator, pointed out that with the fund limited to about $40,000 a month, only the first patients certified could be paid for.

HSA, a nonprofit organization, is the certifying organization to determine which needy patients in this area are eligible for Community Chest money help. Montgomery County, Md., is excluded this year since it has its own health fund setup.

Bashful Tiger and Bold Lion Go Slow on Road to Romance

New York, May 26 (U.P.).—Zimba and Zombie flirted cautiously with each other today and keeper John Himberger said it was a hopeful sign that Central Park Zoo would boast a little tiglon a couple of years from now.

Zimba is a playful lioness. Zombie is a snarling tiger. Himberger set up housekeeping for the pair yesterday. The tiglon will be the result of a happy union, the keeper hopes. It is the offspring of a tiger and a lioness, a rare hybrid which, like the mule is incapable of reproduction.

"It's like you take two children and put them on a desert island when they're young," Himberger explained. "Pretty soon they get used to each other no matter how different they are. They grow up and nature takes its course.

"They had one little spat," Himberger said. "But mostly they've just talked a good fight."

The keepers are counting on Zimba, who once knew another tiger, to spark the romance.

"She's a very nice young lady," Himberger said.

2 Sentenced As Counterfeit Ring Leaders

New York, May 26 (U.P.).—Salvatore Salli and Anthony Iraci, the two masterminds of a counterfeit ring which printed over one million dollars in bogus United States and Canadian currency, were sentenced to 10- and 5-year prison terms, respectively, today.

Salli, 39, of Buffalo, N. Y., previously had plead guilty to possession and sale of $200,000 in worthless $10 and $20 bills. Irachi, 38, also of Buffalo, had admitted guilt to a charge of conspiracy to possess counterfeit money.

Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard imposed the sentences on the recommendation of the Government.

Roy M. Cohn, Assistant United States Attorney, told the court that Salli and Irachi were the ringleaders of a gang which launched the counterfeit plot last year.

At the time of their arrests in Buffalo April 18, Treasury officials revealed that the ring had printed $750,000 in bogus United States bills.

Senate Crime Probe Opened

Department and the Federal Communications Commission. The bill approved yesterday is closer to the FCC version but not nearly so strict as either of the original proposals.

In a statement, McFarland explained that he felt the approved bill "will strike a heavy blow" at the big-time betting operators. One such was gambler Frank Erickson, a committee witness some weeks ago.

"If it does," McFarland said, "we will have accomplished a great deal of good since the evidence tends to prove that such corruption and bribery as takes place emanates from the big operator whose income is of such a nature that he can easily afford large scale payments to continue his operations outside of the law."

Chances of Congressional approval of the measure by this Congress are problematic since the Senate has just undertaken a $150,000 investigation of interstate crime by a special committee headed by Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.). This committee is empowered to bring in legislative recommendations next year.

The subcommittee draft of the bill had provided for two exceptions a year to the ban on advance transmission or broadcast of what it called gambling information. This would have applied to such events as the Kentucky Derby. But the full committee struck out the exception. It was the full committee which added dog racing to the bill, originally limited to horse racing.

McFarland carefully explained that the Federal Government could not generally ban all such gambling information without "running afoul" of the freedom of the press provision of the Constitution.

"All that we can hope to do," he said, "is to hamper or obstruct the transmission of certain information in interstate commerce and thus aid State and local enforcement officers in curbing the operation of bookmaking, illegal off-the-track in all States except Nevada.

McFarland pointed out that the hearings had made clear the importance to bookmakers of receiving in advance of a race the information which the bill would ban. The Senator said that "to the extent that such information can be stopped from interstate transmission prior to a race, the large scale operator is put into serious jeopardy in accepting wagers, unless he decides to make his own odds. While this latter is a possibility, the betting public may be expected to become more and more reluctant to wager important sums on this basis."

The bill carries penalties of $1000 in fines or a year in jail, or both. It does not directly refer to newspapers but assumes the papers would not be able to obtain the gambling information if the wire and radio links were cut by law. Use of long distance phones would also be bared.

McFarland said the bill "works no hardship on any legitimate newspaper or radio station." But it would strike at "specialized scratch sheets or radio stations or newspapers catering to bettors or bookies."

McFarland noted that there is lots of betting on baseball and other sports. He said his bill would aid local officials in getting at such gambling by requiring Western Union, the telephone company and any other communications circuits to file with the FCC lists of all those leasing lines for any sports news dissemination. Names and addresses of those buying such information also would be filed and be made available to local law enforcement officials.

The Senator said "it cannot be overemphasized" that his committee was aware that the Federal Government "cannot cure horse race betting, or even the bookie problem." He pointed to accomplishments in some States where vigorous action has been taken on a local or State level. All the Government can do, he said, is to help by such a ban as that proposed on interstate transmission.

McFarland said the States can adopt similar bans on transmission within their own boundaries if their officials are "firm in their determination" to wipe out gambling.

Chicago, May 26 (U.P.).—The conductor of a streetcar that crashed with a gasoline truck was arrested today for leaving the scene of a fiery accident that claimed 33 lives.

Conductor William Liddell, 29, who escaped with minor injuries in the crash last night, was taken into custody and questioned. He was released on $100 bond for a trial to be held after an inquest.

Liddell told authorities the trolley passengers trapped themselves by jamming the doors of the burning car.

The car jumped the track at a switch and plowed into a heavy gasoline truck, which exploded into a shower of flaming fuel that enveloped the car, sprayed pedestrians and set fire to seven nearby buildings.

Liddell was seized as city and county authorities opened sweeping investigations into the tragedy.

The Chicago Transit Authority, meanwhile, released a report that Motorman Paul Manning, 42, who died at his controls, had a record of nine accidents since 1946.

However, the CTA said only two of Manning's accidents were chargeable to him, and that these were considered minor.

Pulled Door Release

Liddell left the scene of the crash last night and did not report to police in accordance with his duty, authorities said. Investigators were interested in why 32 passengers were trapped and burned in the car without being able to escape, but Liddell told them he pulled an emergency release.

The truck driver was the thirty-third victim and about 50 persons were injured. Authorities first had feared that additional victims might be found in the fire-gutted buildings, but later reported that all occupants were believed to have escaped.

Liddell told authorities he was at his post in the rear of the car when the collision occurred. He said he was stunned for a moment and then pulled the emergency switch to open the doors.

"People had jammed the doors," he said. "I pleaded with them. Then I was taken in a wave out the rear window. Others had pushed me out the rear window."

Most of the trolley passengers were burned to death in a scene of stark horror as they strained at the doors to escape. Others, their clothing in flames, tumbled out of windows.

17 In Hospitals

Today 17 persons remained in hospitals, seven of them in serious or poor condition, while at the county morgue grief-stricken relatives sought to identify the charred victims. Most of the dead were burned beyond recognition, with only a few charred bits of paper or clothing available for identification.

Coroner A. L. Brodie ordered a blue ribbon jury for June to investigate the crash, which touched off the city's "Disaster Plan 5" to speed all available police, rescue squads and ambulances to the scene. The plan is the one that would be used in an A-bomb attack.

Mayor Martin Kenelly, Police Commissioner John Prendergast, the CTA and the public safety committee also ordered complete and thorough investigations.

One phase of the crash that interested authorities was the report of several witnesses that the street car was traveling "pretty fast" when it hit the switch.

The accident occurred on South State st. where streetcars were being diverted around a viaduct underpass which had been flooded by a cloudburst.

Charles Klein, 44, who was acting as a flagman at the diversion point, said he tried to wave down the death trolley.

4 Youths Killed In Auto Crash

Warwick, Okla., May 26 (AP).—Four young people, returning home after a night of celebrating a graduation, were killed early today in Oklahoma's worst highway accident this year.

One young man was injured seriously.

Their car skidded on a curve made slippery by rain on the east edge of Warwick on U. S. Highway 66 and was hit broadside by a gasoline transport truck.

The gasoline did not ignite.

Judge Signs Order Ending Club's Charter

District Court Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut yesterday signed an order dissolving the corporate charter of the United Nations Social Club, 1132 18th st. nw.

It is the seventh after-hours spot to be shut down by action of United States Attorney George Morris Fay.

The club was found guilty of misuse and abuse of its charter on Wednesday, after Judge Schweinhaut directed the jury to so find.

One club has been acquitted of charges of operating as frauds, behind social, educational and musical charters, to violate District liquor laws. Three clubs are still to be tried.

The order directed that a receiver be appointed to sell the club's assets at public or private auction. The order also prevented the club or its officers from ever again entering any similar business.

The United Nations Social Club is in no way connected with the United Nations Club at 1701 19th st. nw.

AF Man Tells How He Choked WAF to Death

San Francisco, May 26 (U.P.).—Air Force Sergt. Lyle H. Buswell admitted today that he murdered WAF Sergt. Fairy E. Decker after a sexual intimacy, but steadfastly continued to deny he raped the 44-year-old enlisted woman.

Buswell, burly 33-year-old Air Force policeman, said the crime came as the climax of a two-day drunk over disappointment at being ordered overseas. Buswell said he was wandering around the WAF area after returning to the air base early on the morning of March 25 and finally went to the WAF orderly room where Sergeant Decker was on duty.

He said he knew the enlisted woman and that she had told him she was in the habit of writing letters late at night.

"I said, 'Hello, Sarge,' and she said 'Hello, Bussie, what are you doing here this time of night?'"

Ordered Overseas

He said he replied he had been out drinking and was concerned about going overseas. She answered, he said, that they had both "had their share" of overseas duty.

"I asked if she would like to come out to the car," Buswell said, "and she said 'I guess it's all right.'"

Once in the car, he continued, he embraced her and fondled her and they had sexual intercourse.

Later, he said, they returned to the orderly room and he asked her if she could not forget another boy friend she had mentioned to him. She said she "didn't know," he added.

"I said 'Honey, don't I mean just a little after what happened in the car outside?'"

Buswell said she answered that he was beginning to "mean a lot" to her, but it was up to her to decide about the other man.

"I said, 'that ain't no way to be . . . and she said 'You'd better get out . . . I'll see you later."

Acted on Impulse

The defendant said Sergeant Decker looked "a little provoked" and started to open the door for him to leave.

"It was kind of an impulse or something. I reached up and grabbed her throat. I squeezed with all the strength I had in me for three or four seconds and she collapsed."

He said they both fell to the floor. He arose and turned her over, tearing her shirt as he did so.

"She more or less came to life. She more or less put her hand on my right leg and then collapsed again.

"I don't know if that's when she scratched my leg or not. I didn't feel anything."

Then, he testified, he half dragged, half carried her out of the orderly room and tried to revive her by artificial respiration.

Call House Yields Names Of Notables

Chicago, May 26 (U.P.).—A vice squad raid on a Gold Coast apartment halted the operations of a plush call house with Hollywood connections and ambitious plans for the future, police said today.

The raid, police said, yielded a little black book containing the names of at least three Hollywood notables.

It also uncovered plans to convert the spacious six-room flat into a number of small individual love nests carrying such names as the Panther Room, the Pony Room and the Kitten Room, each lavishly decorated and furnished in keeping with its name.

Vice detail detectives seized the alleged madame, Mary Ann Davis, 40, who also used the name Nancy Bishop; Linda Hall, 22, and a man who identified himself as Joseph Maxwell, New York businessman.

The women were booked on charges of soliciting and being inmates of a disorderly house.

Maxwell was held on charges of disorderly conduct and lewd behavior.

In addition to the Panther, Pony and Kitten Rooms, there were to be Zebra and Leopard Rooms and a sixth love nest named for a dog.

The Zebra Room was to be decorated with yellow and black stripes, with linens to match. The Kitten Room was to be pink and blue, with blue linens. The Leopard Room was to be spotted, with pink linens.

2 Law Officers Shot to Death, 2 Youths Held

Redding, Calif., May 26 (U.P.).—Two sheriff's men were found shot to death with their own guns 40 miles north of here today and two youths suspected of the shooting were captured later at Truckee, Calif.

The bodies of Undersheriff Earl Sholes and Deputy Dan Heryford were found hidden in the brush about a quarter mile from U. S. Highway 99 near Gison, Calif., today. They had been returning from Seattle with James McKay, 18, and Robert Sturm, 19, escapees from a Youth Authority camp.

Shortly before noon, McKay and Sturm were captured by highway patrolmen 3 miles from Truckee, where the car they had stolen from the officers ran out of gasoline.

Police said the youths offered no resistance. They admitted slugging the Shasta County officers and taking their pistols and car, but did not admit the shooting, police said.

The guns and the car were recovered and the youths were held for Shasta County authorities.

Fare Cut Rejected

New Orleans, May 26 (AP).—Eastern Air Lines announced today that the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington had turned down its request for a reduction in fares from approximately 6½ to six cents a mile.

The company's release quoted Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, EAL president, as saying "Eastern is greatly disappointed by this turn of events."

Two Fort Meade Prisoners Escape From Work Detail

Area police were alerted yesterday afternoon for two general prisoners who escaped from a work detail at Fort Meade, Md., about 3:30 p. m.

The prisoners were cutting brush along the southeast edge of the reservation, according to post authorities. They slipped away from their guards and fled in the direction of Crain hwy.

The escapees were identified as Daniel Cook, 28, of Cohoes, N. Y., and William E. Gallaher, 21, of Staten Island, N. Y. Cook is a parole violater, they said.

Cook was described as 5 feet 8 inches and 130 pounds with blue eyes, fair complexion and dark hair. He has tattoos on both arms. Gallaher, 5 feet 9 and 165 pounds, has blue eyes, ruddy complexion and brown hair. Both wore prison fatigues.

36 Routed by Sulphur Bomb In Evanston Fraternity House

Evanston, Ill., May 26 (U.P.).—Twenty-six Northwestern University students and 10 firemen were made ill today by a sulphur bomb set off in a fraternity house and a police official said he suspected an interfraternity war was to blame.

The bomb, a commercial type fumigant, was discharged in the lobby of the Sigma Chi house on the university campus as students slept in their rooms before dawn.

None of the victims was in serious condition.

Police Lieut. Hubert Kelch discarded an earlier theory that the bomb might have been discharged by gamblers seeking revenge against two students who recently aided a police investigation of gambling.

"The (crime) syndicate doesn't want any trouble," he said. "They are up to their neck in it in the (Cook) county.

"We are running our investigation now on the line that it may have come from rivalry between two fraternities."

He declined to identify the other frat that might be involved.

Overpowering clouds of yellowish smoke rose through the dormitories on upper stories.

Students, roused from sleep by the cries of neighbors, stumbled through the corridors in fear that a fire had broken out.

A fraternity spokesman said Northwestern's star quarterback, Don Burson, was made sick temporarily by the fumes but was not hospitalized.

However, Burson's brother Bob, a freshman who is expected to take his place at quarterback this fall, was among those taken to the hospital. Three other football players, Don MacRae, Chuck Bennett and Pat O'Brien, were reported affected by the fumes.

Cold Sends Senator McKellar to Hospital

Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) entered Emergency Hospital yesterday for treatment of what his office described as a bad cold and a checkup. "We are not at all concerned about his health," one of McKellar's aides told a reporter.

She said the Senator had wanted to return to his hotel last night, but had been prevailed upon to stay in the hospital for further treatment and observation.

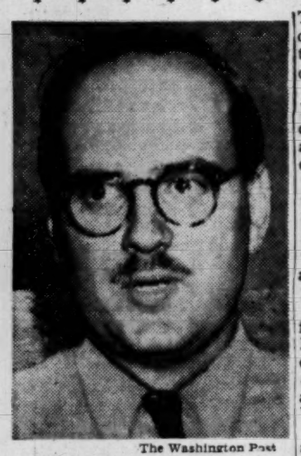
Gunman Gets $151, Misses TWA's $4000



The Washington Post
FRANK M. GALLOWAY
. . . Holdup victim

An armed bandit held up the Trans-World Airlines city ticket office just before closing time yesterday and escaped with $151 in cash.

He missed the bulk of the airline's receipts for the day. Officials said a safe contained $4000 and that another $2300 had been deposited at the bank at noon.

Ticket Agent Frank M. Galloway, 25, of 705 E. Tripps st., Falls Church, Va., told police he was alone in the office, 745 15th st. nw., when his "customer" entered at about 5:50. Galloway was preparing to close the office at 6 p. m.

The gunman first asked for information about a trip to Detroit. Informed that TWA does not fly directly to Detroit, he inquired about schedules to Chicago, and asked for two reservations for Wednesday.

"What is your name?" Galloway asked.

"Don't Move!" the bandit answered, pulling out a gun. "Give me all the money."

Galloway told police the bandit was "quite theatrical" in his demands.

The agent took $51 from a drawer and handed it over.

"That's not enough," the bandit snapped. "Where's the real money?"

Galloway said it was in a safe in the rear of the office. The gunman forced him to remove another $100 from the safe, not knowing another drawer contained the $4000, then asked:

"Is there a closet back here where I can lock you up?" Galloway said that there wasn't.

"Play it smart," commanded the holdup man. "Stay where you are and keep your mouth shut for five minutes. If you don't I'll come back and get you if it takes me 10 years."

Galloway heard the door close and immediately called for help.

He described the intruder as white, between 30 and 35 years of age, medium height and weight, neat, well dressed, wearing a brown felt hat and a brown jacket.

Police could find no other witnesses who saw the gunman enter or leave, but the description given by Galloway was found to tally closely with that of a man who held up the Northwest Airlines office at 1510 H st. nw. on April 22. That holdup yielded $101 in cash and about $500 in checks.

Galloway has been with TWA since 1946.

Two Confess 'Nose' Holdups

Florida ave. ne., May 15, when $2277 was taken.

A Clinton (Md.) general store owned by B. K. Miller on May 23, when $1040 was stolen.

In the last two cases, the bandits held up employes of the stores while wearing false noses and horn-rimmed glasses as "comic" disguises.

After they confessed to the holdups, Plumley and Lovett were taken to the scene of each, where the crimes were reenacted in the presence of witnesses at the time of the crimes.

A highlight of the arrests was the experience of Plainclothesman Wilbur Coffey, who had been planted at the Dixie Hotel to watch Lovett.

When he made the arrest at gunpoint, Coffey said, Lovett told him 'to take the shells out my gun and give it back to me."

"I'm making my living the same way as you are," Lovett was quoted as saying, apparently in the belief he was being held up.

Inspector Robert S. Bryant, assistant superintendent of police, announced at 7 p. m. last night that police were holding "two very good suspects" in the "false nose" robberies.

It was three hours later that they announced the confessions of Lovett and Plumley.

Plumley was picked up at the District line on Southern ave. se., on his way by cab to get a car owned by a friend, police reported.

He said he had just landed in an airplane from Canton, Ohio. He was carrying a suitcase, in which police found a false nose attached to a pair of horn-rimmed eyeglass frames and a white polo cap, similar to that used in the Economy Finance Co. robbery.

Police also found a .38 caliber pistol in the suitcase. It was one of three guns captured. Lovett carried one and there was a .32 caliber at Plumley's home, police said.

Police said they recovered about $100 each from the two men, who said they spent most of their loot on clothes.

Lieut. Otto P. Fuss of the Robbery Squad congratulated his coworkers on "good teamwork and a lot of digging."

Fuss refused to disclose the source or nature of information that led to the arrests, which took the two men completely by surprise.

The "detention for Maryland authorities" charge was lodged against them in connection with the Clinton general-store hold-up.

Police Seek 2 Suspects in Housebreaking

Police last night were investigating reports of prowlers who entered two Northeast Washington homes through windows early yesterday.

Pvts. A. F. Sweeney and W. E. Nolan of the Twelfth Precinct fired after a blond man who jumped from an apartment window at 1210 Perry st. ne.

The occupants of the apartment, Miss Sally Mahoney and Miss Anne Cowig, said they heard someone fumbling at the windows about midnight. They walked to another apartment and called police.

Though Sweeney and Nolan each fired after the prowler, he escaped through backyards by jumping fences. Hospital and physicians were alerted to be on the lookout for him.

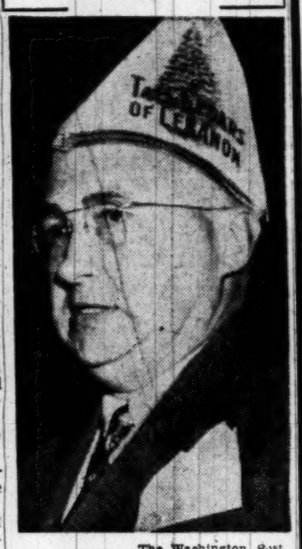
In the second case, Joseph Sewald, of 1116 21st st. ne., said the prowler left his hat and shoes in his hurry to leave.

Sewald said he awoke to see a man going through a bedroom dresser. He grabbed the intruder's heel, he said, as the man escaped through a window.

Sewald said he found his wallet containing $41 on the floor.

Three-Hour Parade

Tall Cedars March Today; 4500 in Line



The Washington Post
ARTHUR E. FARMER
. . . Opens Cedars conclave

The four-day Tall Cedars of Lebanon convention is expected to swell to full tide (to mix a name and a metaphor) today with a three-hour parade on Constitution ave.

Some 4500 members of the Masonic fun organization are expected to participate in the traditional parade starting at 2:30 p. m. at 4th st. and Pennsylvania ave. and following Constitution ave. to the Ellipse.

Three special trains are expected to bring nearly 1000 members in their tasselled pyramid caps and three bands from Baltimore. Among other bands will be one composed of children of Tall Cedars, and a champion New Jersey drum and bugle corps from Asbury Park.

Prizes for Winners

Some 40 floats and comical groups will be featured. Winning units will be given prizes at 9 p. m. at the Mayflower Hotel preceding a dance.

New officers of the Supreme Forest will be elected this morning in a business session of the forty-eighth national convention at the Mayflower.

William F. Schmidt, of Richmond Forest No. 66, Staten Island, N. Y., Senior Deputy Supreme Tall Cedar, was nominated by acclamation yesterday to succeed Supreme Tall Cedar Arthur Farmer of Trenton, N. J.

John H. McFaul, of Baltimore Forest No. 45, junior deputy, was nominated for the senior deputyship.

William E. Reichert, of Bethlehem (Pa.) Forest No. 61, and Clifford E. Bruce, of Cleveland Forest No. 70, were nominated for the post of junior deputy.

Need Only 1000 More

It was also disclosed the organization is only about 1000 short of its membership goal of "50,000 in '50," and probably will achieve it.

Also on yesterday's program were a fashion show and luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel for the ladies and an evening reception for supreme officers and vaudeville entertainment at Constitution Hall.

Earl Carter, 46, of 4911 7th st. nw., who suffered a heart attack Thursday, when the Tall Cedars visited the George Washington National Masonic Memorial and was admitted to Alexandria Hospital, was reported to be in good condition yesterday. Carter is a member of the color guard of the Washington host chapter, Capitol Forest No. 104.

The convention will conclude with divine services at 9 a. m. Sunday in the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw.

Rossellinis' Marriage Out, Vatican Says

Rome, May 26 (U.P.)—A high Roman Catholic Church official said today that Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rossellini, despite their Mexican proxy marriage, still are not married in the eyes of the Church.

The official termed the couple's proxy ceremony in Juarez, Mexico, Wednesday an "added sin" from the Church's viewpoint. He said it "well nigh excluded" the possibility of their marriage in the Roman Catholic Church.

"In view of the notoriety of the case," he said, "Miss Bergman and Rossellini are not only living in sinful adultery in the eyes of the Catholic Church, but with the publicity attached itself . . ."

The Swedish actress and the Italian director who fathered a son born to her in February, are still married to their former mates as far as the Church is concerned, the official added.

Miss Bergman has obtained a Mexican divorce decree from Dr. Peter Lindstrom of Hollywood. Rossellini has registered in Italian courts the civil annulment he obtained in Austria from Marcella de Marchis.

On Toscanini

Four thousand Washingtonians of all walks of life from the President and his family to the Government girl had a moment of perfection Thursday evening when they saw Toscanini at Constitution Hall and heard his NBC orchestra play a program of great music. The moment was not so much one of enjoyment as one of experience. When the mist comes to the eye and the catch to the throat—that is experience, a sort of physiological reaction to all the joy and all the tragedy of life, fused and drawn through the being in some strange and magical way. The event evokes the mood and unites with it. This is the effect on the person of sensitivity of the kind of concert that Toscanini gave to the Capital as the last but one appearance of his continental tour.

It is not often given to us to be party to this sensation of perfection. Once or twice in a lifetime, perhaps; as when one sees a velvet darkness creep over the Dolomites, the Grand Canyon suddenly, the Acropolis crowned in violet light, the olive trees swaying like ballet dancers on the shores of the sunny Mediterranean, a storm in full fury at sea, Pavlova in motion, the rapture of a first love, the stilled peace that steals over the soul at prayer in a noble cathedral. They put us in tune with the infinite. And then they leave a memory in the marrow that goes on and on when all the circumstances have fled beyond recall. When he left Washington, Arturo Toscanini, whose very name is a poem, endowed his audience with such a memory, and it will remain long after the sight of him, frail with the weight of 83 years, but vibrant with the spirit of his art, is dim in the recollection.

Commander In Chief

Mrs. Roosevelt has taken a high-minded attitude toward the suit instituted by a majority of the trustees of her husband's estate to determine whether he died as a member of the armed forces in World War II. She and her children deplore the action. If the courts should decide that President Roosevelt was a member of the armed forces, the result would be very substantial savings in taxes. The law provides for the refunding of income taxes paid during the war years by anyone who died in active military service, also for the refunding of substantial portions of estate taxes paid during the war years. It is clear that the trustees felt they could take no chance on being found negligent in some future day by failing to have the status of the former President tested. Yet the question they raise has been so thoroughly settled by history and constitutional doctrine that it is difficult to think of its being seriously contested in the courts.

During his lifetime President Roosevelt never suggested that he was entitled to any tax benefit by reason of his being Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy. Mrs. Roosevelt also points out that her husband held strongly to the view that the Commander in Chief "is a civilian under the law and under a healthy democratic tradition." The Constitution says that the President shall be Commander in Chief of the armed forces; not that the Commander in Chief shall be President. His function as director of the armed forces is wholly subordinate to his duties and responsibilities as the executive head of the Nation. In other words, his position as Commander in Chief is a civilian assignment. It is inconceivable to us that Congress intended to classify the President as a member of the armed forces for purposes of taxation or any other purposes. No harm will be done by testing the issue, but we cannot help thinking that it is equivalent to asking the courts to say that the sun rises in the east.

Peepshow

The lurid little sideshow for which the Senate Expenditures Committee is now seeking an appropriation of $25,000 may succeed in tempting the prurient away from Senator McCarthy's main tent. It is hard to see what other useful purpose it can possibly serve. A congressional investigation into the security danger "inherent in the employment of perverts" is at once a violation of common decency, an invitation to the most reckless scandalmongering and a piece of arrant nonsense. Nothing comparable to it has been attempted since Adolf Hitler discovered how conveniently an accusation of homosexuality could be used as the pretext for a blood purge.

Some degree of homosexuality is present in all human groups, whether they are conscious of it or not—policemen, prizefighters, file clerks, even the Congress of the United States. It becomes a matter of proper public concern only if it manifests itself in overt antisocial acts of individuals. It presents a threat to national security only in rare instances when overt expression of it—or disclosure—makes an individual in what is called a "sensitive" post subject to blackmail; the same may be said, of course, about any extralegal or unconventional expression of heterosexuality.

The supposition inherent in the proposed investigation that a congressional committee, or a security board, or any other tribunal, is capable of determining whether an individual is homosexual or heterosexual—and thereby qualified or disqualified for governmental employment—betrays a total ignorance of the whole subject. Such a tribunal can only weigh malicious or mistaken accusations against the hopeless, helpless denial of their target. Monstrous injustices must be the inescapable consequence of any attempt to do this. And so far as the public is concerned, the only product of such an attempt will be a sordid, if momentarily titillating, piece of pornography.

Security In Japan

It is good news that John Foster Dulles is going to Japan with or ahead of the military mission under Secretary Johnson. He is the President's new delegate for the peace-preparation. There is something peculiarly appropriate about the choice of Mr. Dulles. Both his grandfather and his uncle, Secretaries Foster and Lansing, respectively, had a great interest in the Orient. After his Secretaryship in the Benjamin Harrison Administration, Mr. Foster had a position as adviser to the Chinese delegation in the negotiation of the treaty of Shimonoseki which closed the Chino-Japanese war of 1894. And Mr. Lansing negotiated the Lansing-Ishii exchange of notes in the First World War which recognized Japan's special relation in China.

What are the American interests that Mr. Dulles ought to have in mind in the approach to Japan? Certainly—to reply to a letter appearing in an adjoining column—the American security has primacy. This we had previously insisted upon. The question is how best to serve that basic prerequisite to peace-making. It is a question which involves a calculated risk. If an attempt is made to force leading strings upon Japan, then the legacy might be resentment and noncooperation and a leftward slant in Japan. By leading strings we mean, specifically, bases. The object, it seems to us, is to try to get bases voluntarily. After a treaty has been consummated, Japan will be left alone and defenseless in the world, with the brooding shadow of Stalinist Russia lying across her island home. It would seem feasible in these, if not in any other, circumstances that Japan, with her freedom restored, would be happy to secure protection from America. This is the nice problem confronting our diplomacy—how to win security without forcing it and so alienating Japanese sentiment.

For the rest the thing to remember is that Japan, as the most virile nation in Asia, is bound sooner or later to stage a comeback in world affairs. Our diplomacy before the military took control of Japan was not always impeccable. It sometimes rode roughshod over the Japanese when they encountered difficulties in their relations with China. There was a disposition to think of ourselves as somehow endowed by Providence to be the special protector and benefactor of China. This corresponded with neither the facts of nature nor the facts of economics.

The special relation was Japan's with China, and Mr. Lansing recognized it. This did not mean the sacrifice, and should never mean the sacrifice, of the traditional principles in American relations with China. These are the principles of the open door and China's integrity. But, unfortunately, the United States in its relations with China has hitherto been all principle and no policy—except the policy of riding off in all directions in a manner that has encouraged only international disorder.

GM "Pattern"

Insofar as the five-year clause is concerned, The Washington Post believes that the contract between GM and the UAW makes a real and perhaps historic contribution to economic stability that other strong companies might well fellow. However, fears have been expressed that GM's generous provisions in regard to wage increases and pensions might become a pattern that unions would try to impose on other companies in disregard of differences in their ability to pay. If that were to happen, an agreement that has been deservedly praised as an example of collective bargaining at its best might be a prelude to a fresh outbreak of strikes when wage contracts expire or wage clauses in existing contracts are reopened. It is reassuring, therefore, to hear that Walter Reuther, president of the UAW, says that his union intends to "trim" its demands when it meets with other companies to negotiate wage agreements. Presumably that means that the agreement with the prosperous and highly efficient General Motors Corp. is not considered a pattern settlement applicable to smaller and weaker competitors.

Of course any agreement made by a large corporation employing thousands of workers has some effect on the future course of bargaining negotiations inside and outside the industry immediately concerned. The generous concessions made by GM may encourage union leaders in other industries to step up their demands. However, in final analysis, such demands are not attributable to the action of any one company or group of companies. They arise because business activity is at high levels, and organized labor, for the time being, is in a strategic bargaining position. So long as these conditions prevail, pressure for wage increases and pensions will continue and will be hard to resist. The GM agreement, for that matter, is a product of union pressure, but it does not follow that it will establish a pattern type of wage agreement that other companies will be forced to follow. In fact, many of them could not do so and remain in business. The company is a pacemaker only insofar as it has shown the way to avoidance of the disturbances resulting from short-term contracts by providing for wage adjustments over a five-year period to take account of an assumed increase in productivity and allow to some extent for changes in living costs.

Monkey See, Monkey Do

Reciprocity undoubtedly has its uses, but the State Department has borrowed from Romania one of the least lovable of that country's iron curtain practices. Because severe travel restrictions are imposed by the Romanian authorities on official American personnel in Bucharest, the State Department has decided to apply similar restrictions to official Romanian personnel in Washington. This puts diplomacy on about the same intellectual plane as one of those fascinating "you're another" colloquies that occur now and then between schoolboys.

It is easy enough to imagine the disagreeable realities of totalitarian life that Romania wants to hide from American diplomats. But what is there about life in the environs of Washington that the State Department feels has to be kept hidden from the Romanians? The department has ordered that no member, employe or dependent of the Romanian diplomatic mission may travel more than 35 miles from the boundaries of the District of Columbia without special permission. Are there concentration camps in the horse country around Warrenton? Is slave labor being employed in the Catoctin Mountains? Or are the serfs and peasants in the vicinity of Hagerstown so disgruntled and rebellious that we dare not let their distastes for democracy be discovered?

Perhaps the real virtues of the State Department's diplomatic coup will be found in the measures adopted to enforce it. There are six members of the Romanian mission to the United States. It will require vigilance and ingenuity to make sure that none of them crosses at any point the imaginary boundary drawn at the 35-mile-limit beyond the District's borders. Police must be alerted, informers must be assigned to strategic posts, the FBI must devote itself to this crucial problem, posses must be stationed at every roadblock along the frontier. This may well mean the end of unemployment. The Romanians will surely forgive us if we are a little inept about it at first. In Romania, where everybody's travel is limited, where identity cards and special permits are the rule rather than the exception, a restriction of this sort may be taken in stride. But here it is not yet so easy; we are just beginning to learn the patterns of the police state.

Five-Day Police

The five-day work week authorized by the House for members of the Washington Police Department, if it is followed through, can be an important aid to better law enforcement. It is unreasonable to expect police to work six days a week when other municipal employes only work five; moreover, police have many extracurricular demands on their time. Unquestionably the lack of equal working conditions has been a deterrent to the recruiting of able men—and the department has consistently contended that it is undermanned. Goodness knows, the unfavorable Washington crime statistics, especially the disgraceful assault rate, show the need for the increased police efficiency which a 40-hour week might help bring about.

The stumbling block, of course, is that the House vote is merely an authorization and carries no funds. Three hundred more policemen, and nearly one million dollars additional funds, would be needed the first year to put the 40-hour week into effect. Now, as previously when the five-day week has been mentioned, the problem is where to find the money. Obviously it cannot come from the present crimped District budget. The House has made that budget tighter by a 10 percent cut in the Federal contribution, which even before the slash was ridiculously unequitable in light of the services rendered the Federal Government.

Congress itself makes many demands on the Police Department; moreover, it has spent some $10,000 in learning the causes of crime in Washington, and one of the recommendations of the House District Subcommittee is more policemen. Congress thus has a direct interest in voting the additional money to carry out the House authorization.

MORNINGS IN BED

Often on the spring morning the boy awoke first.
He would lie in his small bed and watch the sun like a teacher chart maps over the bedroom walls.

At the first sign of movement of the man or the woman he jumped out of his bed and ran over to theirs;
he awoke the sluggard one; they fought him off laughing;
he clung, he tumbled over them in a tumult of joy,
he kissed them, he punched them; he lay quiet at last, nestled between them warmly like fingers together.

Outside the sun made misty-gold caverns in the maples;
the leaves moved rhythmically; the branches lifted and fell;
the cool morning air blew in through the opened window, and the robins sang and the song sparrows sang, and day like a gentle neighbor poked her face against the window pane.

"Who's Losing Japan?"

Your May 24 editorial on "Who's Losing Japan?" leaves many things unsaid. First, is Japan ready for democratic self-government? I doubt whether any trained, unbiased observer will agree that she is. If a peace treaty now means complete withdrawal from our tutelage of the Japanese in democratic self-government, we can expect a revival of totalitarianism in some form.

Second, there is the matter of Japanese security in case we withdraw our forces, as we must if we sign the kind of peace treaty the "restive" politicians in Japan wish us to sign. Japan is not only totally disarmed but is constitutionally restrained from rearming. What a luscious plum for the Commies! China has not proven to be the great boon they expected. Anyone familiar with the Orient realizes China's great lack of coking coal in proximity to its iron ore; its almost total deficiency in petroleum resources; its chronic shortage of food; its floods, famines, forest denudery, and then floods again; its backwardness in industrial development and technique.

Not so in Japan. An already industrially efficient people with adequate plant and equipment and with sufficient coking coal to ulitize imported ore and scrap, Japan could become the arsenal of the Commies' dream of conquering the world. The atomic bomb has rendered such bases as Okinawa untenable. Defense in depth and breadth require no less than an entire island empire such as Japan to defend the Pacific against further Russian aggression. This is the real conflict in policy between military and civilian.

As to the China market for Japanese goods—this was never as important to Japanese economy as your editorial implies. At best about 23 percent of Japan's total foreign trade was with China before the war. Japan had large markets in India and southeast Asia, in Europe Africa and in South America, to say nothing of the United States. In striving to regain this 23 percent, and the present control of China by Russia is no assurance that it can be regained, Japan must open her doors to the infiltration of Communist doctrine from China. Under the circumstances the ban is far from "ridiculous."

There will be no truce "to thinking about Asia in terms of the cold war and anticommunism" as long as the Communists continue to bore from within, to contaminate the citizenry of all countries with their damnable philosophies and to seek to win by stealth and intrigue what they fear they cannot win by force. "A Fabulous Man"

It is with the keenest sense of satisfaction that the Washington Esperantists read your editorial tribute of May 19 to Yukio Ozaki, elder Japanese parliamentarian and statesman. A get-together of Esperantists will soon convene to tender a reception to him and a distinguished son, Yukuteri Ozaki, who is a Senator of the Japanese Parliament. The elder Ozaki has been an exponent of Esperanto for years, while the younger Ozaki is an Esperantist of note who fluently speaks the auxiliary international idiom. The Ozakis, father and son, were instrumental in founding the Japanese Esperanto Institute of Tokio.

It is a most gratifying symbol and coincidence that the distinctly liberal, nonjingoist platform which characterizes the working principles of Yukio Ozaki should be in keeping with his avowed advocacy of Esperanto. A translation of your editorial welcoming him in Esperanto is being mailed to the Japanese Esperanto Institute by this writer.

Bunche's Address

May I express my disapproval of the action of Dr. Ralph J. Bunche in developing his prepared address at the "I Am An American Day" celebration into a narrowly racial attack upon the "democracy" of America? What should have been our reaction had the Vice President made a partisan plea for the support of the Democratic Party? Or had a white speaker proceeded to point out certain political and social deficiencies of the Negroes of the United States? Yet Dr. Bunche proceeds to read a lecture to the white citizens of the Nation. Was this the proper place for such a tirade? Was this an "I Am An American Day," or "I Am A White Man Day," or "I Am A Negro Day?"

JOHN A. SIMPSON.

If I were asked to interpret the remarks of Dr. Bunche on "I Am An American Day," I would say they were in substance: "A chain is no stronger than its weakest link. A government of the people, by the people and for the people, shall not perish from the earth." ALFRED L. PACE.

Leaderless GOP

Like the writer of the May 24 letter entitled "McCarthyism," I have practiced law for more than 40 years, and have voted as a rule the straight Republican ticket. While I was born in Wisconsin I feel that the State has little to be proud of in the course taken by Senator McCarthy.

It has been more impressed upon members of the Republican Party, if others I meet are fair-minded, that there is a woeful lack of leadership and has been for some years in that party. As Senator Connally is reported to have recently remarked about Senator Taft, the Ohio Senator knows more about a few things and less about many things than any other member of the Senate. The Senator rightly achieved fame in conceiving the so-called Taft-Hartley Act, upon which there has been so futile an attack by the President. But as a leader, the Senator should acquire more intelligent information about other things, for instance, the conditions in China and the Far East, the futility of supporting Chiang Kai-shek and the need to boldly reduce the aid to Europe in all places where no benefit of security to us can be a reality.

Unless a bold and fearless effort is made and soon by Republicans to do away with much of our astounding subsidies and so-called foreign aid so unjustified by our financial condition, the voters themselves may jolt those complacent, useless lawmakers by turning boldly to the left.

"Tideland Leases"

I have read with interest the editorial "Tideland Leases" in your issue of May 16. I agree with you that the wells that are producing oil from the marginal sea lying along the coast of California—as to which the Supreme Court has decided that paramount rights, including rights to oil, are in the Federal Government—should not have been closed down. But I doubt whether it can be demonstrated that the policy that has been followed, by the Federal Government—without legal warrant, as I still contend—has not been in the interest of the oil companies that, in effect, the Supreme Court found to be trespassers.

You say "We presume that he (the Attorney General) has authority to take emergency action of the sort adopted in this situation to protect the vital interests of the United States." The action that you refer to was the continuing stipulation between him and the attorney general of California, as the result of which California continues to grant leases to off-shore oil lands, the paramount right as to which resides in the Federal Government. However, you give no reason for your assumption, which seems to me to be without warrant.

The view I take is that in striking down the applicability of the Mineral Leasing Act to offshore oil lands, the Attorney General and the Secretary of the Interior threw away the only weapon that they had to use in the emergency that the Supreme Court decision created. In my judgment, this was bad administration and bad law. But having done this, it seems to me that it became the pressing duty of the President to exercise jurisdiction over these oil lands, acting probably through his Secretary of the Interior.

The Attorney General did not have, and does not now have, in my opinion, any right to exercise control over the tidelands. However, Mr. Krug did not seem to have enough interest in asserting Federal jurisdiction, at least to consult the President and determine what, if anything, he could do. His successor has not yet moved in the matter, but it may be that he is studying the situation as I have understood Secretary Chapman did not concur in all of the decisions and acts, with reference to offshore oil, that Mr. Krug was responsible for.

As I view it, whether or not the President has official duties with respect to offshore oil that he has failed so far to exercise, I agree that legislation by the Congress is imperatively desirable. But just what has Justice or Interior done to expedite legislation?

I grant that the leases granted originally by the State of California were accepted in good faith by the lessees who proceeded to operate in good faith. But they were at the expense of applicants who had not only filed in good faith for leases by the Federal Government, but in good law. I have been told by one applicant for a Federal lease that the cost to him to date has been in excess of $30,000, not including time that it has taken him to come to Washington from California on some five occasions to look out for his interests.

Those who have invested capital in State leases have already had that capital returned to them, probably with extraordinary profits, in addition. Those who applied in good faith to the Federal Government for the right to drill for oil are not having the slightest attention paid to them, either by the State of California or the United States. They have been required to stand helplessly by while others grow rich on the oil, for the right to exploit which they applied prior to the State applicants, to the only authority that had the right to issue those leases.

Meanwhile, no one in the Federal Government, so far as I know, has made any attempt to bring together those interested, in an effort to work out some compromise plan that would be fair and just to all—to that degree that it could be fair and just, considering all of the circumstances, including official acts that have amounted to nothing less than malfeasance in office. Spook Threat In Public Life

By Malvina Lindsay

Who Is Who?

"THE NEXT investigation this country needs," declaimed the indignant citizen, "is of this ghost racket. I'm warning you—the ghosts are taking over!"

The naive citizen looked puzzled. "You mean the ghost voters—as in Kansas City?"

"Leave Kansas City out of it—for once. I mean the way everybody's getting a ghost to do his brain work—and I might add his dirty work—for him."

"Have you got a ghost?"

"Not yet. But I'm being driven to it. How can I go on holding my prestige as an executive unless somebody is pointed to in restaurants, hotel lobbies as 'Blink's ghost'?"

The naive citizen looked troubled. "That mixes me up a lot."

"And, man, will you be more mixed up soon! This campaign's got more ghosts hitting each other below the belt than you ever heard of."

"But how," persisted the naive citizen, "can a voter judge a candidate who gives speeches somebody else writes?"

"He's not supposed to judge the candidate. He elects, or defeats, the ghost."

"This is getting spooky. Then the ghost goes into office?"

"Certainly. Or another ghost. Or a stable of ghosts. It doesn't matter."

"Why doesn't it? I want to see who my tax money's supporting."

"YOU DO! Well you'll never see. Ghost business has become big business. You'll never know who's doing the thinking, planning, writing, maneuvering behind the scenes. You'll never know who's digging up the poetry, anecdotes, charges, counter-charges, wisecracks, profundities, and big lies that public men are brandishing."

"That might explain something," said the naive citizen. "Take my Senator. He's an intelligent man, and a fair one—or so I thought. But some dirty things he said in his campaign—they really shocked me. Now was that his ghost talking?"

"Probably. I understand Political Ghost Union No. 307 at its last seance decided on a 'no-holds-barred' technique."

"That's politics for you."

"But this ghost infiltration doesn't stop at politics. It's getting so every big—or little—executive in Government or out has his ghost, or ghosts."

"Oh, that's how they can make so many speeches!"

"Yes, on any subject. Speeches that would take you or me days to rig up while our offices went to pot. You know what I say now when I'm asked by the Ol' Siwash grads or anybody else to give a talk? 'Sorry but I have no ghost.'"

"Well, of course big executives wouldn't have time to write their own speeches."

"I grant that. I don't mind the speech writing ghosts too much—though I'm a little tired of seeing bigwigs quoted all over the country on ideas, plans, programs, phrases that somebody in a back office thought up. But what's worse is the way persons who can't dictate a grammatical letter are turning up over night as master literary technicians—having their names in big type on the covers of books and over magazine articles."

"Say, I've been wondering," exclaimed the naive citizen, "why everybody but me knew how to write!"

"They don't. Writing is the hardest work in the world. You know who said that? William Allen White. He ought to know. He spent his life at it. Yet generals, admirals, Government big shots, business tycoons, small bureaucrats, Hollywood stars, murderesses, all persons in public spots apparently dash off newspaper and magazine articles and books on their free Sunday afternoons."

"That clears up some things," said the naive citizen. "But I'm still wondering how this guy Ditherton can be such a superman. Besides having a big public job, he's dashing from coast to coast, making speeches. Then he's writing magazine stuff that sounds—well slick enough to be the work of a professional.

"What's more," went on the naive citizen, "I always see him at the few places I have time to go. Now I see how Ditherton's literary ghost could take over his speeches and writings. And he may have an administrative ghost to run his office. But how can he show up so many places?"

The indignant citizen looked about, lowered his voice. "I have secret information you can verify by calling in a couple of detective agencies that a big new development in the ghost business is under way. It's the ghost stand-in. Now tell me, are you absolutely sure the man you've been seeing at cocktail bars is really Ditherton?"

Auto Inspection Need

I recently viewed a simulated traffic court scene which originated in the studios of WMAR-TV, Baltimore. In this particular court scene, the judge was reprimanding and passing sentence upon a Baltimorean for his failure to replace a defective windshield that resulted in a serious accident. The paradox of the whole situation is the fact that no mention was made of the necessity of periodic automobile inspections, which in this simulated case could have revealed the real culprit and prevented the accident in question. Security Survey Plan Wins New Supporters

Telegrams and letters indorsing The Washington Post's proposal for a Commission on National Security continued to arrive yesterday. The comment follows:

Harry J. Bullis, chairman of the board, General Mills, Inc., Minneapolis, Minn.—"National Security cannot be served effectively by disjointed hysterical witch hunts that often create confusion and unwittingly serve more the purposes of our enemies than our own.

"It is high time that our national security be placed boldly in perspective, with first things first, and with the emphasis where it properly belongs. This can only be acheived by a Commission on National Security, such as proposed by The Washington Post, or a similar agency that will command the respect of all our people of all political faiths, and that will map a broad domestic security policy that will bring order and purpose out of what has often bordered on chaos.

"It is time that we unseat the headless horseman that has been the internal security planning of America and place a Commission on National Security in the saddle."

H. J. Heinz 2d, president H. J. Heinz Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., said that The Post's editorial, "The Road Back to America," was most timely. He added:

"It is a new milestone in your fine record of editorial public service. A Commission on National Security could be invaluable in reasserting basic principles of decency in public conduct and in establishing guide posts for the future.

"Important as such a commission might be, it seems to me that if existing hysteria is to be quieted we must depend to a major extent upon the leadership and proper assessment of moral and spiritual values by publishers, commentators, clergy and educators.

"I have great confidence in the basic good judgment and stability of the American people. Unfortunately, by the conduct of some of its members Congress itself has been largely responsible for its present low public esteem. Regardless of party, Congress must work for restoration of its prestige.

"May I suggest that a bipartisan committee with members from both houses of Congress should be formed to cooperate on a nonpartisan basis and restate as strongly as possible a code of conduct for public officials? Such leadership was never more badly needed."

The Rev. Albert Joseph McCartney, minister emertius of the National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw., wrote from Chicago to say that The Post editorial had voiced the feelings of millions of Americans. The Rev. Mr. McCartney, now director of the Chicago Sunday Evening Club, told of the confusion in the country, and went on to say:

"McCarthy leading the pack in the most irresponsible witch hunting, coming as it does from a man occupying a position of trust and responsibility in our Government, has inclined the people of the hinterland to read any testimony that he or others may prepare with their tongue in their cheek.

"This throwing of the mantle of importance around so many recent converts from communism seems to some of us to be overdone. It attributes to them an importance on which all too many seem to be cashing in with their books and articles.

"All this caterwauling on the floor of the Senate and rehasing it over the radio creates an atmosphere of distrust concerning our Government here at home and makes of it a laughing stock abroad.

"Suppose we call a halt to this vandalism that threatens to wreck the temple of our Government. Let's call for a moratorium on this ugly name-calling and slandering of our fellow citizens. Let's put rumors, gossip and suspicion in the category where they belong and let us give the hundreds of thousands of decent respectable Government workers a break."

Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange: "No question a great deal of suspicion and uncertainty is in the air today that might be removed by a temporary commission that would have access to all the facts.

"As a permanent proposition, however, I feel we ought to have the present processes and forms of Government do the job. We must recognize the fact that a great deal of distrust exists due to the knowledge of what happened in China and at Yalta. The public has had no clear picture since the war.

"A commission such as The Post proposed would help clear the air. It need not necessarily be an appendage of government."

Reese H. Taylor, president, Union Oil Co., of California, said that The Post's editorial was a thorough going analysis of the many problems, domestic and international, that confront the Nation. He added:

"It is easy to criticize, it is entirely another matter to make constructive suggestions as to possible solution of our many problems. The positive approach offered by The Post is one that deserves the serious attention of all citizens regardless of political affiliations."

Charles J. Turck, president, Macalester College, St. Paul, Minn., said in a telegram that he had learned with regret that President Truman had rejected The Post's suggestion of an unpartisan Commission on National Security. The telegram continued:

"His statement that he is trying to run the Government under the Constitution would apparently bar any future change in existing law or procedure. Conditions in international relations have greatly changed from the days when partisan members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee could leisurely debate what our policy should be.

"We need a commission such as The Washington Post has proposed to help the President decide promptly on matters of supreme importance and to interpret his decisions to the great public. This will lift the Presidential and State Department decisions of foreign policy out of the haze of senatorial debate and above all partisan considerations. We need such a commission."

Arthur S. Fleming, president, Ohio Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio, said in a telegram that he thought a Commission on National Security could "render an outstanding service to the Nation at this time."

The Ex-Communists

By Marquis Childs

Disillusionment And "Holy War"

The ex-Communist has become a prominent feature on the political landscape. He writes, lectures, appears on radio and television, making his confessions a public and often profitable spectacle.

Childs

By the very fact of confession ex-Communists give themselves authority which has been accepted to an extraordinary degree. The careful and conservative newspaper, the Washington Star, noted in a recent editorial the astonishment many people feel at the unhesitating acceptance of the word of those who have decided to renounce the conspiracy of communism. The same editorial suggested that it would be the shrewdest possible move on the part of Moscow to order an American Communist to confess and thereby gain credence and acclaim in order to spread doubt and distrust in every reach of American life.

In The God That Failed, published recently, six prominent authors told why they had turned against Russian communism after serving the Moscow line. Perhaps the most interesting of these confessions is that of Louis Fischer, who says he was not actually a member of the party but a faithful follower over a long period that included residence in Russia.

Fischer writes of "dissatisfied, disillusioned commissar types" who are drawn toward "new and apparently more heroic forms of regimentation, toward new and apparently less brutal absolutes, or toward a more successful totalitarianism." Theirs, he says, is a shift of loyalty but not a change of heart and mind.

IT GOES without saying that the very act of becoming a Communist is outside the normal range of experience for an American. With some the motive may have been a misplaced and muddled idealism. With others the motive was undoubtedly a power drive linked to all sorts of complicated emotions.

Here one quickly gets into the clinical and, yes, the pathological phase of the Communist mess. It has produced confusion, doubt and distrust which have greatly weakened America's unity of purpose at a time when the values of Western civilization are challenged as never before.

Unquestionably some ex-Communists have contributed to our knowledge of the Communist conspiracy and how it seeks to penetrate every phase of life. In this they have performed a service.

But when they go on to assert, as some do, that only ex-Communists are capable of directing the fight against communism, then we see what Fischer means by the "disillusioned commissar types" who have merely transferred their drive for power to another field. Some of these former Communists are reported to have great influence among strategists and planners in the Pentagon. What they want is a kind of Jehad, or Holy War, to wipe out the evil that corrupted them.

THEY THUS are contributing to the conviction of an inevitable war—indeed, a highly desirable war that will rid the world of the devil of communism. With them are former officials, former ambassadors and former this and that. Some of the latter were once naively pro-Russian. Stung by the Communist nettle, they reacted in anger and outraged frustration.

These ex's are torn by bitter ideological feuds deriving from communism and its heresies. Here another psychological factor enters in.

At the outbreak of a third World War the 55,000 Communist Party members in this country would immediately be put away in camps or at any rate placed under strict surveillance. So would a certain number of Communist allies and fellow-travelers. The ex's, or some of them, would have the satisfaction of seeing their enemies behind barbed wire.

The ideological and factional warfare of communism and its heresies has contributed to the atmosphere of sensationalism, of public denunciation, the televised committee hearing, the flaring headlines. This is alien to the traditions on which the American free society is based.

The root of that tradition is respect for the individual. For the Communist the individual is merely a unit in a statistical table. Communism can plan the calculated destruction of a whole class as was done in the starvation policy in Russia in the early 'thirties; a policy intended to speed collectivization of the farms.

Similarly the ex-Communists can talk about sacrificing a generation in the war to exterminate communism. The fundamental corruption—that the end justifies whatever means must be used—remains. And it is long past time that we recognize this threat in all its manifestations for just what it is—a threat to the very existence of our free way of life.

A Communication

'Neutrality' Boosted By London Meeting

THE FAILURE of the London conference of the Atlantic Foreign Ministers is so obvious by all standards that it is hard to understand how so many people can interpret it as the nucleus of a true "Atlantic brotherhood," the beginning of "Atlantic integration," or the "birth of another political continent, a kind of new Atlantis rising out of the western ocean." Usually the course of events is kind enough to let us indulge in that sort of self-satisfaction for a few weeks, or sometimes even a few months, following any international conference before reality cracks down on us. But not so this time.

Before the different Foreign Ministers have even returned to their respective capitals the consequences in Europe of the London meeting are made clear. The German Foreign Minister, Konrad Adenauer, explains in a major foreign policy address that "the tension between the Soviet Union and the United States may lead to an explosion," his minister, Herr Storch, concludes that "Europe must prevent a conflict between the United States and the Soviet Union." In France informed sources give a new definition of a European foreign policy as "the building of a powerful third force of nations turning away from the cold war."

What does it all mean? Simply that the outcome of the London conference has increased the tendency, already noticeable in different European quarters, to consider this cold war as an "American cold war."

NO MORE ominous result could have been feared. In fact, the whole purpose of the meeting as we understood it, was to achieve a common political front of the Atlantic nations. It was to make our military alliance grow into an "Atlantic community." Instead, the emphasis on military preparations is even sharper than before, the American predominance is made to be more heavily felt, and the divorce between the American and the European conceptions of the cold war seems now to be a fact. The aim was unity, but the result is a further drifting apart.

The seeds of that dangerous trend are contained in the very communique published at the end of the conference. The communique states mainly two points:

1. We, in the West, have ample resources to resist successfully any attack. In fact, the resources of the West are 5 or 6 to 1 greater than those of the Soviet Union and its satellites.

2. The situation throughout the world calls for continuance and intensification of present policies rather than the establishment of new ones.

THE FIRST point is a most remarkable case of repetition of history. A little more than 10 years ago a meeting of the cabinet ministers of France and Britain issued a statement of confidence in victory, and launched a new slogan: "Nous vaincrons parceque nous sommes les plus forts." ("We shall conquer because we are the strongest.") You could read it in print, all over Paris, on big boards showing in red the numerous territories and the huge resources of the alliance compared with the small Germany. That period has since been called the "phony war." The awakening was soon to come.

What does the second point mean? It means, to a European, that America will continue to elaborate its own conception of the cold war, then impose it on others, and finally pay for all the expenses. That is the "continuance and intensification" of the present pattern of our Atlantic collaboration.

In short, it seems to a European that America takes practically all the financial burden on its shoulders and that, in exchange, Europe is led along the path of American policy which seems to be more and more a military defense program.

So the reaction that we witness today—"this is an American cold war, let's get out of it"—is bound to become stronger every month. And, by the same process, the American reaction will be one of discouragement and bitterness in seeing Europe so unresponsive and so unrealistic. One can readily conceive, then, the fate of Atlantic unity.

WHAT MAKES points No. 1 and No. 2 of the communique so dangerously inadequate to the reality of the present situation is this: They presuppose that there is a common understanding of what the cold war is, its future, and the methods to be used. But precisely there is no such thing. And there lies the central weakness of the West, the basis of the whole confusion.

Once we have studied clearly, and together, the numerous aspects of the Soviet threat, the order of priority, and the sharing of responsibility, then the mobilization of our superior resources will be possible. Until then we may be a giant, but we shall remain confused and paralyzed one.

Congress Gets Bill to Set Up Federal Public Works Board

A bill to create a Federal board to pass on all public works projects and to transfer the civil functions of the Army engineers to the Interior Department was introduced in Congress yesterday.

Senator Douglas (D., Ill.) and Representative Cecil F. White (D., Calif.), authors of the measure, said in a joint statement it is intended to eliminate waste and overlapping in water resource development projects and other public works.

A multimillion-dollar Rivers and Harbors bill recently passed by Congress was attacked by Douglas, when it was before the Senate, as an example of waste resulting from lack of over-all planning.

President Truman signed the measure but later sent Congress a message criticizing it. He urged again that Congress establish basic authorities for development of water resources.

Under the Douglas-White bill, a five-member board of analysis for public works would be created and would have to approve Federal public works projects before their submission to Congress.

The measure also would transfer the Rivers and Harbors and flood control work of the Army Engineers to the Interior Department—a controversial proposal that has been urged on Congress previously.

Another section would direct the Interior Secretary to submit to the next Congress a proposed revision of reclamation laws.

Douglas and White said they realized they would run into sharp opposition but said "it is high time" Congress take action.

Auto License Change Goes Into Effect June 1

The change was made in the law at the last session of the General Assembly.

Red Quiz Commission Asked

W. Richardson was doing a good job in that field.

Democratic members of the Tydings subcommittee however are understood to feel that a detached survey by a commission of outstanding citizens who could devote full time to examination of the charges and the State Department loyalty files, would provide a "way out" of their present difficulties.

It was pointed out that three members of the Tydings subcommittee—Tydings himself, Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) and Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) are up for reelection this year and must devote at least part of their time to campaigning as well as their other Senate functions.

In addition to the inevitable political embarrassment, the time consuming angle alone is said to have hampered the committee in its work.

For example, Senators personally exploring State Department loyalty files on the 81 individuals against whom McCarthy has filed charges have found it impossible to examine more than about one file a day. Tydings alone is said to have examined more than half of the files but other members have been unable to devote that much time to it.

It is just as apparent that some of the members, as the off-year campaign enters the stretch, want to be taken out of the political heat engendered by the inquiry.

A nonpartisan commission wouldn't take the issue off the hustings, but it would quiet the day-to-day razzle dazzle and refer the decisions to men "above politics" who have no personal or party election year axes to grind.

One suggestion understood to have been passed on to the President would continue the Tydings subcommittee with the understanding that the findings of the nonpartisan citizens committee would be made available to it for guidance in its final report.

Amerasia Case Called Weak By Hitchcock, Its Prosecutor

was something curious, if not very wrong, with the failure of a grand jury to indict three of the defendants, the quashing of the prosecution of a fourth, and very light fines and no prison sentences against the remaining two.

There follows a summary of Hitchcock's statement on each of the six defendants:

1. Immanuel S. Larsen, a State Department employe, appeared to have been the principal known person supplying documents to the major defendant, Philip J. Jaffe. Many of the document were clearly traced to him, and he admitted supplying some.

But he discovered, through the janitor of his apartment, that before he was arrested, FBI agents had entered his apartment and searched it. His lawyer moved to suppress evidence illegally seized, and submitted an affidavit about the entries and searches. This might have resulted in the throwing out of court of some or all of the evidence against him.

The Department of Justice, after negotiating with his lawyer, agreed to accept a plea of nolo contendere from Larsen and to recommend a small fine.

"We agreed to do this," Hitchock said, "because our case was not what could be termed a strong case, but primarily because Jaffe was the principal figure in the case and he had corrupted Larsen."

Jaffe Got Much Data

2. Jaffe, editor of the Amerasia magazine, was the principal accumulator of several hundred classified Government documents. If those documents could be used in court, "we had a better than good case against Jaffe and Larsen," Hitchcock said.

But, added Hitchcock, "We knew that once the story (of Larsen's affidavits and motion to suppress the evidence seized) broke, Jaffe's counsel would undoubtedly conclude that similar entry had been made into the Amerasia offices." Actually, the Amerasia offices had been entered by investigators several times before the arrests without Jaffe's knowledge or permission.

So, Hitchcock said, "we had not the slightest doubt that similar motions would be made to suppress everything seized at the Amerasia offices."

Realizing that chances for successful prosecution were "collapsing," Hitchcock said, he and McInerney concluded that "the only thing to do to save what could be saved" was to get to Jaffe's lawyer before he heard of Larsen's motion, and get an agreement from him.

This was done, on the basis of a fine and no jail sentence. Jaffe's lawyer, hearing next day of Larsen's motion, cried "foul," but nevertheless went through with his side of the bargain. Jaffe was fined $2500.

3. Lieut. Andrew Roth served as the man who introduced Larsen and another defendant to Jaffe, and was in frequent contact with him. He was an officer in Naval Intelligence. Several documents from Roth's typewriter or in Roth's handwriting were found in the Amerasia offices.

They were, however, of "innocuous content." Furthermore, of all the Navy documents found in Jaffe's possession none originated after a date when Larsen, who was formerly in Naval Intelligence himself, transferred to the State Department. There was no indication, either, that it was Roth who could have had access to the State Department files whence came many of the other documents Jaffe had.

Larsen, "who manifested considerable animosity toward Roth and manifested no desire to protect him, could not tell us one thing detrimental to Roth that would assist us in prosecuting," Hitchcock stated.

The indictment against him was nolle prossed. "It was my opinion then, and it is my opinion now," Hitchcock said, "that we had no case against Roth with which we could have gone to trial with the slightest likelihood of success."

4. Mark J. Gayn, a free-lance writer, was shown to have had frequent contacts with Jaffe. Many Government documents were found in his apartment when he was arrested.

He claimed he received them properly, after they were declassified, from officials of the Office of War Information. These officials corroborated the story and claimed to have had authority to release the papers.

Gayn also claimed that all of the documents he had were the sort generally available to writers for newspapers and other publications.

5. There was no evidence that Kate Mitchell, coeditor of Amerasia, was the recipient of any of the Government papers that came to the Amerasia office.

6. John S. Service, a State Department officer recently returned from China, was introduced to Jaffe by Roth. He had several contacts with him, but most appeared to be entirely social, with other persons present. On the nonsocial occasions he gave Jaffe copies of certain memoranda which he considered strictly "reportorial" and in no way reflecting Government policy or secrets.

These documents were his personal copies of reports which he had obtained official permission to keep. Another document he gave Jaffe was the sort to which any newspaper or other writer was entitled.

No Government documents were discovered in his home.

Gayn, Mitchell and Service asked permission to appear before the grand jury, without their attorneys present. They were thoroughly questioned. The grand jury voted against indictment. In Service's case the vote was unanimous, Hitchcock noted.

A rehearing on Service's loyalty, ordered for technical reasons by the President's Loyalty Review Board, began yesterday before a State Department loyalty board panel. It will continue for several days.

Preparing Sermon An Exacting Task

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

That sermon you will hear in church on Sunday morning is the result of days and weeks of hard work and planning on the part of the minister.

Though every clergyman has his own method of preparing a sermon, the steps taken by the Rev. Dr. Carl Heath Kopf, pastor of First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw., are, herhaps, typical.

First step in preparing a sermon is the choice of a theme.

In choosing a theme, a minister has four possible sources, Dr. Kopf said. He may take it from the Bible, from current events, from personal experiences, or from periods of the Christian year.

"Increasingly, after 25 years in the ministry, I prefer to take my subjects from the Bible because it has such infinite variety that one is saved from getting in a rut homiletically . . . of saying the same thing every week," Dr. Kopf explained.

The minister usually decides on his theme far in advance in order to keep his subjects balanced. Dr. Kopf, for example, already has planned all of his sermon topics up to Christmas.

After this first and easiest step, the minister settles down to work. "Every minister knows that he ought to spend three full mornings a week at his sermon—anything less is compromise," Dr. Kopf declared.

At this point he explained he must "immerse" himself in the Biblical setting of the sermon, studying the Bible, commentaries, and perhaps going to the Library of Congress for further information.

His third step, the Congregational minister said, is to make an outline of the sermon, setting forth what he feels is important in the light of the Biblical background and the current situation.

Next, Dr. Kopf said, the minister, with pen or typewriter, prepares the sermon, based on his outline. He fills it in carefully, searching for the right words and apt illustrations to make the sermon clear. Later he may cut or add to the sermon or delete it entirely.

Last, he said, the minister "lives with his manuscript so that he knows its spirit rather than its words."

"He should be so filled with it that he can preach without a manuscript. If he has to read, it becomes a lecture more than a sermon," Dr. Kopf said.

No sermon, he continued, is complete in the preacher himself. It must be a "living and vibrant" experience between him, the people and God.

With exerience a minister learns how much he should write, allowing himself to add to it in the pulpit if he is so inspired.

Sermon preparation is not without its dangers, he said. "Every preacher is tempted to say what he thinks the people will like, rather than what he knows they need. The minister realizes that if he says what may need to be said about civilization or society or personal failings he may be unpopular with people of considerable influence."

He also is tempted to be "sensational and clever rather than religious and prophetic," to let "well-meaning piety substitute for hard and careful study."

Small Moravian Church Group Here Hopes for Own Building

Once each month about 50 Moravians meet for religious services in the Baptist Building, 1628 16th st. nw.

This Washington Moravian Fellowship, organized eight years ago, represents one of the oldest Protestant churches.

It traces its history back to the ancient Church of the Brethren of old Bohemia, which was organized in 1457. The name "Moravian" was adopted after the British Parliament recognized the church in 1749 and referred to Moravia as the ancient home of the church.

The Washington Fellowship originally planned service for only four times a year, but interest in the rites was so great that they are now held monthly. Eventually church leaders hope to erect a permanent church here.

Moravian services have several distinctive customs which make them unlike other churches. Great stress is placed upon the church festivals commemorating the birth, death and resurrection of Christ. Easter sunrise services of the Moravians at Winston-Salem, N. C., and nearby, at Graceland, Md., are widely known.

Another custom is the Lovefeast, patterned after the Apostolic Church. At this service members of the congregation eat together a simple food, often coffee and buns, and join in singing hymns expressive of their fellowship and love for Christ.

The Washington group conducts these Lovefeasts twice each year, on the Sunday before Christmas and on the anniversary of organization.

Next Moravian service will be June 18. Harold Pfau, 908 North Daniel st., Arlington, Va., is chairman of the group.

St. Mary's Sets Religious Liberty Rites

The religious liberty which characterized Maryland from its settlement will be commemorated at a service at 6 p. m. Sunday at St. Mary's City.

Sponsored by Southern Maryland councils of the Knights of Columbus, the service will also recall the work of early Jesuit missionaries in the area.

The rites will be at an outdoor altar erected in 1934 by the Pilgrims of St. Mary's overlooking the bend in the river where the colonists settled 300 years before.

The speaker will be the Rev. John LaFarge, S.J., an editor of "America," Jesuit weekly, who will talk on "The Pioneer Missioners of Maryland." Benediction will be celebrated by the Rev. Louis Wheeler, pastor of St. Aloysius Church, Leonardtown.

St. Mary's, 12 miles from the mouth of the Potomac, was the site of the first Catholic settlement in the original 13 colonies.

Although Maryland had been granted to a Roman Catholic, Sir George Calvert, and became a haven for persecuted Catholics, the colony also welcomed Protestant settlers. From its earliest days it was an area in which Catholics and Protestants practiced tolerance and lived together amicably.

Passage of the Toleration Act in 1649, many authorities believe, merely placed on the law books a statute which had been followed in practice for more than a decade by the State's settlers.

Five years after its enactment the law was repealed, only to be put back into effect in 1661 after the death of Cromwell and the end of his rule in England. It remained on the books for 31 years before it was again struck down by William and Mary, who sought to establish the Anglican church in all the realm.

Plaque to Mark 1st Church Here

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Parish, will be given a historical marker after the 11 a. m. service Sunday.

The plaque, given by the National Society of Colonial Dames of America in the District of Columbia, will mark the site of the first church edifice within the future District of Columbia.

The "Chapel of Ease" of St. John's Church, Broad Creek, was erected there in 1719. Mrs. James Patten, president of the District Colonial Dames, will make the presentation.

Class to Be Confirmed

Bishop Cameron Chesterfield Alleyne will confirm a class into church membership at 11 a. m. at John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church, 14th and Corcoran sts. nw.

"Methodism's Pink Fringe," controversial article which appeared in the Reader's Digest, will be discussed by Dr. S. Paul Schilling of Westminster Theological Seminary before the Fellowship Class of Chevy Chase Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Shepherd st., at 11 a. m.

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, will preach and administer confirmation at 11 a. m. at Transfiguration Episcopal Church, 1415 Gallatin st. nw.

Memorial Day will be marked with a sermon on "The Moral Uses of Memory," by the Rev. Dr. I. S. Ernst at Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church, 1700 North Capitol st., at 11 a. m.

Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) will speak at Lincoln Congregational Temple, 11th and R sts. nw., at a laymen's service at 11 a. m.

"The Holy Spirit: Yesterday and Today" will be the Rev. Paul L. Reaser's Pentecost sermon topic at 9 and 11 a. m. at Atonement Lutheran Church, 2 Rhode Island ave. ne.

Trumpeters will march in the procession at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, 1772 Church st. nw., at 11 a. m.

Choirs from St. John's Church, Beltsville, and St. Mark's Church, Fairland, Md., will join the St. Thomas' choir in the Whitsunday festival. The rector of St. Thomas', the Rev. Harold Bend Sedgwick, will preach.

'In the Garden' Wins Favorite Hymn Contest

"In the Garden" topped a field of favorite hymns to become the top hymn of the week in Silver Spring.

Members of seven churches there were polled last Sunday on their favorite hymn.

Winning hymns will be sung at a community hymn sing sponsored by the Silver Spring Council of Churches at 4 p. m. Sunday in Woodside Methodist Church, 8814 Georgia ave., Silver Spring.

Other hymns which won high positions in the poll were "The Old Rugged Cross," "The Church's One Foundation," "Rock of Ages" and "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind." "Onward Christian Soldiers" was in the rearguard.

Participating in the poll were Methodist, Baptist, Congregational, Episcopal and Lutheran churches.

Vested choirs from seven churches will join in the program Sunday and trumpeters will be featured in one arrangement by the Woodside church choir.

R. E. Snesrud, director of the National Lutheran Chorus, will lead the singing, and Mrs. Dorothy Radde Emory will be at the organ. Persons from all churches have been invited to the sing.

Bryan Green Service Set At Cathedral

A Bryan Green reunion service will be conducted at the Washington Cathedral at 8 p. m. Monday.

Mr. Green, British evangelist, conducted a week-long mission in the Episcopal diocese of Washington in November.

The service was organized by the groups of young people who have been meeting in small groups at Washington churches since the evangelist asked them to "continue on steadfastly" in prayer and service after the mission was over.

For half an hour before the service there will be community singing. The Right Rev. Angus Dun, bishop of Washington, will preach, and a transcribed talk by Bryan Green will be played.

Fund Drive Opens Wednesday for Japan University

Clergy and laymen will attend a luncheon at 12:15 p. m. Wednesday at the Washington Hotel launching a drive in Washington for funds for the Japan International Christian University.

Bishop Abe

Former Ambassador to Japan Joseph C. Grew, who heads the Nation-wide drive for 10 million dollars for the university, will be one of the speakers at the luncheon.

Another speaker will be Bishop Yoshimune Abe, chairman of the executive committee of the Church of Christ in Japan and a member of the university council. He is an adviser to the Japanese minister of education.

Dr. Ralph E. Diffendorfer, president of the university foundation, will discuss "Christianity's Greatest Opportunity in 500 Years" at the meeting.

Citizens to Form 'Fair' Committee Next Wednesday

One hundred and twenty-six citizens will meet next Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Hamilton Hotel to set up a Citizens Freedom Fair Committee.

All were named to the committee last Wednesday at a meeting in which they protested abandonment of the Freedom Fair and set out to do something about it.

The 126, who will elect officers, reportedly represent 68 organizations and 293,000 citizens.

Priest to Baptize 16 Lumbee Indians

Sixteen Lumbee Indians, converts to the Roman Catholic faith, will be baptized at St. Joseph's Church, Morganza, Md., today.

The Rev. Michael Kavanaugh, pastor of the church, will baptize the Indians, whom he has been instructing for the past six months.

Capt. Milliken to Talk

Captain Rhoda Milliken, chief of the Women's Bureau of the Metropolitan Police Department, will speak on "Family Welfare and Juvenile Delinquency" at a meeting of the Forum class at 10 a. m. Sunday at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Mt. Rainier Baptists To Lay Cornerstone

Cornerstone-laying ceremonies for the First Baptist Church of Mount Rainier, Md., will be at 2 p. m. Tuesday at 32d and Shepherd sts.

Speaker at the program will be Dr. W. H. Baylor, retired executive secretary of the Maryland Baptist Convention, who was present when the church was organized in 1921. Masonic rites will be conducted by the Grand Lodge of Maryland.

To Direct Child Choir

Mrs. Glenn Carow will direct the older children's choir at a service at 8 p. m. at Foundry Methodist Church, 16th and P sts. nw. The Rev. F. Norman Van Brunt will preach on "When a Minimum Becomes a Maximum."

Youth Chorus Concert

The Youth Chorus of National City Christian Church will give a spring concert Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. in the social hall of the church at 1308 Vermont ave. nw.

JEFFERSON'S RELIGION was a political issue. Of it he wrote: "To the corruptions of Christianity I am indeed opposed, but not to the genuine precepts of Jesus himself. I am a Christian, but I am a Christian in the only sense in which I believe Jesus wished anyone to be, sincerely attached to his doctrine in preference to all others; ascribing to him all human excellence, and believing that he never claimed any other. The question of his being a member of the Godhead claimed by some of his followers is foreign to a view which is based on the intrinsic merits of his doctrines." He also said: "I trust that there is not a young man now living who will not die a Unitarian."

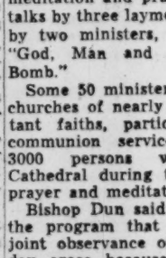
Bishop Dun Assailed By Episcopal Group

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal bishop of Washington, faces charges of "flagrant disregard" of church doctrine because he invited ministers of all Protestant denominations to a communion service at Washington Cathedral on Ash Wednesday.



Bishop Dun

Protest resolutions asking Bishop Dun's censure and discipline have been filed in New York by a "high church" group in the Episcopal Church and will be taken up by the church's governing body, the House of Bishops, at its next meeting January 1.

Charges that Bishop Dun had violated fundamental teachings of the church and that his action was "a serious affront to thousands of loyal churchmen" originated with the Maryland branch of the Clerical Club for Maintenance and Defense of Catholic Principles.

The charges were filed by the club through the American Church Union, with which it is affiliated.

The Rev. Albert J. Dubois, executive director of the A.C.U., said leaders of the Maryland group filing the protest were the Rev. Stuart Gast of St. Stephens and the Incarnation Church at 14th and Newton sts. nw.; the Rev. James Richards of St. Paul's Church, 2430 K st. nw., and the Rev. A. Q. Plank of St. James's Church, 222 8th st. ne.

Bishop Dun, who refused to comment on the charges yesterday, invited more than 500 Protestant ministers of the area to participate in the holy communion service on February 22. It was part of a seven-hour continuous service of meditation and prayer, as well as talks by three laymen and readings by two ministers, on the theme, "God, Man and the Hydrogen Bomb."

Some 50 ministers, representing churches of nearly all the Protestant faiths, participated in the communion service, and nearly 3000 persons went to the Cathedral during the service for prayer and meditation.

Bishop Dun said in announcing the program that the idea of a joint observance of Ash Wednesday arose because of the many troubles of our time. Bishop Dun is president of the Washington Federation of Churches.

"Together," he said in his invitation to the Protestant ministers, "we shall offer to God our prayers for our common humanity, for those who bear on behalf of us all the responsibilities of government, and for our churches, that they may be bearers of light in our dark time."

Laymen who spoke on current affairs at the service were Marquis Childs, columnist, and Senators Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.) and Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.).

Arlington Mass

Gen. O'Neill To Preach at Memorial

Brig Gen. James H. O'Neill, deputy chief of chaplains of the Army, will deliver the sermon at a memorial mass for war dead at 10 a. m. Sunday at Arlington National Cemetery.

Representatives of more than 100 national and local Catholic organizations will participate in the service, and will place memorial wreaths on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier after the mass.

Sponsor of the mass is the Washington General Assembly, Knights of Columbus. Richard A. Mahar, Washington attorney, is general chairman.

Celebrant of the mass will b the Right Rev. Peter L. Ireton, bishop of Richmond. He will be assisted hy the Right Rev. Msgr. John K. Cartwright, Chaplain Walter A. Mahler, Chaplain James B. Murphy and the Rev. Justin McClunn.

Alexandria Annexation Suit Docketed

A three-judge panel sitting in Fairfax Circuit Court yesterday set October 17 as the date for the start of Alexandria's annexation suit against Fairfax County.

The dte was set at a preliminary hearing before the tribunal composed of Judge Paul E. Brown, of Fairfax Circuit Court; Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of Arlington, and Judge Jeff Walter, of Accomac.

Representing Alexandria were City Attorney V. Floyd Williams and Horace Edwards, of Richmond, employed by the city to aid in prosecution of the suit. Attorneys for the county are Commonwealth's Attorney Hugh Marsh and former State Delegate Robert McCandlish, a special assistant to Marsh engaged to help the county defend annexation efforts by both Alexandria and Falls Church.

Hearing of the Falls Church suit is slated to start June 19 before another three-judge panel that also includes Judge Brown.

Alexandria is seeking about 7½ square miles of county territory to the south and west of the present city limits. The area is mostly undeveloped and, according to city officials, is sought for commercial and industrial development.

At yesterday's hearing, the court granted permission to two groups of petitioners to intervene in the suit. They were Mark and Catherine Winkler, represented by Attorney William Koontz of Alexandria and Norman Cockrell, Walter Cockrell and S. Cooper Dawson, represented by Attorney Hardee Chambliss, jr., of Fairfax.

Egg Futures Corner Assailed By U. S. Commodity Board

A corner in the Chicago egg market last October brought severe criticism of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange by the Commodity Exchange Authority yesterday.

The CEA report, that followed a long investigation, reminded the exchange of its "responsibility to prevent price manipulation and corners on the exchange."

Although egg production last fall was at high levels, the market went sharply up when, according to the report, a few traders were able to get a large proportion of the "long" contracts in October futures.

Most of the small traders were on the "short" side—having sold for a drop in view of large supplies. Hedgers also had sold to protect their investments.

In early October, as the shorts tried to get out of the market, two large dealers, both in the size group that held 100 carloads or more eggs, maintained their long positions. Later, a third big trader joined them in demanding delivery of the eggs or a settlement.

The exchange suspended trading. It forced settlement of contracts at 53 cents a dozen. The "long" traders wanted 60 to 61 cents; the "shorts" argued for 45 to 48 cents.

The price spread during the dealing, of eggs for October delivery compared with deliveries in November reached 7.65 cents a dozen on October 14. In other years it had never exceeded 3 cents.

Boy, Girl Outlast Judges to Gain Tie in Spelling Bee

HAPPY WINNERS—Diana Reynard of East Cleveland, Ohio, and Colquitt Dean of College Park, Ga., exhausted the supply of words in the longest contest in the history of the National Spelling Bees and judges finally decided that they both should be declared winners. Each received a first prize of $500. The contest was held at the National Press Club auditorium think we're going steady." Her voice became a scream: "And that ain't so-oop!"

For six hours and more, Diana and Colquitt were just numbers—Diana was No. 16, representing the Cleveland Press; Colquitt was No. 6, representing the Atlanta Journal.

There were 50 kids in all, representing 17 Scripps-Howard newspapers and 31 other journals throughout the country. The scene was the auditorium of the National Press Club. Most of the kids were accompanied by relatives.

Washington's representative was 13-year-old Audrey Matthews of 3965 R st. se., a student at St. Cecilia's School. In the first round she spelled "supersede" as "supercede." She was disqualified until the fifth round, when the judges found that her spelling was acceptable after all.

Back into the race went Audrey, her tears dried. In the eighth round, "punctilious" was her downfall—she used two "i's."

Up Against Toughies

The kids were up against these teasers among the 690 words: eleemosynary, supernumerary, charysaloid, onomatopoeia, raillery, crepuscular, crustaceology, sycophant, interstitial, prescient, meretricious, and catch this one "tergiversate." Not one reporter in the Press Club auditorium could define it, pronounce it, or spell it. (The word means to turn your back, to shift; it rhymes with "the-jiggers-ate.")

The kids made all the strange little gulps and grimmaces of adolescence in answering their spelling questions.

By 3:05 p. m. seven youngsters were left on the stage, but the master list of words had been used up.

The judges—Mrs. Wilford L. White, William Harold Martin, and Belmont Farley—turned to their dictionaries for more.

Went for Refills

The kids, who had eaten lunch, went out for refills on cokes and ice cream. From the standpoint of "logistics" (one of the words), between rounds they consumed 100 cups of ice cream and 144 cokes.

The words kept going until "charlatan" had beaten a San Francisco likely, "umbrage" the Chicago entry, and "haruspex" had defeated Jim Bernhard, 12, of Houston, Tex. He got third prize —$100.

That left Diana and Colquitt and some lulus. The tow-headed boy almost lost on "ferrule" by leaving out one "r." But a search of the dictionaries upheld his variation.

After Diana had spelled "meerschaum" and Colquitt had run through "meticulosity" the lists were gone and Mrs. White, the judge, began laughing—almost hysterically, she said afterwards.

"You just can't beat an American kid. Never!" she said. "We could have given them 'stinkers'—words nobody uses—but I don't think that would have been fair. We gave them tough and tricky ones, and they beat us."

For the record, the fathers of Colquitt Dean and Diana Reynard are high school teachers. Also for the record, Diana carried two lucky coins, and Colquitt had a four-leaf clover some place in the auditorium.

But neither background nor charms prevented them from getting feverishly nervous when the draw was announced.

Colquitt turned a light green to match his sport shirt, and chubby Diana's slip was showing.

NEEDLESS TEARS—Washington's entry, Audrey Mathews, weeps after judges said she missed the word "supersede." Then it was discovered "supercede" is correct, too, and Audrey was put back in competition. Benson Alleman, the pronouncer, consoles her. She went down in the eighth round on "punctilious"

Oil Imports Curb Opposed in Note By Farm Bureau

The American Farm Bureau Federation yesterday opposed a move by the coal, railroad and independent oil production industries to halt or limit the importation of cheap low-grade oil.

Witnesses before a Senate subcommittee have testified that 25,000 miners and 25,000 railroaders have been thrown out of work because of the oil imports.

Yesterday the Farm Bureau group wrote Senator Matthew M. Neely, chairman of the subcommittee, declaring that reduction of petroleum imports would not be for the best interest of this country.

The bureau said that exports at a high level are necessary to maintain American agriculture, and that if this country is to export, it must permit imports.

Prince Georges School Plans May Be Cut

Prince Georges County may have to curtail its school building program unless the county can get construction bids that are more in line with estimated building costs.

This was indicated yesterday by Superintendent of Schools G. Gardner Shugart as he disclosed that all bids for two school additions were refused as being too high.

Low bids submitted to the board of education for additions to the Lanham and Wildercroft Elementary Schools were $95,000 and $156,244, respectively, he said. Estimates of the costs of these projects were figured earlier at $60,500 and $120,000.

If bids for two more projects, to be opened June 20, also are found to be too high, authorities will consider increasing allocations for the more needed projects and proceeding with a smaller program, Shugart said. To accomplish this, the board of education must obtain concurrence of the couny commissioners and the State Board of Public Works.

The bids set for opening June 20 are for adding four classrooms to the Cheverly Elementary School and a multipurpose room to Camp Springs.

Board Denies Green's School Cost Figures

The Arlington School Board said yesterday that figures on school construction costs, released earlier this week by County Treasurer John Locke Green, are "false."

Green had warned the County Council of Parent-Teachers Associations to "go slow" on a proposed $8,700,000 school bond issue. He claimed estimates on which the proposed program is based were inaccurate, and said present elementary school construction costs average $53,512.70 per classroom—not $33,000, as the council estimated.

School Board Chairman Mrs. Elizabeth P. Campbell, replied to Green's charges yesterday by letter.

She said that the cost of nine school buildings, now finished or under construction, amounts to $3,548,845.09. Dividing this total by the 94 classrooms included gives an average cost per room of $37,753.67, she said.

Fairfax County Teachers Back $10½-Million School Program

The teachers of Fairfax County, 429 strong, have indorsed the 10½-million-dollar bond issue for construction of additional school facilities in the county.

They unanimously passed a resolution favoring the bond issue at a meeting of the Fairfax Education Association Thursday at Fairfax High School.

Members of the association also resolved to let the citizens of Fairfax County know: "That overcrowded classrooms and continuation of half-day sessions can only lead to excessive mental and emotional strain for both teachers and pupils."

Expressing appreciation to Supt. Wilbert Woodson and the Fairfax County School Board for "the efforts they are making to relieve the situation," the teachers voted approval of the proposed building program, and of its administration by Woodson and the board.

Meanwhile, the county's Taxpayers Advisory Association, through its president, Edward T. Gibbons, came out yesterday in opposition to the bond issue on the grounds that it is both "unsuitable" and "unrealistic."

In a public statement on its attitude, the association conceded that new schools are badly needed in the county and that money to meet the need must be borrowed. It contended, however, that the figure specified by school officials "has no relationship to a realistic construction requirement."

The statement said the $10,500,000 is "a lump sum arrived at by compromise at a public meeting held in Oakton on December 2, 1949." It charged further that the school board has no plans, blueprints or selected types of construction for the expansion program which the bond issue would make possible."

The association also pointed out that the bond issue was planned to provide facilities only through the 1950-51 school year. "Another program for the future can be expected," it contended.

In the same statement, the association also attacked a proposed $980,000 bond issue for enlarging the county courthouse, to be voted on the same day as the school issue.

It said the courthouse expenditure is "neither an economy nor a necessity at this time," and charged the proposed expansion of the building is "beyond existing shortage of office space and other facilities."

Dog, Caught by Pipes, Causes Gas Leakage

The Silver Spring rescue squad early yesterday extricated a small dog caught between service pipes in the rear of a gas furnace at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blonder, 9600 Evergreen st., Silver Spring, Md.

Snowball, suffering from distemper, was having fits when it rammed its head between the pipes, Mrs. Blonder said. He caused gas to escape, firemen said. County police had to destroy the pup.

Chisox Fire Onslow; Mack Shakes Up A's Staff

Corriden, Former Yank Coach, New Manager

Chicago, May 26 (AP).—Manager Jack Onslow was fired tonight by the Chicago White Sox and John (Red) Corriden, serving his first year as the team's coach, was appointed his successor.

The announcement was made jointly by the Sox' 24-year-old vice president, Charles Comiskey, and General Manager Franke Lane. In a prepared statement to the press, following the Sox 2-1 loss to the Cleveland Indians, they said Corriden would manage the team for the balance of the season.

The White Sox, who finished sixth in the American League last year when the 60-year-old Onslow was borught up as manager from the Memphis farm team, had won only eight games in 30 starts this season to be lodged in the cellar.

Onslow was given a two-year contract as successor to Ted Lyons at the close of the 1948 season. In the last campaign, the Sox won 63 games while losing 91.

Corriden is a 62-year-old baseball veteran

In the middle 1930s he served as cub coach under Mgr. Charlie Grimm and later became a coach with the New York Yankees. Last year he was an assistant to Bucky Harris, then pilot of the San Diego Club in the Pacific Coast League.

Corriden, a native of Logansport, Ind., was appointed a White Sox coach last winter after Bing Miller was released.

Onslow, displaying deep bitterness over his ouster, declared:

"They won't second guess me any more. As far as I'm concerned Lane can manage the team and Comiskey can coach at third base—or any place else he so desires."

INTERHIGH HEROES—Paul Sheats, 17, of 2401 Calvert st. nw., is carried on the shoulders of his Wilson High School teammates after Wilson won the Interhigh track championship yesterday at McKinley Tech. Sheats was anchorman on Wilson's mile relay team. Phil Stroup, right, anchorman for Anacostia, crosses the finish line first in the mile relay but Anacostia was disqualified in this event. Stroup nonetheless had a winning day, finishing first in the 220 and 440 dashes, and the broad jump. (See Story on Page 13.)

Yanks Blank Macks, 2-0; Page Saves It

Philadelphia, May 26 (AP).—Joe Page stifled a Philadelphia ninth-inning rally with one pitch and the tying runs on base tonight, as the New York Yankees defeated the Athletics, 2-0, and ran their winning streak to nine straight games.

Tigers Thump Browns

St. Louis, May 26 (AP).—Hal Newhouser allowed the St. Louis Browns but six hits tonight to give the Detroit Tigers an 11-2 victory sparked by the big bats of Vic Wertz and George Kell. Wertz got a homer with two on in the first inning while Kell collected a double and triple and drove in four runs.

The second game of the scheduled twilight-night doubleheader was rained out.

Gavilan Breaks Small's Jaw, Wins

New York, May 26 (AP).—Cuban Kid Gavilan, picking his shots like a real pro, snapped his losing slump tonight with a lopsided 10-round decision over Georgie Small of Brooklyn at Madison Square Garden. Gavilan weighed 151¾, Small 158¾.

In the dressing room after the fight it was revealed that Small's left jaw bone was fractured in the fourth round.

Greenbelt Shoot Today

The second annual spring rifle championships, conducted by the Greenbelt Gun Club, open at 11 a. m. today at Greenbelt.

The two day meet is expected to draw about 80 of the best men and women rifle shooters in the Middle Atlantic States, headed by Defending Champion Chief Petty Officer Ralph Edwards of Patuxent, Md.,

Dykes, Cochrane Move Up; Son Is Demoted

Philadelphia, May 26 (AP).—Connie Mack named two of his old stars to key positions in the Philadelphia Athletics high command tonight in a sweeping shakeup designed to get the club back into the American League pennant race.

Mickey Cochrane was appointed general manager with complete charge of the farm system and all playing personnel. Jimmy Dykes was named assistant manager, succeeding Earle Mack, who becomes chief player scout.

Cochrane, catcher on the A's championship clubs of 20 years ago and former manager of the Detroit Tigers, will give up his job as coach—a position he came out of retirement to take this season.

Dykes, who played with Cochrane on Mack's great teams two decades ago and later managed the Chicago White Sox, moves up from coach, a position he has held since returning to the club last year.

The 87-year-old Mack remains as manager of the club but for the first time since he took over as pilot of the Athletics 50 years ago he has delegated much of the duties of running the team to other men.

The changes become effective immediately.

Mack's announcement said:

"In an effort to bolster the playing personnel of the Athletics, Earl Mack will assume duties as chief player scout. Earle will leave immediately to tour the A's farm clubs.

"Jimmy Dykes will become the new assistant manager.

"Mickey Cochrane has been named general manager and will give up his duties as coach.

The A's are mired deep in the second division 12 games off the pace set by the Yankees. Up to tonight the A's had won 11 and lost 21.

Mack has not been in good health. A stomach ailment has forced the veteran owner-manager to miss a number of games and son Earle had been directing the club from th bench.

Nats Pitch Marrero Against Bosox in Twi-Night Opener

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The Nats, burdened with a two-game losing streak, will turn with considerable hope this evening to their comradely Cuban, Conrado Marrero, and his lively curve ball.

Marrero will take el curvo to the mound at 6:30 o'clock in the first piece of the twi-night double-header with the Red Sox at Griffith Stadium. With Ray Scarborough poised for the second game, Manager Bucky Harris is wel larmed for the Boston club's invasion.

It will be Marrero's first return to Griffith Stadium fans since assembling two victories in his only major league decisions. He achieved starting pitcher status when he licked the Tigers in Detroit, 6-2, last week.

That man Scarborough, well-known nemesis of the Red Sox, is a natural pitching choice for the night game. In two starts against 'em this season, he shut them out once, and dropped a 3-0 decision in Boston.

The Red Sox are expected to start a pair of their left handers, Mickey McDermott and Chuck Stobbs, in the double bill, although Joe Dobson may replace Stobbs

In their only previous appearance of the season here, the Red Sox dropped a 3-0 decision to Scarborough, but they return as a more powerful club since the recall of Walt Dropo, the giant first baseman, from Louisville. Dropo has been crowding no less than Ted Williams for the league lead in homers.

Harris and President Clark Griffith were in consultation yesterday devising means to add more hitting to the Nats' lineup, and plotting the acquisition of another outfielder, a right-hander.

Harris is hoping chiefly, however, for the re-awakening of Eddie Robinson whose hitting has been of the feeble sort most of the season. He is perceiving signs of Robinson's early recovery from his slump.

It will please Harris, too, when Irv Noren's physician permits his return to the lineup. The big outfielder has been taking hitting practice for nearly a week since his appendectomy, but is not at playing strength yet. Early next week will be the date of Noren's return.

The Merrill Combs-Sam Dente shortstop-second base combination has pleased Harris with its defensive work, but he is ready to sacrifice some skill on defense to inject more hitting power

Against Boston's southpaw pitching, Harris may revert to his early season infield of Al Kozar at second base and Dente at shortstop. Bob Ortiz will replace Gil Coan

Terps Bow, 7-1, After 4-3 Win

Greensboro, N. C., May 26.—University of Maryland nosed out Virginia Tech, 4-3, and lost to Wake Forest, 7-1, as the Southern Conference double elimination baseball tournament opened here today.

The Terps face once-beaten Clemson tomorrow afternoon in the semifinals, the loser being eliminated. The winner will face Wake Forest for the championship.

The Deacons won a morning game from Clemson, 14-2, and the Tigers came back at night to eliminate Virginia Tech, 1-0.

Maryland won its game behind the nine-hit pitching of Bob Soderberg. Gene Emsweller knocked in the winning run in the eighth with a single which scored Jake Graham.

Jameson Leads With 70, Alice Bauer 2 Back

Newton, Mass., May 26 (AP).—Betty Jameson of San Angelo, Tex., shot a 6-under-par-70 today to take the lead in the opening round of the $3000 Women's Eastern Open golf championship tournament.

Alice Bauer, 22-year-old elder of the Bauer sisters, stuck close behind her fellow Texan with a 72.

Hoyas' Mitchell Qualifies in IC4A

New York, May 26.—Hurdler Billy Mitchell and Half-Miler Joe Deady of Georgetown today qualified for the finals of the IC 4-A track and field championships which will be staged at Randalls Island Stadium tomorrow.

The Hoyas' one-mile relay team of Vince Cino, Dave Boland, Pat O'Brien and Mort Kane failed to make the grade.

New York U. placed the most men in tomorrow's finals, 12. Michigan State placed 10 and Yale 9.

Stranahan, Chapman in British Final

St. Andrews, Scotland, May 26 (AP).—The Americans barred the British from their own amateur golf tournament today for the second time in four years.

Dick Chapman and Frank Stranahan hung up the "U. S. Only" sign on the 65-year-old trophy. They'll meet over 36 holes tomorrow on the historic St. Andrews "old course" to decide which will take the cup back to the United States.

Stranahan squelched the last British hope with a decisive 4 and 3 verdict over veteran Cyril Tolley, who won this title back in 1920—three years before Frank was born.

Chapman kept alive his fifth bid for the crown by outlasting Jim McHale, the long driving former pro from Philadelphia, one up in the other 18-hole semifinal.

British Amateur Golf Results

St. Andrews, May 26 (AP).—Results of today's matches in the British amateur golf championship:

Quarterfinals

Frank Stranahan, Toledo, defeated A. B. Taylor, St. Andrews, 5 and 4.
Dick Chapman, Pinehurst, N. C., defeated Donald Cameron, Scotland, 3 and 2.
Jim McHale, Philadelphia, defeated F. G. Tait, Kenya, South Africa, 1 up.
Cyril Tolley, St. Andrews, defeated Joe Carr, Ireland, in 20 holes.

Semifinals

Stranahan defeated Tolley, 4 and 3.
Chapman defeated McHale, 1 up.

Bob Simmons Takes Party Of Eight to Bob Hope Show

Bob Simmons, a Texan, Touchdown Clubber and a busy guy in boys' club work, did a nice thing yesterday.

He purchased $40 worth of tickets to take a party of eight to the Bob Hope Celebrities show at the Armory the night of June 3, a Saturday.

In a way, Bob was saying to his many friends around town: "This is the type of thing I go for. It's a swell show and the kids derive the benefits."

Step up, gentlemen. Don't let that guy from Texas outdo you.

The Hope-Celebrities show will be held in conjunction with the National Celebrities golf tournament, June 3-4, at the Army Navy Country Club. Hope will emcee the big stage production at the Armory, with many of the golfing celebrities taking part in the show.

The golf field will include Hope, Danny Kaye, Arthur Godfrey, Babe Didrikson, Marlene and Alice Bauer, Patty Berg, Ben Hogan, Gene Sarazen, Henry Picard, Milton Berle, Walter Winchell, Toney Penna, Charlie Justice, Frank Leahy and dozens of other famous people.

Tickets for the golf tournament at the Army-Navy Country Club and for the Hope-Celebrities show, are on sale at the following places: Champion Sports Shop, 816 13th st. nw.; Fairway Sports Shop, 1328 G st. nw.; Sports Center, 8th and D sts. nw., and in the lobby of The Washington Post, 1337 E st. nw.

—Decides to Join Oakland—

Wakefield Moved by Happy's Fatherly Advice, Bible Quotes

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 26 (AP). Outfielder Dick Wakefield changed his mind tonight saying he was leaving for Oakland, Calif., "within 48 hours" to join the Pacific Coast League Club there.

The major leagues' problem child, who has said for weeks he wouldn't step down to the minors, changed his mind after Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler talked to him like a father.

After that telephone interview Wakefield said:

"Chandler has been wonderful to me. He has given me some very sound advice.

The New York Yankees, who bought Wakefield from the Tigers and tried a few weeks ago to trade him to Chicago's White Sox in a deal that didn't go off, sold his contract to Oakland.

Wakefield appealed to Chandler, and the Commissioner advised him to accept the sale. Chandler had no other comment on his conversation with the player.

However, it was learned the Commissioner did do these things:

Convinced Wakefield that his future welfare was a matter of concern to the Commissioner.

Anacostia 2d; Stroup Gets 3 Victories

By Don Lief

Finishing with 11 points in the last two events, Woodrow Wilson won the fifty-third annual Interhigh Track and Field Meet yesterday at McKinley Tech with 47½ points. Second place Anacostia totalled 41 points.

Coolidge was third with 28 1/3 points. Other scores were McKinley, 24¾; Roosevelt, 20; Central 18½; Eastern, 16¾; and Western, 12.

Dick Semple's first place and Chris King's fifth in the high jump put the Green Tigers on top, 42½-41, and Wilson was declared winner in the mile relay when Anacostia's first was nullified on a foul by Ken Thornton, running for injured Jack Rea.

Even if Anacostia had taken the final event, Wilson would have finished the afternoon with a ½-point margin, 46½-46.

Thornton, previously an upset winner in the mile run over Pete Thiede, of McKinley, tripped Wilson's Frank Caldwell as both were crossing into different lanes to pass the baton. Rea's leg was spiked in the 440-yard dash.

Phil Stroup, of Anacostia, finished his high school track career with three firsts; he won the 220-yard dash in 23.2, the 440-yard dash in 51.9, and the broad jump with a leap o. 21 feet, ½ inch.

Western Upsets Wilson Golfers

Western kept its Interhigh Golf championship alive yesterday by upsetting previously undefeated Woodrow Wilson, 6-3, at Army-Navy Country Club.

Wilson thus completed its regular slate with a 9-1 record. Western has 8-1 with a match scheduled against Coolidge next Friday at Congressional. If Western wins, it will play off against Wilson June 6 at Army-Navy.

Ball (W) defeated Dedrick, 6 and 5; Rose (W) defeated Feder, 3 and 1; best ball, Western, 6 and 5. Tulley (W) defeated Dubit, 4 and 3; Rufner (W) defeated Coward, 2 up; best ball, Wilson, 1 up. Kurth (WW) defeated Heock, 7 and 6; Stehman (W) defeated Best, 3 and 1; best ball, Wilson, 7 and 6.

Maryland Bars Mutuel 'Doctor' For 5 Years

Annapolis, Md., May 26 (AP).—A Californian was ordered today to keep himself, and his clever ways of beating the horse races by forging winning tickets, out of Maryland for five years.

Bascom Gale Swinney, 24, of San Mateo, Calif., was fined $150 and sentenced to five years on a charge of getting money under false pretenses. Judge Benjamin Michaelson suspended the prison sentence on condition that Swinney get out of the State.

Swinney was arrested April 7 at the Laurel race track when he tried to collect $230.30 on a "doctored" ticket. He admitted he had succeeded the day before in collecting $106 by taking the number off a losing ticket and substituting the winner.

Swinney also was ordered to pay Laurel back the $106.

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz

Lack of Travel Funds Threatens Delay in U. S. Loyalty Probes

Loyalty investigations of Federal workers by Senator McCarthy are threatened with delay for a peculiar reason.

The reason is: Civil Service has exhausted its funds to pay travel costs of its investigators and Loyalty Review Board members who will hear the cases.

The travel money may be on its way, however. The House several days ago approved a transfer of $63,000 to Civil Service's travel account. The deficiency bill carrying the provision is before the Senate Appropriations Committee which isn't in any hurry to handle the measure. Until the bill is passed, Civil Service can't legally spend money for travel.

Civil Service ran out of travel funds on May 22. Many of its investigators and inspectors who are required to travel extensively have been at a standstill most of this week.

The President asked the unpaid Loyalty Review Board to study McCarthy's charges against Federal workers and they agreed. The board will be forced to delay hearing some of the cases until travel money is available to its members.

Commission Chairman Harry B. Mitchell yesterday was trying to decide whether to release the money for travel in anticipation of congressional approval of it, but legal experts warned he'd be personally liable for it if the commission failed to get the money.

NO PAYLESS PAYDAYS: Federal and District Government employes will be paid regularly for the remainder of this fiscal year. The President yesterday signed into law an emergency resolution to allow many agencies to draw on the Treasury through June 30 to meet payrolls, pensions, etc. Funds to meet these costs are carried in the House-approved deficiency bill now before the Senate Appropriations Committee.

AGRICULTURE: A new employe council has been set up in Agriculture to advise T. Roy Reid, the personnel director, on employe interest and welfare. It's a constructive step. The 16 members and their alternates are:

Donald J. Simon and Anna M. McNutt, Secretary's office; Francis R. Donohue and Harry W. Henderson, P&MA; George H. Goldsborough and Wells E. Ludlow, Farm Credit; Estevah E. Webb and Francis Harrell, Farmers Home; Glenn W. Sitz and Robert W. Hays, Crop Insurance; Galen Yates and Richard Thomas, Information Office; Emory M. Pittinger and Erastine E. Puryear, Library; Paul W. Smith and Shelby A. Robert, BAE; William H. Rohrman and Alice I. Fray, Foreign Agricultural Relations; Mary Connor Myers and Aram G. Panossian, Solicitor's Office; Victor R. Roswell and Roscoe W. Morgan, Research; Cannon C. Hearne and Howard H. Williamson, Extension Service; Catherine Doherty and H. J. Eberly, Forest Service; T. J. McLaughlin and Rex D. Thomas, Soil Conservation; Alta B. Hamlin and John Telia, REA, and James Coker and Helen M. Sachleben, Commodity Exchange.

JOBS: Civil Service is ready to announce exams to fill these jobs in the Reclamation Bureau's field offices: superintendent, chief dispatcher, and chief of technical analysis section, $6400 to $7600. Also coming up are these tests to fill openings in Defense agencies here and nearby: chemist, metallurgist, physicist, engineer and mathematician, $3825 to $10,000 starting salaries. An exam is open for position classifier, $3825 to $4600, to fill jobs in nearby States.

Civil Service has ordered the firing by July 31 of all nonstatus junior agricultural assistants, except statisticians. Its order is Nation-wide. It has reminded agencies that a full advance notice of at least 30 days must be given before veterans can be either demoted or fired. The Court of Appeals recently ordered back pay for a veteran who had been given only 29½ days notice. Civil Service has a test open for physical therapists, $3100 to $3825, to fill openings in the VA hospital here.

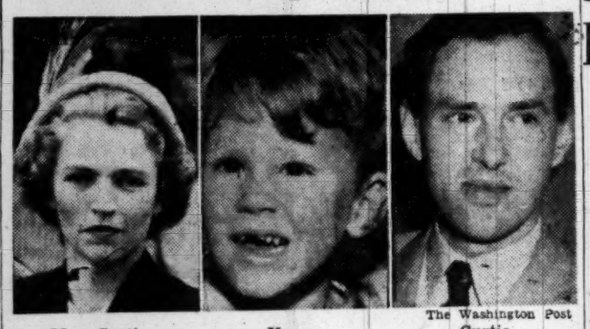
Boy Father Abducted Given To Mother Temporarily



Mrs. Curtis — Henry — Curtis (The Washington Post)

. . . Divorce action to determine boy's future

Mrs. Dorothy Curtis, whose 4-year-old son was whisked to Montreal by her estranged husband recently—then snatched back by the mother—yesterday was awarded absolute custody of the boy until the couple's divorce case is settled.

At the same time, Arlington Circuit Court Judge William Medley found her husband in contempt of court for the whirlwind abduction. He imposed no penalty, however, on the former British army captain, William T. Curtis.

Curtis, who now lives at 5701 N. 10th rd., Arlington, flew to Montreal with the boy May 14 during the weekly 3-hour visit allowed him by court order.

Judge Medley yesterday continued a previous order issued May 19, after the abduction. It gives Mrs. Curtis absolute custody of the boy, William Henry, forbids her husband from seeing him, removing him from Arlington, or annoying, threatening, or molesting either the child or its mother in any way.

Mrs. Curtis, a nationally known figure skater under her maiden name of Dorothy Snell, now lives with her parents at 25 Poplar ave., Takoma Park, Md.

During her testimony yesterday, Mrs. Curtis quoted her husband as saying, when found with the boy in Montreal, "I'll do it again and again and again. I'll never give you any peace."

Curtis freely admitted the Montreal trip on the stand. He said he didn't "completely" understand the court order, which allowed him to see the child only once a week.

Death of Bolling Soldier Called Homicide, Blamed on Civilian

SERGT. VERNON STALEY
. . . Died in altercation

The death of a Bolling Air Force Base soldier, who died Thursday night during a "clean" fist fight with an unnamed civilian in an Accokeek, Md., garage, was labeled a homicide by Dr. James I. Boyd, medical examiner for Prince Georges County. Dr. Boyd, after an autopsy, said T/Sergt. Vernon Staley, 32, died of cerebral hemorrhage.

Police said they will place a charge of manslaughter against the civilian.

During the fist fight, Staley slumped to his knees, then fell forward to the garage floor. He was taken to the home of Dr. Edwin Lane about 8:15 p. m. and was pronounced dead a few minutes later.

Dr. Boyd said yesterday that he could not determine whether Staley was fatally injured by a blow or by his head striking the garage floor.

Bolling officers reported that Staley had celebrated his birthday Thursday with two other soldiers, Staff Sergt. Horace Tonsman, 27, and Staff Sergt. Carleton Hoy, 33, by having "a few beers."

When they neared Accokeek, Staley's car ran out of gas. The other two started out on foot to hunt a garage, while he remained behind. When they returned, he reported he had had an argument with a man, who had refused to push the car, Bolling officers said.

When they finally drove into Accokeek, Staley saw the civilian again, and jumped out of the car. The fist fight then followed.

"It was a clean fight, but someone just got hurt," Bolling investigators said.

Sergeant Staley, who lived at 4538 3d st. se., has a wife, Mrs. Ethel Jane Staley, and three children, John William, 4 years, Joseph, 2 years, and Kathleen, 3 months. A native of St. Louis, Mo., he was attached to the 1111 Special Air Mission Squadron at Bolling Air Force Base and had served in the Armed Forces nine years.

Alexandria Man Given Life For Slaying Wife, Daughter

Herbert D. Alexander, jr., 23-year-old Navy veteran, was sentenced in Alexandria yesterday to life imprisonment for murdering his wife and baby daughter October 22, 1948.

Alexander

Commonwealth's Attorney Howard W. Smith, jr., who recommended the sentence to Corporation Court Judge William P. Woolls, said afterward that Alexander can never become eligible for parole, under a Virginia act of 1942.

The slender, sallow youth pleaded guilty to two charges of first-degree murder in a surprise move April 14. As Judge Woolls pronounced sentence yesterday, he showed no emotion. He was immediately led from the courtroom by City Sergeant J. Frank Moriarity, to serve the sentence at Virginia State Penitentiary.

Wearing a white shirt open at the collar and gray trousers, Alexander sat expressionless as Detective Inspector Russell A. Hawes related details of his confession to Judge Woolls a few minutes before sentencing. Hawes told how the youth reenacted the slaying scene, explaining that he had not originally intended to kill his daughter but decided "as long as her mother's dead she might just as well die too."

Alexander was arrested in his apartment at 3908 Elbert ave., Alexandria, after telephoning police to "come and get me, I've just killed my wife and baby." Police found the body of his wife, Gloria, 21, lying on the bedroom floor; the baby, Bonnie, 18 months, lay dead on the bed. Both had been strangled.

Alexander, bleeding slightly from a wrist cut, told police he tried to commit suicide but after inflicting an ineffectual wound, "lost my nerve," Hawes said.

The youth, who was treated for a mental disorder while in the Navy, was sent to the Southwestern State Hospital at Marion, Va., for observation in November, 1948, but was returned to Alexandria last December after hospital authorities reported him "not now insane and able to stand trial."

14 Civilian Families Lose Homes in Navy's Project

Fourteen more civilian families yesterday were ordered to leave the Navy Bellevue housing development in Anacostia.

The order came when the Government won a motion to take possession of the Bellevue home of John A. Kearney. The 13 other families had agreed to abide by the decision in Kearney's case.

The Navy took over the 601 single-family units in February, 1948. In July, 1949, it asked the 350 civilian families to move out to be replaced by enlisted personnel at the rate of 30 families a month.

Kearney was ordered to leave in October, 1949, and the Government filed suit for possession of his home in January, 1950.

After yesterday's action, 111 civilian families remain in the development.

The two-bedroom homes rent for $43 a month, including utilities.

Attorney Herman Miller, representing the tenants, argued that the Navy took over the project without authority and could not evict civilians.

Assistant United States Attorney Stafford Grady argued that the Navy had the necessary authority, and Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott agreed with him.

Miller said the 14 defendants would appeal.

But Grady said the tenants would each be required to post appeal bonds, to guarantee payment of rent. More than 50 law suits have stemmed from the Navy's efforts to take possession of the project, and the Government has lost none.

Water Loan Bill Passed By Senate

White House Gets Measure Calling for $23 Million Over Next Ten Years

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Congress yesterday finished the first legislative move toward a vast expansion of the District water supply system.

By unanimous action, the Senate approved and forwarded to President Truman a bill authorizing up to 23 million dollars in Federal loans to the District for improvements in the water supply system during the next decaded.

Congress would authorize the loans by year-to-year action on the District budget. The Treasury would set interest rates.

To Make Quick Request

District officials plan to ask Congress, after the President signs the bill, to make the first loan of about $1,405,000 available in the coming fiscal year. During the following five years, the District would ask loans of between 3.5 million and 4.5 million a year, and smaller amounts in the following four years.

The loan program would run through the 1960 fiscal year; then the District would revert to a pay-as-you-go-system for water improvements, and at the same time repay the Federal loans over the following two decades.

The water system now is geared to supply about 185 million gallons of water per day; and some days last summer it delivered up to 240 million gallons—an overload which engineers told Congress threatened the breakdown of the system, and spelled a serious potential health menace.

347 Million Gallons

When the 62-million-dollar expansion program is finished by 1970, officials estimate the system will have a nominal operating capacity of 347 million gallons a day and a peak emergency capacity of 427 million gallons a day.

Senator Robert C. Hendrickson (R., N. J.) called the water loan bill, passed by the House the day before, to a Senate vote yesterday. He joined with Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) in saying the measure was urgently needed.

Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.) and Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) had launched the drive to put the bill through in this session after the measure was submitted by the District Commissioners.

UCS Advises Hike in Grants To D. C. Needy

Increases in the 1952 District Public Welfare budget to permit more liberal allowances in three assistance items were recommended yesterday by United Community Services.

The recommendations of the UCS, Washington unit of the Community Chest Federation, were received by the Board of Public Welfare at its monthly meeting yesterday.

According to the communication, UCS "feels strongly that the needs of the community require that additional funds be included" for the 1952 fiscal year to permit:

1. Assistance grants on the basis of current living costs, rather than under the present basis of 1946 costs less than 20 percent.

2. Allowance for special diet needs for sick persons.

3. Easing of the present requirement which forces mothers to go to work if arrangement can be made for care of their children.

UCS said present living costs are about 37 percent higher than those of 1946, and the food allowance of 41 cents per day for persons in family groups on public assistance contrasts with a 63-cent cost in institutions operated by the Welfare Board.

Those requiring special diets cannot be discharged from hospitals as soon as it is medically feasible because special diets are not allowed for, UCS pointed out.

Welfare Director Gerard M. Shea said 10 additional social workers will be employed July 1 if the public assistance allowance remains as requested in the 1951 budget. Delay in granting assistance will be cut substantially from the present 23-day average, he said.

I St. Bus Stop Still Proves Troublesome

That Capital Transit Co. bus stop in the 1400 block of I st. nw. is still making trouble.

Two weeks ago after District Court had ordered the company to stop blocking a parking lot entrance near the 14th st. end of the block, the Public Utilities Commission moved the stop 150 feet west. But in its new location the stop prevents trucks from unloading in front of four business houses, merchants told the PUC at an informal closed conference yesterday.

PUC Counsel Lloyd B. Harrison said CTC officials suggested it might be moved 50 feet farther west in front of a bank. Then, however, it would be almost on top of the stop at 15th and I sts., Harrison said. A final answer must be given by the Joint Board, consisting of the PUC and the District Commissioners.

4 Workmen Hurt in Collapse Of Condemned House in SW

Private Building Was Being Razed; 2 Trapped in Rubble; Foreman Rescued

Four men in a wrecking crew were injured yesterday when they literally pulled a G st. sw. house down on themselves.

Two of the men, workers for the General Wrecking Co., Brentwood rd. and W st. ne., engaged to raze the condemned house at 326 G st. sw., were trapped in the rubble.

Taken to Casualty Hospital in a Fire Department Rescue Squad No. 1 ambulance were James Ford, 33, of 631 K st. se., admitted for cuts and a possible rib and skull fracture, and Roscoe Springer, 50, of 1317 Tuckerman st. nw., admitted for concussion and shock.

Mack Jones, 25, of 8 I st. ne., and Willie King, 38, of 456 9th st. sw., were examined and released after they drove to Casualty in Jones' car.

London Mitchell, 45, of 321 6½ st. nw., one of four other crew members who were outside the two-story building when it crashed, said King and Jones managed to jump from inside the hollow shell just before it collapsed.

Springer, foreman of the wrecking job, was pulled from the wreckage by Sergt. Lee Hensley, a motorcycle patrolman who heard the crash from the corner of 4th and G sts. Ford was extricated by Pvt. E. E. Kitchen, who raced to the scene with Hensley.

Police said the building, owned by the estate of the late E. E. Barton, an attorney, had been condemned by the Health Department, along with two others in the rear which are to be razed.

Faster Raises Included in Phone Pact

Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and its union operators have signed a new contract providing shorter work progression schedules, but no flat increase in pay.

Division 50, CIO Communications Workers of America, representing 2600 hello-girls, received rank-and-file approval of the new agreement at a meeting Wednesday night. The new benefits are retroactive to last Sunday.

The new agreement reduces the length of time it takes the employes to attain the top salary in any work classification. For instance, the operators now can attain the top salary in six years instead of eight.

Along with Division 36, which covers some 3500 craft and commercial employes of C.&P., Division 50 had sought a wage increase and other benefits. The operators settlement is similar to that of the commercial-craft employes, who signed last week, and both are in line with the pattern set by the parent union, CWA.

Mrs. Eleanor Jane Palmer, president of Division 50, said 600 operators will benefit immediately from the new contract averaging $1.15 a week increase in take-home pay.

Meanwhile, CWA went to Circuit Court in Baltimore and obtained a temporary injunction to head off secession of Division 38, representing 3000 Maryland C.&P. operators. The injunction suit asked the coourt to order the division's money aand property be taken over by a receivership.

Mrs. Margaret Weiss, president of the rebellious local, said the division voted 17 to 1 for withdrawal, because "they want a democratic union . . ." CWA charges that the revolt is "officer-inspired" and illegal.

Tourist Promotion Group Nears Its Goal of $110,000

A total of $90,000 of the $110,000 goal has been subscribed in the campaign of the Greater National Capital Committee, it was announced yesterday at a report luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel.

The money is used to promote tourist and convention visits to Washington and related activities. Final report luncheon will take place June 12, at a place to be announced.

Divisions which have reported reaching their quotas are newspapers, public utilities, banks and building and loan associations.

Burglars 'Steak' Selves to Feast For Many a Day

Thieves took enough meat and cigarettes from a Chevy Chase chain store early yesterday to set themselves up in business legitimately.

Officials of the Safeway store in the 6400 block of Brookville rd., Chevy Chase, said the loot included 90 pounds of steak, between 100 and 120 pounds of ham and between six and eight cases of cigarettes.

The merchandise was valued at $450.

ICC to Restudy Bus Fares to Pentagon Area

Higher Rates Asked By Arnold Lines And A. B. & W.

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday agreed to restudy the special bus rates now in effect between the District and nearby Virginia Government installations.

Higher rates have been asked by the Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Bus Co. and the Arnold Lines.

A one-way fare of 10 cents is in effect on the Virginia bus lines between Washington and the Virginia installations. The bus companies want it raised to 15 cents.

In addition, both the Virginia bus lines and the Capital Transit Co. have asked for a higher share of a current joint fare, now set at 16 cents. Each of the bus lines would like a 15-cent share of the joint rate.

Immediate Fare Increase Denied Baltimore Transit

Baltimore, May 26 (AP).—The Baltimore Transit Co. was rebuffed today in an effort to have the courts give it an immediate and temporary fare increase.

However, the Circuit Court will hear on June 6 the company's petition to have set aside yesterday's Public Service Commission decision denying the permanent increase from 13 to 15 cents a ride on busses and trolleys.

The company asked Circuit Judge Emory H. Niles not only to throw out the PSC order but to allow it to charge the higher fare until a decision is reached.

Judge Niles denied the temporary increase after conferring with attorneys of the interested parties, including Baltimore City which had intervened

Restaurant Loses ABC License for 30 Days

The District ABC Board yesterday suspended for three days the alcoholic beverage license of the Macomb Restaurant, 3238 Wisconsin ave. nw., for permitting a drunk to remain on the premises.

Another charge of sale and delivery of alcoholic beverages to the intoxicated person was dismissed, according to the board's administrative assistant, Katherine M. Heger. The suspension period begins 8 a. m. June 5.

Failed to Report

Absence Costs Policeman Fine of $50

Pvt. Joseph H. McCarthy, 27, of the Second Precinct, yesterday was fined $50 after pleading guilty before a Police Trial Board to a charge of being absent without leave.

The charge stemmed from his failure to report to duty last Saturday. He was found not guilty of a second charge of feigning illness at the same time.

The board was told that when McCarthy, who has been on the police force 16 months, did not appear for work, he was called at home. He complained of an earache and asked for a sick leave card, which was denied him.

A doctor was visited him stated McCarthy was having trouble with his ear, but said it was not serious enough to warrant his taking sick leave, the board was told. Defense Attorney Charles E. Ford argued that no one, other than McCarthy, knew just how much pain he actually had in the ear.

McCarthy, who had been suspended, was restored to duty, following the decision of board members, Inspector Arthur E. Miller and Capts. Loraine Johnson and Beverly Beach.

He was one of two policemer who on Thursday received a reward for their part in the rescue of four persons from a burning home in the first block of Fenton st. ne. on May 14.

Parade of Wrecks To Warn Drivers Of Highway Peril

The wrecks of 32 erstwhile automobiles will be towed through nearby Virginia today as a remainder that holiday traffic is treacherous.

The parade of mangled cars will be part of a safety first campaign staged by the Northern Virginia Automobile Dealers Association to promote highway caution over the long Memorial Day weekend.

Part of a safety plea by police of the State, Arlington and Fairfax counties, and Alexandria and Falls Church, the procession will begin at noon on Mount Vernon ave., Alexandria. It will then go through the business centers of Arlington, Fairfax and Alexandria.

Three Charged With Gambling In Two Raids

Waitress, 2 Men Held In $1500 Bond; 14 Forfeit Collateral

Three persons were arrested by Ninth Precinct police on charges of operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips yesterday.

The first arrests were made in a restaurant at 107 D st. ne., where a waitress, Kathryn M. Hamilton, 35, of 1334 North Carolina ave. ne., and a tile-setter, Carl E. Jordan, 33, of 331 8th st ne., described by police as a "pick-up" man, were taken into custody.

Arrested later in his barber shop at 1112 N. Capitol st., was Charles Allen, 66, of 45-A K st. ne.

All three were arraigned before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, who set bond at $1500 each and continued the cases to June 7.

During the afternoon members of the vice squad arrested 14 persons in the Mei-Jeu Trading Co. at 713 H st. nw. on charges of disorderly conduct. Each forfeited $5 collateral. Lieut. Roy Blick said his men went to the trading company on information that racehorse bets were being made there.

Grant From State

Alexandria Gets $248,154 For Schools

Richmond, Va., May 26 (AP).—The State Board of Education today cleared $248,154.01 in school construction funds for Alexandria.

It approved the grant to be applied against $3,145,536.56 in bonded indebtedness on school buildings already constructed.

Dowell J. Howard, State superintendent of public instruction, announced the board's action today.

Alexandria qualified by convincing the board that it had met its existing needs entirely by local effort. In such a case, the emergency school construction law provides that a locality's share may be used to pay off school building debts.

Alexandria was entitled to $335,882.36 from the 90 percent portion of the grant fund. Howard had no explanation of why the city asked for only $248,154.01. The balance will be held in trust until the city calls for it.

Taxable wealth per pupil in Alexandria is too high for the city to qualify for any of the equalization fund.

Boy Escapes as ¾-Ton Tire Crashes Into His Bedroom

A three quarter ton tire, mysteriously dislodged from a pile on a hill 200 yards distant, crashed through the bedroom wall of a Woodlawn, Md., home yesterday minutes after a 4-year-old boy left the room.

The bed on which Brian O'Connor had been taking his nap was moved 4 feet into the center of the room, its head broken by the impact of the 6-foot tire. Pieces of the plasterboard wall covered the bedspread on which the imprint of the boy's body could still be seen.

The tire lodged in the wall of the house, half into the room, less than a foot to the right of a ceiling-high window. Broken asbestos shingles were scattered in the yard.

At the moment of impact Brian had just gone into the kitchen with his mother, Mrs. Frank X. O'Connor, to have lunch. His older brother, Frank, 6½, was standing in a small hall between the bedroom and the living room of the home at 5102 70th pl.

Frank, who had been kept home from school for a few days because of the flu, had got out of bed for the first time during the morning. His bed adjoined Brian's.

The tire, which workmen said is used on an earth scraper, was one of a truckload of used tires dumped on the nearby hill Thursday. None of the workmen engaged in clearing the area before grading it for more home construction saw the tire begin to roll. Some thought it might have been dislodged by one of the bulldozers working the section.

Mrs. O'Connor said she thought an explosion had taken place when she heard the crash.

"It sounded just like dynamite," she said. "I was dumfounded when I ran to the bedroom and saw what had actually happened."

O'Connor, resident representative in Washington for the Asiatic Petroleum Corporation, was at work but hurried home when he heard of the incident.

The crash, which tore two-by-four wall supports from their place, also upset a small chiffonier and dashed a radio to the floor.

Memorial Rites Held For 33 Lawyers

Memorial services were held yesterday in the United States Court of Appeals for the 33 lawyers of the District Bar Association who died during the past year.

Judges from all local courts and Fred M. Vinson, Chief Justice of the United States, joined in the services.

Presiding was Attorney Godfrey L. Munter. The memorial address was given by Walter M. Bastian, past president of the association.

Bastian commended the local bar for its public service, fairness and integrity. He said that there were few scandals ever caused by its members and that the rights of citizens were well protected here.

The invocation and benediction were given by Rev. Warren Hastings of the National City Christian Church.

The roll of the deceased members follows:

James S. McCarthy, Jacques Lidji, James C. Robertson, George E. Sullivan, Needham C. Turnage, Frederic D. McKenney, L. Russell Alden, Loyd H. Sutton, Howard S. Leroy, Michael J. Colbert, and Martin J. McNamara.

Also, William H. Sholes, Ewin L. Davis, Jesse I. Miller, Harold N. Marsh, Harry C. Robb, Robert E. Acorn, William B. Ristig, William C. Woodward, Tracy L. Jeffords, James A. O'Shea, and Jerome F. Barnard.

Also, Levi H. David, Julian C. Hammack, William C. Shipley, Andrew D. Torre, John J. Darby, Edward C. Kriz, William S. Torbert, Bon Geaslin, Bettie Renner, D. Edward Clarke, and Everett Sanders.

Wright, Newton

2 Candidates Quit Virginia House Race

Richmond, Va., May 26 (AP).—William A. Wright of Essex, and Blake T. Newton of Westmoreland, today bowed out as congressional candidates in the First District.

Wright, who resigned as director of the State Department of Conservation and Development only a short time ago to run in the August Democratic primary in the First District, made his announcement first.

Newton said he made up his mind to drop out prior to Wright's action and that his was entirely an independent decision. He is president of the State Board of Education.

Today's developments cleared the way for a contest between only two candidates, Edward J. Robeson, jr., of Newport News, the incumbent by virtue of victory in a special election on May 2 in which Wright ran second and Newton third, and Mrs. Catherine Blow of Yorktown.

Mrs. Blow told reporters this afternoon that she has no intention of dropping out of the contest for the seat held by the late Representative S. Otis Bland.

Bell Released Pending Appeal Of Tax Conviction

Baltimore, Md., May 26 (Spl.).—Benjamin S. Bell, Washington antique dealer, was released today on $10,000 bond pending his appeal of a conviction on May 17 of Federal income tax law violation.

Judge W. Calvin Chesnut set the bail and though he said the conviction was warranted, recognized defense contentions. Bell was convicted principally on the increase in his net worth. Judge Chesnut said opinions of higher courts warrant an appeal and liberty for Bell pending a decision. Bell is head of the Washington Galleries, Inc., and lived in Bethesda. He has been in jail since his sentence to six months in prison and a fine of $17,500.

Beach Pier Built For Gaming Ship's Passenger Launch

Colonial Beach, Va., May 26 (AP). The operators of the gambling ship Pleasure Island today solved their shore-to-ship transportation problem.

Pleasure Fishing, Inc., owners of the 200-foot ship anchored in Maryland's Potomac River waters, today built a pier on a leased site to be used as a dock for the launch which will carry patrons to the vessl. The launch has a capacity for 30 to 40 persons.

The vessel plans to have slot machines aboard and will sell liquor by the drink. Neither is permitted in Virginia but both are licensed by Maryland.

Stores hauled from Maryland to the ship today and townsmen here said the Pleasure Island may be ready for business Saturday

Death of Man, 75, At Harper's Ferry Laid to Nostalgia

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., May 26 (AP).—William D. Cline, 75, remembered this town as a place where he was happy as a youth.

His parents were buried here.

And now he was lonely. His wife had died two years ago. Life seemed to have lost its purpose.

So, on May 2, he left his Baltimore home and returned here for the first time in many years. Perhaps he visited his parents' graves. In any event, no one paid him particular attention until late that afternoon.

Then spectators at the railroad station saw him throw himself under the wheels of a passing train.

The death was listed as a suicide. His identity was not established until yesterday.

Mrs. Nothia Virginia Neibert of Hagerstown, Md., his sister, made the identification through a picture of the body and clothes he had been wearing.

It was after talking with Mrs. Neibert and other persons who had known Cline that authorities constructed their theory of his death.

More Than 400 See Jewish Memorial Service

More than 400 persons attended the memorial service sponsored by the Washington Hebrew Congregation and the Jewish War Veterans last night at the temple, 8th and 8 sts. nw.

Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president of American University, gave the address, with the service conducted by Rabbis Norman Gerstenfeld and Hugo B. Schiff. Arthur M. Schiller, D. C. department commander of the JWV, also spoke.

Consolidated Fund Meeting Set June 8

Citizens interested in combining all District campaigns for health, welfare and charity funds in a single drive will hold a second meeting at 10 a. m. June 8 at the District building.

Interim Committee Chairman Frank J. Luchs announced the meeting and sent a resolution supporting the "one-package plan" to organization representatives and private citizens who attend the first meeting May 23.

The resolution which Luchs said he hopes will be adopted suggests that "givers and workers assert themselves" to establish a single "United Services Campaign," including the Community Chest Drive, the Red Cross, the Cancer Society, and other similar efforts.

Luchs pointed out that five major health and welfare campaigns outside the Community Chest have collected, in drives recently completed, more than $1,780,000.

He listed them as the American Cancer Society, $145,000; American Heart Association, $70,000; American National Red Cross, $1,078,000; National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, $190,000, and the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club, $300,000.

Luchs also announced that the Federal Personnel Council had unanimously approved "the general plan to explore the possibility of a concurrent fund-raising campaign for the Community Chest Federation and other approved national appeals" at a meeting Thursday.

W. Thompson Funeral Rites Slated Today

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. today for William A. Thompson, 71, a lifelong resident of the District and a city electrical inspector for seven years.

The services will be at the Lee funeral home, 4th st. and Massachusetts ave. ne. Burial will follow in Congressional Cemetery.

Mr. Thompson died of a heart condition Thursday at Doctor's Hospital.

He was a member of the Dawson Masonic Lodge. After his death a letter reached his family notifying them that he had been awarded the degree of Master Mason for 50 years service in the order.

He also was a member of the Sixth Presbyterian Church of which his grandfather was an organizer and of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

A member of an old Washington family, Mr. Thompson attended Jefferson School, Central High and the Bliss Electrical School.

He was an inspector in the District's electrical department and was for a long time associated with E. C. Ernest, Inc., electrical contractors.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Josephine Buckley Thompson, 1507 Irving st. nw.; a brother, Millard F. Thompson, 5416 Glenwood rd., Bethesda, and a sister, Mrs. Harry A. Disney, 421 Hamilton st. nw.

Mrs. Alexander Dies; Social Figure Here

Tuxedo Park, N. Y., May 26 .—Mrs. Nelson Alexander, 46, prominent in Tuxedo Park and Washington, D. C., social circles, died today after a long illness.

Mrs. Alexander was the daughter of the late George E. Hamilton, dean emeritus of the law college at Georgetown University. Her mother was the late Louise Merrick Hamilton, also of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Alexander was prominent in hospital work and at her request, in lieu of flowers at the funeral Saturday at Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, friends are asked to send contributions to the Tuxedo Memorial Hospital.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Alexander is survived by her brother, George E. Hamilton, jr., of Washington, and three daughters, Elizabeth Hamilton Tompkins, Richmond, Va.; Nan Hamilton Benzinger, Tuxedo Park, and Mme. Louise F. Hamilton of Albany, N. Y., a sister in the Order of Sacred Heart.

Leo Bechtold Dies at 57

Leo John Bechtold, 57, coowner of the Albert M. Briggs Co., died Wednesday in Prince Georges Hospital from complications following double pneumonia.

A native of Piqua, Ohio, he came here after serving in World War I. He lived at 1151 New Jersey ave. nw.

Mr. Bechtold took over the Briggs firm, a hotel and restaurant meat supply house, 15 years ago. In 1946, he formed a partnership with Charles W. Harris. Prior to that he had been secretary-treasurer of the Adams-Burch, Inc., a hotel supply firm here.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Carrie S. Bechtold; a brother, Oscar M. Bechtold of 1170 S. Thomas st., Arlington, and two sisters, Mrs. Alma C. Burgett of 2001 Powhatan rd., Hyattsville, and Miss Margaret E. Bechtold of Baltimore.

With the State Societies

What's This Southern Stuff, Eh?

By Nicha Soure

YOU'VE heard of Southern hospitality, but have you heard about the same institution Yankee style?

For a good demonstration of the Yankee spirit, make reservations now for the June 3 dance of three State societies, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

The party will be held from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. in the National Press Club ballroom and East Lounge, thirteenth floor of the National Press Building, 14th and F sts. nw.

The tables will be set in cabaret style and Jack Morton will provide the dance music. Paul Joneses will start the party rolling. For further information about the dance, call Don Larrabee, president of the Maine State Society, at Columbia 5638, during the evenings.

THE ILLINOIS STATE SOCIETY of Washington will meet June 7 in the Senate Caucus Room of the Senate Office Building. The meeting, which will begin at 8 p. m., will include an election of officers and a business discussion. Entertainment and refreshments will follow the meeting.

THERE WILL BE fun and frolic on June 2, when the Washington State and Alaska Society gathers for its annual Evergreen Dinner Dance at Hotel 2400.

The Washington and Alaska delegations will attend the party which will start at 7 p. m. Reservations may be made at 305 Kass Building or by calling National 5946.

AT THE CLOSE of another Washington social season, many State societies are naming their officers for the coming year.

Maine State Society has elected Don Larrabee for its president. Serving with Mr. Larrabee will be Robert Clark, first vice president; Louis Knowles, second vice president; Mrs. Frank Roche, third vice president; Mrs. W. Clark Noble, corresponding secretary; Dorothy Bigelow, recording secretary, and Ella Merrill, treasurer.

On the Maine State Society committees are Don Larrabee, Roy C. Haines, Mrs. Charlotte Drinkwater and Mrs. Roche, executive; Robert Clark, Commissioner and Mrs. George Sterling, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fairfield, Louis Knowles, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Conley, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Patterson, Katherine Bigelow, Marie Jones, Ruth Young, Grace Lee, Peggy Riddle, Mrs. Victoria Tucker, Helen Wing and Kay Mills, program; Mr. Larrabee and Dorothy Bigelow, publicity, and Mrs. Noble and Mrs. Drinkwater, membership.

AT THE annual meeting of the New York State Society last week, Wilfrid S. Dowling was elected president. Other officers elected were Senator Irving M. Ives, Representative Eugene J. Keogh, Pascal D. Fallon, Luther W. Wohlsen and Mrs. Thomas P. Fitzgibbon, vice presidents; Miss Marie T. Dowling, secretary, and John S. Bartlett, treasurer.

LOUISE AUDREY FINKE, secretary to Senator Milton Young, is the new president of the North Dakota State Society.

Other officers are Lawrence B. Slater, vice president; Dorothy Ford Gwinn, secretary, and Becky Bergesen, treasurer. Named to the board of directors are Lyle Youngstrom, Senator Young, Senator William Langer, George Aaker, Gus Geisler and Stanley J. O'Connor.

THE LAST in a series of Florida State Society dinners will be held on June 6 in the Mayfair Restaurant. The dinner will begin at 5:30 p. m.

The Florida group is making plans for a June 24 party. For further information about the society call Miss Utha Gray Smith, at Temple 6128.

THE South Dakota State Society will hold its annual dinner meeting at 12:30 p. m., June 4, in the Broadmoor Hotel. The business program will include an election of officers for the coming year. Reservations for the dinner may be made at the South Dakota Congressional Offices.

Wagging Tongue

Beware the wicked, wagging tongue . . . That blabbers through the town . . . To criticize the government . . . Or tear the neighbors down . . . The tongue that laps up gossip and
. . . Proceeds to spread it out
. . . Until a whisper in the night
. . . Becomes a mighty shout . . .
There is sufficient poison in . . .
The passing world today . . .
Without the vicious venom of . . . The words some people say
. . . For gossip takes the truth apart . . . And turns it into lies
. . . Until no single fact remains
. . . That one may recognize . . .
And so beware the wagging tongue . . . That wants to slur and scoff . . . And when you hear it, do your best . . . To break and cut it off.

Popular Dillons Say 'Au Revoir'

By Marie McNair

THE ECUADOR Amabassador and Senora de Dillon, soon to leave for home, perhaps never knew how many friends they had until yesterday.

For two hours—between 5:30 and 7:30—they streamed into the Ecuador Embassy, to say good-by to the Ambassador and pretty Senora de Dillon—Sophie to her friends. The Ambassador has resigned his post. If parting is "such sweet sorrow" it was done in the happiest sort of way yesterday.

The embassy was filled with flowers—great white peonies and bridal wreath on the white piano; giant sprays of pink weiglia in a tall silver container on the buffet. The fountain gurgled in the garden and yellow and white garden chairs were pulled up alongside.

Senora de Dillon wore yellow too—a soft maize tone printed with tiny white fingures and made with a pleated skirt with over-drapery at the side.

Diplomatic Ladies At the Tea Table

MRS. CONGER PRATT in black with sweeping black paradise feathers on her pale pink hat, was in charge of the tea table, seeing to it that the ladies took their places before the silver services at the proper moment.

Mme. Munthe Morgenstierne who came with her husband, the Norwegian Ambassador, was among those asked to pour. Mme. Bonnet, the French Ambassador's chic wife, in a black Dior with tiny black calot, was at the tea end of the table, and also taking their turn were Mrs. Harold Burton—the Justice came too; Mrs. Homer Ferguson, accompanied by her husband, and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim. Colonel Guggenheim was there with the wine red ribbon denoting the Ecuadorean medal "Star of Calderon" in his lapel.

Presidential Secretary, Charles Ross, and Mrs. Ross, she wearing a wide black hat, sat together on a garden bench; the Peruvian Ambassador, Fernande Berckmeyer, left the crowd in the dining room for the out-of-doors.

I saw the Spanish Ambassador-at-large and Senora de Lequerica, Mrs. Lee Murphy talking to Mme. Brusset, Edgar Morris and Tom Burke in the drawing room. Mr. Morris introduced me to the new Irish Ambassador John J. Hearne and Mrs. Hearne. They are now occupying the John M. Cabot's house on S st. until they can find larger quarters to house their brood of four.

Visitors From Maryland and Boston

ROSA PONSELLE, over from Maryland's Green Spring Valley, was with George Williams; Mrs. George Thorpe was introducing her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Squier of Boston. Evie Robert brought Co-Co, her miniature poodle with his bangs tied up with a yellow ribbon.

Reynaldo Luza, Peruvian artist, whose portrait of Senora de Dillon is in his exhibition at the Pan American Union, was wandering about; Dr. Donald Honeywell had with him Kershaw Burbank, assistant to John D. Rockefeller 3d, who is scheduled to give the commencement address at the Honeywell Foundation School June 3. The Siamese Ambassador, Prince Wan Waithayakon will also speak to the students that day.

Then there were Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Holdrege, who will entertain at cocktails on Monday for the Dillons; Tom Johnson, Maryland State Senator, exchanging pleasantries with Maryland's own Bertha Joseph; and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Graves and Mrs. Robert Low Bacon.

Miss Saul Takes Millinery Honors

SAID "how-de-do" to Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Prochnik, and Miss Carolyn Nash in gray; Mrs. Harold Walker, Miss Rose Saul with the biggest hat at the party; Mrs. Morris Cafritz, in wine taffeta draped with filmy black lace, bound for a dinner party.

Saw: Mrs. Valentine Pottle, Senora de Echegaray, Mrs. John Farr Simmons, back on a visit from Quito where her husband is our Ambassador; Tom Burke without his Ana; the Burks Summers, Mrs. Alex Legare with her son, Wolcott Waggamans; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hill, Mrs. Davies Fitch and Mrs. Randall Hagner.

Senora de Moscoso, wife of the Minister-Counselor of the Ecuador Embassy, who will be head man when the Ambassador leaves, was there in smart black frock with big white hat, and on a drawing room table was a photograph of her brother, Galo Plaza, former Ecuador envoy here, now his country's President.

More? Well, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon P. King, Gen. and Mrs. Gordon Young, Mrs. W. D. Whittenmore, Representative and Mrs. Clark W. Thompson, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, and, oh yes! I almost forgot—the Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin Elizalde.

Gordon Grays Stage Farewell Dance

THE former Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Gordon Gray who have stepped out of Washington official life entertained at a dance last evening at 1925 F Street Club to say farewell to their friends. Mrs. Gray will leave June 10 with her four boys, Gordon, jr., Burton, Borden and Bernard, to get them settled at the Gray's home in Winston-Salem, N. C., but will return to be with Mr. Gray until summer sets in. Mr. Gray will take over duties as president of the University of North Carolina in September.

Many of the guests had been dinner hosts or guests before the dance. Mr. and Mrs. Gray dined with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wisner. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Carusi were hosts at dinner, so were Dr. and Mrs. Lauriston Hardin and the new Undersecretary of the Army and Mrs. Archibald Alexander.

Here from out-of-town were a group of the Grays' close friends: Mr. and Mrs. Francis Brawley and Mr. and Mrs. Lamont Bryan of Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Breckinridge from Baltimore and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sears from Greenwich, Conn. and Chestertown, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Sears were among Mr. and Mrs. Wisner's guests at dinner and others were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Joyce, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Greenway, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Elliston, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Alsop, Mrs. Arthur Fowler and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling, jr.

The Populaires who played all winter at the Everglades Club in Palm Beach, were imported from White Sulphur Springs' Greenbrier Hotel, to play for dancing.

Italian Government To Bestow Awards

AT A RECEPTION at the Italian Embassy on June 2, Italy's national holiday, the Italian Ambassador, Alberto Tarchiani, will present the Star of Solidarity awarded by the Italian government, to a group of officers and civilians prominent in public life.

One on the Aisle—

An Involved Opera Finally Clarified

By Richard L. Coe

ITS NEW BILL floods the new Plaza Theater with melody.

Verdi's "Il Trovatore," presented by the orchestra and singers of the Rome Opera House, is the feature, with Colonel de Basil's Original Ballet Russe dancing "Graduation Ball" as the short subject. Both will delight the music-minded.

The 97-year-old opera has melodies that are astonishing in their freshness. While the sound track is good and the voices obviously excellent, ears attuned to the remarkable sound reproduction of the better Hollywood films will wish that the same mechanical perfection, clarity of tone, might have been employed for what is, after all, a superior musical picture. How perverse it is that with Hollywood's mechanical marvels one is constantly served with bits and snatches in musical pictures and that, in foreign-made films, when an attempt is made to give the full flavor of a musical work, the mechanical triumphs are lacking.

This is not to say that this Italian-made operatic effort is not worth your while. But the reproductive values of the two schools cannot be overlooked.

Perhaps the greatest value of this "Il Trovatore" is that it does clarify one of the most wildly complex yarns in all opera. You may recall that on the stage you get much of the story through sung narration. Several times you are told of the most blood-curdling things that went on years before. The film version, ably subtitled by Charles Clement, that inexhaustible translator of foreign pictures, lets you watch these occurences and you do wind up with considerably more knowledge of what Librettist Cammarano gleaned from Antonio Gutierrez' play.

Azucena's gory tale of how she avenged her mother's burning at the stake by stealing the son of the Count di Luna and then, by accident, burned her own son in the flames, belongs, perhaps, to a less gory period than our own. Before this century of hate it may have been possible to be taken from oneself by so wild a tale. Now it seems, somehow, artificial, in light of the present purposeful miseries of mankind.

Gianna Pederzini's Azucena is a fine performance and so is the celebrated "Miserre." To Enzo Mascherini falls the "Il Balen" aria, beloved of the old barrel organs, and Vittorina Colonnello in a splendid Leonora.

Leisurely and with complete authority, Director Carmine Gallone has made a picturesque and impressive film of Verdi's indestructible favorite.

"GRADUATION BALL" having one of the loveliest scores ever, Johann Strauss via Antal Dorati, is naturally a treat to listen to and sometimes to watch. . . . The difficulty here is that the de Basil Ballet Russe company, working in an elegant French castle, allows itself less space than Constitution Hall would permit; nor can the camera get out of the room. . . . Hence both visual angles and the dancers are bitterly constricted. . . . Still, what a fetching score it is!

THE SESQUI drama needs mature actors. . . . Since most of the leading parts are of mature men and women, from 40 to 60 years of age, Playwright Paul Green and Director L. Poe Leggette will be pressing their search for such at today's auditions at Lisner Auditorium. . . . Complicating the matter is the fact that while there are numberless mature players working in the Government, Federal workers cannot draw two Government salaries; evidently their only way to play in "Faith of Our Fathers" is to do so gratis. . . . Auditions for actors will be held today from 10 a. m. till 1, from 2 till 6 and from 8 p. m. till all have been interviewed. . . . Singers and dancers will be auditioned at the morning session only; actors at all sessions.

"IL TROVATORE." Globe Distributing Co., release of the Verdi opera as filmed by the orchestra and chorus of the Rome Opera House. Directed by Carmine Gallone. Conducted by Gabriel Santini. English subtitles by Charles Clement. At the Plaza.

THE CAST

Count of Luna	Enzo Mascherini
Manrico	Gino Sinimberghi
Azucena	Gianna Pederzini
Leonora	Vittorina Colonnello

S. S. BEAR MOUNTAIN boasts four hillbilly cruises this weekend, with Connie B. Gay handling the mountaineers . . . Tonight at 8:30 and again at midnight, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 and again at 8:30, the Potomac River Line vessel will leave the 7th and Maine ave. wharf, with Pete Cassell, Don Patton's Swing Boys, Lily and Curly and, tonight only, Victor's Rosalie Allen and Elton Britt.

"MARY POPPINS," the Children's Theater fantasy, goes on for the last time this afternoon at 2:30 at Roosevelt High Auditorium, finale in the Recreation Department series for the youngsters . . . Too bad, for the cast seems to love those flying scenes as much as the audiences do.

THE MARJORIE WEBSTER Junior College is acting "Dark of the Moon" tonight at 8:30 on the home grounds. . . . It's an all-girl cast for the multi-character musical play. . . . Among the players: Mimi Stengel, Diantha Gasper, Louise Rubin, Betty Sikora, Cynthia Hamilton, Betty Lylerly, June Forsythe, Mickey Messner, Joan Blanchard, Joan Johns, Margaret Elliott, Beverly Wilson, Juniper Delap, Rebecca Ball and Loretta Carabba.

A HIT HOLDS ON: With "The Bicycle Thief" continuing on the Trans-Lux screen, this meeting between Enzo Staiola, son of the hero, left, and a luckier lad in a cheerful restaurant forms one of the more poignant moments in an impressive film

"FAITH IS POWER— FOR YOU"

by Dr. Daniel A. Poling

A condensation of the popular book in six installments

Monday through Saturday, May 29–June 3

Dr. Poling's inspiring new book is of particular interest in view of his position as a religious leader. He is editor of the Christian Herald and president of the World's Christian Endeavor Union as well as a member of the President's Commission on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces. His son, Clark, was one of the four famous chaplains who, during World War II, gave their lifebelts to others and went down with the U. S. S. Dorchester.

Read these stirring experiences that illustrate how faith can sustain people through life. They reveal not only what faith has meant to a famous clergyman and his family, but what it can mean to you.

The Sucker Rarely Wins

Cheating Science Is Revealed by Gamblers Argot

This is the last of a series of articles condensed from a scientific research into all aspects of gambling in America.

The research was a project of The American Academy of Political and Social Science, one of the country's learned societies. Today's article, by a professor of languages, is in reality a glossary of gambling terms—expressions of the underworld which have a meaning only to the "grifter." The definitions of the strange terms are, in themselves, proof of the crooked methods of professional gamblers.

The glossary was taken from the current annals of the American Academy.

By David W. Maurer

CHAPTER SIX

By underworld standards, the professional gambler ranks between the confidence man the thief. He is in the upper brackets of what is known as "the grift."

Usually, the successful gamblers combine some of the psychological skills of the confidence rackets with the manual skills of the thief, adapted of course to their particular racket.

There is something about criminal enterprise which breeds a special type of language, or argot. All rackets develop special modes of speech and in the United States nearly all argot falls into two broad classes—that of the heavy rackets and that of the grift.

About the Author

David W. Maurer is professor of languages and literature at the University of Louisville, Louisville, Ky. He has also taught at Ohio State University and the University of Tennessee. For the past 20 years he has worked on the nonstandard aspects of language, especially the speech patterns of professional criminals.

The speech of dice gamblers is typical of gamblers' argot, although it differs in content and imagery from other gambling argots. In this study I have held closely to usage indigenous to the fraternity and on the whole have excluded terms from related rackets. . . . However, I have included single entries borrowed from other types of gambling and other rackets.

This survey, while conducted with great care, cannot claim to be either comprehensive or exhaustive. It represents an attempt to generalize on the basis of some years of experience with both the culture and the language patterns of the professional criminal.

Racket Talk

Action: (1) The betting between players. "There's plenty of action." (2) Fast play with the dice.

Alone: Playing against the house, usually used in reference to a cheater trying to beat the house by himself.

Baggage: (1) An observer of the game who does not play. (2) A member of a mob who does not win enough to pay his own way.

Battery Joint or Bat: A place where electric dice controlled by batteries or current are used. Also Juice-Joint.

Behind the Sink: Broke. (Probably a variant of Behind the Six, from faro bank.)

Blanket Roll: A type of controlled roll, so called because it can best be made on a blanket or rug. Also Pad Roll or Even Roll.

To Blow: (1) To lose a sum of money. I seen I had the edge so I zinged it in, but either they was lucky or had the gaff working. Anyhow I blowed the B-R." (2) To become aware of cheating.

Book: (1) The man who collects the money and pays off bets. (2) The backer of the game. (3) The house bank roll.

Box-Car Numbers: Large sums of money. "He's OK for a short tab but make sure you don't let him go into box-car numbers."

Broke Money: A small sum of money, as $5 or $10, given to a broke player by the house.

To Burn the Dice: For a houseman or another player to stop the dice before they have finished rolling, usually when a roll appears suspicious.

Busters: A pair of misspotted dice. These are made in many combinations designed to turn up certain numbers. Either one or both may be switched into and out of the game as the situation demands.

To Cackle the Dice: To pretend to shake the dice by making them rattle when actually they are being prevented from turning freely in the box.

Chippy: (1) A sucker. (2) An inexpert player.

Clean: (1) To get rid of crooked dice or any incriminating objects. "He cleans himself of gaffs."

Cowboy: A reckless gambler. Also Highroller.

Cross: The act of beating someone who is engaged in cheating. "Every gaff has its cross." "We gave him the cross."

"O. K., Doctor"

Doctor: A signal or office, used by cheaters in the presence of suckers. "O. K., Doctor," sometimes in conjunction with a hand signal, informs the cheater that his move has been noticed by another cheater who will ride along with him, naturally expecting a share of the win. "Is the Doctor working?"

Door Pops: Crooked dice which roll seven or eleven predominantly. Some combinations include a three.

To Dust (someone) Off: (1) To flatter a player by telling him how smart he is. (2) To cheat a player out of his money.

Fills or Filled Work: Dice which have been loaded.

First Flop Dice: A type of heavily loaded dice which tend to bring up the same number each time they are thrown. Used with a slick box or slick cup.

Front Money: (1) Money used to make an impression on suckers. (2) Bankroll money.

Gimmick: (1) A cheating device. (2) A means whereby dice are gaffed, q.v.

To be Given the Dozens: (1) To be shortchanged. (2) To be cursed and called names.

Good Man: (1) A player with a large amount of money. (2) A good cheater.

Greek Shot: A controlled cast of the dice. The dice are set one atop the other with the desired faces up. They are then thrown with a whip-like motion which causes them to twirl rapidly.

Hep-Gee or Hip-Gee: A person who understands the angles of a game.

To Hit and Run: To win quickly and withdraw from the game.

To Hocus: To alter fair dice to crooked dice.

Holdout Artist: A gambler who conceals the full amount of his winnings from a partner or other member of the mob.

Ice: Protection money.

Ice Cold: Said of dice that are losing consistently.

Jonah: (1) A superstitious player who tries to control his luck with phrases or gestures. (2) One whose presence is thought to bring bad luck to others.

Juice Joint: A gambling house where electric dice are used.

To Knock a Mark: To reveal a cheating device to a sucker, thus discouraging his play.

Legit Guy: A person without underworld connections, though not necessarily an honest man.

Load: (1) A weight, sometimes consisting of mercury or gold, concealed under the spots, which causes the die to turn up a certain number more frequently than the law of averages would permit.

Loose Table: A game with only a few players.

Nickel Game: A game in which correct odds are paid players. "Old John Winn brought the nickel game to Philly around 1910."

Dice Switcher

Office: Any secret signal used by gamblers.

Outside Man: (1) An employe of a gambling house who directs players to the house. Also LUGGER OR STEERER. (2) Any player other than the stickman who switches in crooked dice.

Passers: Crooked dice that show a higher percentage of passes than do legitimate dice.

To Pee Wee: To throw the dice to determine the order in which players will shoot.

To Put the Horns on: To give a player bad luck by changing positions at the table, altering a bet, or using any other device involving superstition.

Razor Edges: Dice cut perfectly square. They are preferred in many gambling houses because they show up wear more easily and because they are more difficult for the holdout man to manipulate.

To have a Ring in One's Nose: To lose heavily.

Rock: A tight fisted player who refuses to lend money or to make foolish bets. Also STONEWALL JACKSON.

Sacks: A term used by gamblers to indicate that everything is "in the bag."

To Send It In: To make a large wager, especially to parlay one's winnings in the hope of breaking the game.

Shape: A crooked dice that has been altered so that it is not a true cube. Shapes are made in many different ways, some slightly concave or convex.

Shortstop: A small bettor; a chiseler.

To Slambang: To clip patrons or other players with cheating methods.

The Squeeze: (1) Any kind of device applied to increase the favorable percentage for the house. (2) The control operating a cheating device.

Stand-up Guy: A trustworthy person.

Stickman: A croupier at a dice table.

Sucker Holdout: Dice retained in the curled little finger are said to be in the sucker holdout. Possibly so called because it is easy to detect.

To Take a Bath: To lose heavily or to go broke.

To Tap (someone) Out: (1) To bet the exact amount of money which the other player has; (2) to force a game to its conclusion by winning all the money.

Tin: A police officer, referring to the badge.

Tony: A word or signal meaning mis-spotted dice. "Is Tony here tonight?"

Viggerish or Vigorish: (1) The percentage taken by a gambling house, which may be overt or hidden by altering the odds in favor of the house. Usually 3 to 5 percent.

Where's Buster Brown? An expression informing stickmen to switch crooked dice into or out of the game. (Used only around suckers.)

Window's Open: An expression used by cheaters signifying that switching of dice is being done ineptly and that the alternate die or pair of dice can be seen in the player's hand.

The X or to Have the X (on): (1) To control gambling in a town; (2) to be able to beat another player consistently.

Zing or to Zing It In: To bet heavily, particularly to parlay one's winnings.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the reetangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

First-Aid Man Accused of Fraud

Ferndale, Md., May 26 (AP).—A professional first-aid man at a Fort Meade housing project "doctored" claims instead of workmen, Anne Arundel County police said today.

Charged with obtaining money under false pretenses from an insurance company is James W. Bullock, 59.

Bullock filed a claim for $4 for treating injuries never suffered by a workman, Police Lieut. Wilbur C. Wade said. The lieutenant said at least 22 other claims involving $160 are being investigated. Bullock had been employed by several insurance companies to treat on the scene minor injuries of workmen.

It Happens

Cinderellas Have Their Chance on TV

By C. E. Butterfield

NEW YORK. (AP).—Despite the modern era, chances of becoming a Cinderella are ever present. It even happens in television.

There's the case of June Thompson, 25-year-old brunette native of Pittsburgh and graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and of the Columbia School of Journalism. A regular member of the NBC network staff—she's a play reader—she is to make three television appearances. Not because her talent is directed that way, but because she was selected as NBC's "Queen of Beauty" in an inter-office contest.

The contest, which also includes a week's trip to Miami, was restricted to network employes on the regular operating staff. She was picked by a board of outside judges.

The NBC-TV shows in which she is to be interviewed are those of Roberta Quinlan and Wendie Barrie. She will turn video actress for the first time with a small part in the eerie drama series, The Clock.

In place of two serials being eliminated from the NBC afternoon list, the sponsor has decided to insert a new talent type series with a prize angle five half-hours a week. The title is "Live Like a Millionaire."

Under the guidance of Jack McCoy as MC, children 3½ years old and up will be asked to bring in their talented parents as guest performers. The "Live Like a Millionaire" idea comes from a weekly grand prize. It will consist of a cash award equal to a week's interest on a million dlolars (around $400(plus the comparative living expenses for the same period. The contract covers a year's broadcast starting June 5.

ALONG with the fact that Morton Downey will be back on CBS next season after transfer from NBC is that the sponsor also is moving him to a Saturday daytime schedule. His NBC run, three nights a week, 15 minutes each, will end July 1. In the shift to CBS on October 7 after vacation, Downey's broadcasts will be consolidated into a single half-hour a week. It was on CBS that Downey made his network debut a couple of decades ago.

Date for Jay C. Flippen to return to the CBS quiz, Earn Your Vacation, has been fixed as June 4.

The Perry Como NBC-TV Sunday night series is to end June 4 with no announcement made as to fall plans.

SOMETHING else is happening in the way of program trends in this radio-TV era. New shows start up in radio, add television, ultimately get a sponsor in TV only, and then go off radio.

Several current examples, all CBS, are available. The veteran is Studio One, hour-long drama. Originated as a radio series, it established itself on a going basis. When material was needed for TV it was put on the video schedule. A video sponsor showed up. Now it doesn't have a radio counterpart.

Just about the same path has been followed by the newer This Is Show Business, a talent-problem series. The Show Goes On, recently introduced as another talent program with Robert Q. Lewis at the helm, soon will do the same. Currently it is on both radio and TV, with a sponsor for the first TV half-hour. Next September when it adds a second TV sponsor, the radio will be dropped. At present this is a sound recording of the TV show.

Death of Don Hornsby, known as "Creesh," from poliomyelitis at the age of 26, removes from the NBC roster a comedy prospect for whom many things had been planned in both radio and TV. NBC had been making arrangements to put him on in an early series.

A reversal of a previous announcement says Frank Sinatra will come back to NBC Monday to do the final week of his series with Dorothy Kirsten which is being discontinued by the sponsor. Jeff Clark has been filling in since Sinatra went off early in the month because of a throat ailment.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Let's Face It; Bill Had A Narrow Escape

I suppose you saw that AP Wirephoto from Cambridge, Mass., the other day—the one in which two motorists were slugging it out after an argument over a parking space?

It's a wonder to me this sort of thing doesn't happen more often. With parking space at a premium, two drivers often get designs on the same place at the same time—and one of them is bound to end up mighty disgruntled.

The unwritten rule is that priority should go to the motorist who, on spotting a car about to depart, pulls up abreast of the vehicle ahead—all set to back in when the space is empty.

But occasionally another driver will come along, so frustrated by his vain hunt that he is ready to resort to sharp practices. He'll try to sneak in head first, before the backer can start backing.

That is when gentlemen sometimes forget they are gentlemen, and ladies turn out to be just plain women.

The other day I turned right off G st. just as the last car from the corner on 10th st. prepared to vacate a parking space.

Joyously, I moved in as he moved out. And then I noticed that from the double-parked car ahead, the driver was looking daggers at me.

Realizing that he had been waiting for the space, I wearily (but voluntarily) yielded to his priority, and pulled back out into the street again. But as I passed, I heard him sneer:

"You'd better get out if you know what's good for you, you dirty chiseler."

Gee, just think. The face in the AP Wirephoto might very easily have been mine.

LINES ABOUT LANES

"As I drive past the entrance to the streetcar underpass at Dupont Circle," reports a reader, "I'm usually in the right lane of traffic.

"As we approach the auto underpass entrance, all traffic is supposed to veer left. But very often it doesn't.

"The fellow to my left will switch lanes, to avoid making such an abrupt swing. By the time he enters the underpass, he's plowed almost straight ahead to the right lane—and has caused me to jam on my brakes to avoid an accident. Can't we get some lane lines at this point, to minimize such confusion?"

Traffic Director George Keneipp points out that his crews can't paint lines every place. "We try to cover those areas we've found to be the most troublesome," he says.

"On the strength of a complaint like this one, we investigate. If our investigation shows that the citizen's point is well taken, he'll get his lane lines."

TOP SECRET

In the old days, when giving a party was a major production, engraved invitations were ordered from the printer weeks in advance.

These days the host sometimes drops around to a greeting card counter and picks up a stack of ready-mades. They cordially invite the recipient to attend a whingding at blank o'clock on blank date, at blank address.

Not as fancy as the tailor-made invitation, they nevertheless serve a useful purpose in this hurry-up world. Hosts who decide to throw a party on short notice can fill in the blanks and start polishing the company glassware.

However Elizabeth "Pawn" Salisbury of 3824 Harrison st. nw. suspects that the ready-made invitations also have their drawbacks.

Like all true Washingtonians, Mrs. Salisbury hates to miss a good party. So she was properly delighted to receive an invitation to a cocktail party yesterday, but dismayed to discover that the host had completely forgotten to fill in any of the blank spaces. The only information she lacks is: Where will it be, when will it be, and who is giving it?

THIS IS WASHINGTON

The winter time has come and gone,
So have the Ides of March.
A few more weeks, then summer heat
And we'll all fume and parch.

FAIRFAX COUNTY'S SCHOOL CRISIS

by Agnes E. Meyer

Can parents and teachers cushion the educational crisis in Fairfax County? That's a question Agnes E. Meyer answers in this series of two articles in The Washington Post.

In these articles, Mrs. Meyer clearly shows the dangerous, overcrowded conditions in Fairfax County schools. She describes the poor and inadequate facilities in many of the schools and points out that funds are desperately needed to solve the problem. And she tells how the outmoded county government, created for earlier days and overwhelmed by sudden expansion, is unable to cope with the critical situation.

No taxpayer, educator or parent in Fairfax County can afford to miss this series on the vital subject of educating America's future citizens.

MARK TRAIL — By Ed Dodd

I GOT TO START MOVING, DUDLEY, BUT I'M GOING TO COOK TRAIL'S GOOSE PLENTY BEFORE I GO!
I MIGHT AS WELL MOVE, TOO... THE SWAN MIGRATION IS OVER... I'LL TAKE WHAT FEW SKINS I GOT WITH ME!
I'LL HAVE TO BORROW A CANOE PADDLE IF YOU GOT ONE... TRAIL HID MINE!
OKAY... NOW I'LL TAKE ALL OF TRAIL'S FOOD, THEN SMASH HIS CANOE!
SAY, YOU REALLY HATE THIS TRAIL GUY, DON'T YOU? I KNOW WHAT NO FOOD AND NO CANOE MEANS IN THIS WILDERNESS!

Rules Group Holds Up Central Arizona Bill

Chairman Sabath (D., Ill.) of the House Rules Committee indicated yesterday that the 596 million-dollar central Arizona project bill is dead for this year.

Sabath told reporters his committee will not act on the measure until the President's water resources policy committee has reported.

The President's committee must report by December 1, but Congress is expected to quit long before that time.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

President Praises Acheson

By Drew Pearson

President Truman, conferring privately with Big Four congressional leaders this week, was jubilant over Dean Acheson's work at London, said he was the best Secretary of State since Charles Evans Hughes, and that Dean would make a "barnstorming" to report to the Nation on foreign affairs. . . . "Acheson did a great job," Truman told Barkley, Lucas, Rayburn and McCormack. "A job we can all be proud of, and which the entire democratic world can applaud." . . . The President especially liked Acheson's influence on the British in persuading them to cooperate. . . . The man who seasoned justices on the Supreme Court say has the greatest promise is newcomer Justice Tom Clark. They were disappointed in Justice Sherman Minton. . . . The truth-will-out contribution by Representative Otto Passman of Louisiana: "Mr. Speaker, I request a leave of absence for political—er, I mean, official reasons."

Acheson

The 12 Nazi SS men convicted of the cold-blooded murder of 350 defenseless American prisoners at Malmedy during the Battle of the Bulge have not yet been executed—thanks to Senator McCarthy. . . . McCarthy badgered the Army last year in the same way he is badgering the State Department now and the Army scares easy. Not a shred of evidence was turned up by a Senate investigation showing that the 12 Nazis were not guilty, as originally convicted. . . .

Senator Kefauver of Tennessee practices the economy he preaches. He is still using envelopes that were printed for him as a Congressman. He could use Government money to print new Senatorial stationery . . . It pays to be the sister of a powerful Senator, even when that Senator is long dead. Mrs. Blair Bannister, half-sister of the late Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, still holding the job of Assistant Treasurer, through over 80 and seldom in her office. She has now occupied this lush job for 16 years . . . Housewives should note the proposal of Iowa's Senator Guy Gillette to put the coffee and sugar exchange under Federal rules. Stocks and bonds now come under the watchful eye of the Securities and Exchange Commission, but not food commodities, though you can't eat stocks and bonds . . . Big coffee and sugar dealers are fighting Gillette's bill.

Little-Noticed but important olive-branch for labor peace was a telegram by broad-gauged Dave Dubinsky of the International Ladies Garment Workers (AFL) to Jacob Potofsky, head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers (CIO). These two unions have been at each other's throats for years . . . It was expected that Frankie Costello and Frank Erickson would circumvent the Kefauver Crime Committee by rushing down to Washington to testify before Senator McFarland of Arizona. But Senator Kefauver isn't going to let them off that easy . . . Credit Congressman Sam Hobbs of Alabama for advocating Federal ownership of the tidelands oil long before almost anyone else. Hobbs saw the importance of keeping this oil reserve for military eventualities.

Certain Pro-Fascists have organized a secret campaign of telephoning and letter-writing to intimidate radio stations that permit free discussion . . . Political scouts returning from Wisconsin report Joe McCarthy would be licked if he were running for reelection this year . . . Contrary to a report of one radio commentator, Senator Tydings was not booed at a recent Maryland Chamber of Commerce meeting . . . Sentiment for Senator Tydings is such that no one dares run against him on the Democratic ticket . . . President Truman would like to persuade Bob Patterson, former Secretary of War, to go to Austria as United States high commissioner, but Patterson isn't anxious . . . First member of the Jewish faith to become a Knight of Malta is Irving Geist, who has tried to keep alive the spirit of the four chaplains. The medal was awarded him recently in Rome.

Assistant Secretary of State Ed Barrett, resting from McCarthy's investigation, rescued a capsized boater in the Potomac before his departure for England recently . . . . . Turner Smith, crack lawyer for the Justice Department's tax division, instructed embryo lawyers at Notre Dame recently on how to enforce the tax laws. Among other things he revealed that the number of cases sent to the Justice Department for criminal prosecution has jumped from 79 in '42 to 420 in '49. Wartime evasion on the part of taxpayers accounts for the increase. . . . A strong move is under way to make Henry C. Iler, chairman of the U. S. Employees Compensation Appeals Board, president of the AFL American Federation of Government Employees. Iler is also being eyed for the chairmanship of the U. S. Civil Service Commission.

Political-Go-Round

John Coffee, the vigorous former Congressman from Tacoma, Wash., plans to stage a comeback campaign this year. . . . Roly-Poly Congressman Clarence Brown of Ohio, a Taft stalwart, is in for a battle from Ben Goldman, Democrat. . . . Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing is dead serious about his campaign for Governor of New York. Some of the boys who organized "McNutt for President" clubs in 1938 are getting busy for him. . . . A Negro, Theodore Spaulding, Republican, is almost certain to be elected to Congress from Philadelphia next November. The only two Negroes in Congress now are Democrats—Adam Powell of Harlem, a notorious absentee, and William Dawson of Chicago.
